BOYS DISCIPLINED BY OWN TRIBUNAL

Philadelphia High Rule-Breakers Learn Student Government "Has Teeth"

THREE ARE SUSPENDED

Disregard for law and order as an attitude not to be tolerated in the schools was the lesson learned by six students of the West Philadelphia High School for Boys, who made it a test case.

It also served as a practical lesson in civic duty and showed the young offenders most conclusively that student government, backed by the faculty of the school, has teeth in it.

As an outcome of misconduct in littering up the school yard with broken glass bottles and other debris, cornering pupils, three were recommended for suspension by the student government and suspended by the principal, Charles C. Fiel, explained, "has teeth in it."

The official disciplinarian of the school. The school yard also was recommended closed for an indefinite period. All these recommendations were obtained by the principal, and as a result the six chief offenders took their medicine and the school yard and all outside privileges are being denied all the pupils.

The tribunal is the judiciary body of the school, elected from the membership by a large body of the school elected annually, who are virtually the "congress" of the school. Its membership included Armstrong Hayden, chairman; Randolph Beach, Graeme Frazer, several Tennant and Frederick Sweet.

Regular Trials Held
In all cases involving misdemeanors by pupils of the school the tribunal hears the evidence, teachers being called as witnesses. In most cases, no keen is taken by the boys, said Mr. Fiel, the defendants attempt no defense and plead guilty. The three who were suspended admitted their breach of the orders of the tribunal seriously. Their case became, therefore, a test case. The boys who face the tribunal are required to read the lesson of school regulations and the advisability and necessity of obeying them.

The lesson consists of a hundred-word essay on the subject called "The Tribunal," which the offenders are required to commit to memory and recite to the tribunal.

They are then compelled to show their understanding of details of the rules and the satisfaction of the principal a letter explaining their understanding of the rules. They are then declared in default of the student government.

"The tribunal is a potent force against the development of Bolshevism or any other form that regards law and order in the country as a thing not applicable to the individual. After a session with the 'adjuster' the average offender has learned his lesson and is not likely either to repeat or to commit a more serious breach of discipline."

Labor Department Official Sees General Benefit in Summer Classes
The Bryn Mawr Summer School for Women in Industry, which opens June 15, will offer reciprocal benefits to the working women of the country and to the American educational movement, in the opinion of Miss Mary Anderson, director of the woman's bureau of the United States Department of Labor.

"It is a bridge across the gulf between purely practical experience and theoretical training," said Miss Anderson. "What the workers need as much as anything in the world is the means to express what they have learned by their life's experience. These women are the epitome of the concrete embodiment of the result of existing economic conditions. They know what they know because they have lived it."
