Wayward Brown Cow Comes to Grief in City

A brown cow that started out as a runaway this morning ended up as an express package. The cow was running east on Market street bridge, and Patrolman Degan, of the Fifteenth and Vine streets station, seized her at the bridge. The cow misunderstood the signal and turned north on Twenty-third street. Degan told Patrolman Thomas Cusick to get her a rope, as he had once been a cowboy. Cusick got the rope, and Degan made some tries at the cow. As he tried and missed, the three raced about the center of the city. Finally Degan got the cow cornered and put the rope around her neck. Then four patrolmen dragged her to the American Railway Express Co., at Eighteenth and Market streets, and turned her over to the express people. They tagged her and she now awaits a claimant.

trades department of the federation, which is also meeting here, said today that the council would reiterate its stand against wage reductions. They declared that in many cities where there are strikes and lockouts the workers had been without employment for months before the employers had attempted to change the wage schedules.

Greatest, Grandest and Finest

Each year advertising becomes more believable as advertisers get a little older.

Most lies are told by children, not with the intent to deceive, but inspired by the seeming necessity for securing emphasis.

The new advertiser wants to attract attention in a babel of voices, all demanding a hearing.

So he shouts and screams and bellows with best of intention and with little result.

He means no harm, but just wants to be heard and doesn't realize that his voice is cracking.

As he grows older, he learns that red, after all, has only 60% of the strength of black, and that to be believed is more than just to be heard.

Don't you agree that as advertising grows older—it grows milder and stronger?

The most delicate mechanism in the world—unprotected!

WHEN a tire blows out you immediately pull up to the side of the road. Only an emergency could persuade you to drive even a hundred yards without the protection of a pneumatic tire.

This is the care that we take of our automobiles, although every part of them can be replaced if necessary.

Yet thousands of people fail to protect the human body against the jolts and jars of modern city life. They are slowly but surely wrecking the most delicate mechanism in the world—no part of which can be replaced.

Today more than ever before, success demands the protection of our bodies—the saving of every ounce of energy. The world needs new pilots, new leaders for its great tasks today, but they must be men and women who can stand the pace, who will not weaken under the strain.

Fatigue—a national menace

Thousands in the great throng of American workers are suffering from a needless handicap.

Others pass them in the race and they wonder why it is because they waste their energy.

The average person takes 8000 steps a day. If he wears hard leather or ordinary "dead" rubber heels he gets 8000 separate shocks—every shock a hammer blow to the delicate nervous system. Day by day this drains away his energy—slowly, stealthily, but none the less with ruinous effects.

You can avoid this waste of energy. O'Sullivan's Heels absorb the shocks that tire you out.

To secure the resiliency, the springiness of O'Sullivan's Heels, the highest grades of rubber are blended by special formula. With this blend of live, springy rubber are "compounded" the best toughening agents known. The compound is then "cured" or baked under high pressure.

The same process that makes O'Sullivan's Heels resilient gives them their great durability. O'Sullivan's Heels outlast three pairs of leather heels—they often outlast two pairs of ordinary rubber heels.

Stop pounding away your energy. Go to your shoe repairer today and have O'Sullivan's Heels put on your shoes. Insist on getting O'Sullivan's!

NOTE—A wise economy these days is to have your repairman resole your old shoes and fit them with O'Sullivan's Heels. They'll give you months of extra wear!
