Letters to the Editor

Long Hours of Labor

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger: I read a letter in your People's Forum recently signed "W. L." with a great deal of astonishment. It is brave and right to make the best of existing conditions...

Easy to Get Liquor

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger: It is amusing to read of the present prohibition act recently passed in Harrisburg. Prohibition at the present time is really an immense joke.

Job for Army

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger: I read with pleasure in your last issue an article by a member of the army who decided to make a wage cut. One wonders how many loafers who make large wages and are not worth the half of it...

Fallacy of Forging Finger Prints

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger: The public should understand more clearly the value of the finger-print system of identification. Some are under the impression that finger prints should be used only in police work for criminals...

Wants "Life's Weaving"

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger: Can you or any of your readers locate the poem called "Life's Weaving"? I am exceedingly anxious for the words and

This selfish disposition that is prevailing all over this great U. S. A. Remember the words of the poet: "We are weaving our life's thread day by day. Its colors are sometimes somber, sometimes gay." L. E. SHOTWELL, Moorestown, N. J., May 2, 1921.

Magazine Titles' Story To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger: "The American Boy" had an "Independent Outlook" on "Life." He went to be a "Country Gentleman." He went to a school of "Popular Science," and after graduating was one of the many "Popular Mechanics." He became acquainted with "The Modern Principle," who lived at "The Ladies' Home Companion," and a very plain, sweet girl. In the evening he would take her to "The Motion Picture." They were soon married and went to "The Casado" hotel, called "The Vogue," to spend their honeymoon.

They were both full of "Adventure" and would wander at "Sunset" through "Field and Stream" and tell each other "Gaudy Stories." Sometimes they would go out in their "Motor." While on their honeymoon they became acquainted with "The Smart Set," and one evening attended "Harper's Bazar" and looking wonderful. They led a happy life because they were both full of "Firm Fun." They were only two in "The Wide World," but they went together hand in hand down the road to "Success." BEATRICE FRETZ, Philadelphia, April 29, 1921.

Desires Title and Author To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger: Will you kindly assist me in finding the title and author of the following beautiful poem: If you have gentle words and looks, my friends, To spare for me: if you have tears to shed, That I have suffered, keep them not, I Until I hear not, see not, being dead. If you have flowers to give, fair lily buds, White roses, daisies, meadow-stars that be Mine own dear namesakes, let them smile and make The air, while yet I breathe it, sweet for me. For loving looks, though fraught with tenderness, And loving tears, though they fall thick and fast; And words of praise, alas! can naught avail avail To lift the shadows from a life that's past. And rarest blossoms, what can they set-offered in one who can no longer gaze Upon their beauty? Flowers on coffins laid Impart no sweetness to departed days. JOHN WIRTH, Philadelphia, May 4, 1921.

About Louise Driscoll To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger: Can you tell me anything concerning Louise Driscoll, who writes nature poems, and could you find space for a few of her shorter poems in your next helpful column? X. Y. Z., Norristown, Pa., May 2, 1921.

Problem in Verse To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger: Can a reader of the People's Forum solve this problem? If from a rule of three feet long "The shadow five is made." What is the steely's height in yards? It throws ninety feet in shade. CLEMENT, Philadelphia, April 30, 1921.

will be very thankful to any one who can give them. The first two lines are: "We are weaving our life's thread day by day. Its colors are sometimes somber, sometimes gay." L. E. SHOTWELL, Moorestown, N. J., May 2, 1921.

What Gives Owners Such Faith in Essex?

The people who know Essex rely on it chiefly, for the simple reason they have never encountered a situation of which it was not master. More than by any other factor men have been guided in their preference for the Essex by the endurance and reliability which unmistakably sets it apart from other light cars.
