INDIANS WANT FLAG; YANKS RUTH HOMERS

Bambino's Circuit Clouts Are the Feature of New Yorkers' Play, but Cleveland Is Out to Win Ball Games

By GRANTLAND RICE
"CLEVELAND" remarked a well-known psychological expert a day or two ago, "has it over New York in the way of pennant psychology. In New York the crowds go mainly to see 'Babe' Ruth hit home runs and to witness it when he does. They are waiting for the Yanks to win of course; but Ruth's home runs are the leading attraction. The rest of the players understand this, subconsciously, it seems to me, and Ruth is the big feature—and the winning of the game."
But Cleveland is different. In Cleveland the entire spirit of the occasion is laid on Cleveland to win—the crowd is far above what may happen to any individual. Spunker, of course, is a star; but he is also a perfect cog in the machine. His play is brilliant all around. It may not make any big difference, but it is enough to count.
"DAVIS is another Augusta boy. His delivery resembles that of Walter Math and his speed rivals Walter Johnson at his best. The control of Cleveland and the strategy of Bender—Exchange.
His only weakness appears to be a lack of Matty's follow-up and Ed Walsh's subtlety.
Still, a one-man army everything in this highly limited existence.
Carpenter's Asset
If JESS WILLIARD at Toledo had only put himself completely in charge of Tex O'Rourke, the man who trained him for the Johnson fight, he might have had a special chance of retaining the olive wreath.
Maybe yes and maybe not. As it was, he trained himself into a target.
In December, Carpenter has an invaluable asset. He has put himself absolutely under the direction of the man who, through training him for many years, knows exactly how to bring him along. Desmons can judge the Frenchman's progress far better than the higher himself could ever judge it.
He is almost sure to have his single-roller primed in the last week, mentally and physically, for the big day. And the mental attitude on the day of a championship test is the smallest part of the work by several stretches.
JOE BECKETT and Bombardier Wells would like to challenge the winner of the July fracas if Frank Moran would only remove his right hook for a few minutes and thereby open up the pond.
"CHICK" EVANS and Francis O'Connell, who both have a number of old songs to settle if they can manage it properly this trip.
