Nancy Wynne Talks of the Tea Given by Colonial Dames for Mrs. Vere Speke Alston—She Tells of Various Bits of Interest

BERIDES preparing for the Flower Market next week, there was quite a bit doing yesterday and today, taking it by and all. There was a good many luncheons out at Sodgley, and then there was the tea at the chapter rooms of the Philadelphia Chapter, No. 2, Colonial Dames of America, after the annual meeting. The tea was given for Mrs. Vere Speke Alston, of England, who is now other than the former Miss Ann Chou of this city, a daughter of Mrs. Samuel Chou and a sister of the late Samuel Chou, whose death occurred about two years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Alston arrived here last week from England. They have not been over for a couple of years, and their last visit was very sad, because it was while they were here that Sam Chou died.

Mrs. Alston is delightful, and it was a pleasure to see her yesterday. Mrs. Oswald Chew, who is a relative, is a Colonial Dame of that chapter, too, and has, by the way, done some fine work in various public things. Only recently she was made national president of the Women's Overseas League at the convention, which was held in this city at the Emergency Aid. She is president of the local Overseas Legion of Women and is vastly interested in the various works the members are taking up. Mrs. Samuel Chew, Mrs. Charlotte Cushman Clark, which has just now home on Spruce street above Fern and which is doing such fine things.

I went there to a tea just two months ago for the stars who had taken part in the benefit for the house, and had a delightful time. It is so interesting to meet people of the stage, especially those who are not new to the town. Dear old Miss Jennie Webber, who took the part of the "Erminie" when it was revived here, was present that afternoon and made Lesing and De Wolf Popper and Frances Starr and a great many others.

That charming Miss Williams, to whom Arthur Jackson is engaged, was with the "Erminie" company. I hear that she is recovering from her recent illness and I hope she will be sufficiently well to be married shortly. All this is interesting very much to me for the tea for Mrs. Alston. It was presided by the annual meeting of the Colonial Dames, at which Mrs. James Large presided. A large number of Dames attended.

Mr. Arthur Gerhardt gave a delightful party at the Rabbit in Fairmount Park for Catherine Cox and Andy Porter last night. You know, the Coxes are to be married on the sixteenth of June at the Coxes' lovely place in Prallton. Catherine made her debut at a tea given there, and, of course, she has gone every July 4 to the dance and given the part of the "Erminie" of the independence of the nation. Catherine is the youngest of Mr. and Mrs. Cox's three children. Her older sister, Ruth married Stanley Stollen and Harry Cox, her brother, is unmarried.

Andy Porter is a son of Judge and Mrs. William Porter. He is now, and has been, a member of the Philadelphia Chapter, No. 2, Colonial Dames, who married Abbie Alston. He looks like his sister, most persons think.

John is fond of playing out of doors. Just as his family lives in the city and the garden, excuse me, is not very large, he is always delighted when Auntie invites him to the country, as he does on all his days in the open
