

PENN TRACK TEAM OFF FOR CORNELL

Thirty Men in Squad Ready to Engage Ithacans Tomorrow Afternoon

MEET SHOULD BE CLOSE

Coach Lawson Robertson, of the University of Pennsylvania track team, and thirty of his trusty hirelings (meaning athletes) left this morning at 9:30 for Ithaca, the scene of the dual track meet between the Red and Blue and Cornell tomorrow afternoon. This is the largest number of trackmen to make such a trip in many years.

Robbie thinks that if he gets over the meet with Cornell with a victory half of the fight for the intercollegiate crown. After defeating Dartmouth in a closely contested meet by two-thirds of a point and crushing Harvard, the Red and Blue team has visions of winning the intercollegiate. Of course, Yale is the main hurdle to be overcome, so far as the East is concerned, with California in the West as the other leg-pain contender. A win over Cornell, ac-ording to many of the members of the Red and Blue varsity track team, means that the edge for the intercollegiate lies in favor of Penn.

To defeat Cornell is not the easiest task in the world. Coach Monkley is known as one of the finest men in the track game and seldom does he show his hand until the day of the meet. In Captain John McDermott, a veteran distance runner of before the war, he has one of the best milers in the country.

Penn is worrying little over McDermott because of Larry Brown. The Red and Blue lad is going better this year than ever in his life before and the depositors are willing to wager almost anything that McDermott finishes second to him in the mile. In a trial spin last week for five laps Brown ran the mile in 4 minutes and 28 seconds, brilliant time, when it is considered that he had another quarter mile to run.

Speedy Sprinters

Davidson and Robbie are exceptional sprinters, but Robbie hopes to break up the Cornellian hopes by winning with Bob Maxam and Boots Lever. Last Saturday afternoon Lever won the 100 in 10.7 seconds in the Columbia-Dartmouth meet and since that time in practice drills has done even time on several occasions. Maxam, who finished second in the 100, is expected to win the 220. He captured the event in Gotham with Lever in second place. McFadden and Altman may come in under the barrier and make it a clean sweep in the sprints.

Join and Smith, the former the sensational freshman of last year, are carried to face the best of Penn's team in the quarter. Robbie will start Earl Eby, Gill and probably Larry Brown in this event. Maxam will not run in the quarter. Eby, who has been showing more speed in the quarter this year than last, is also expected to run the 880 along with George Meredith and Ed McMullin, the latter one and two in the meet last Saturday. Opposed to the Red and Blue trio will be Irish and two others from Cornell, at present unnamed. Irish is a capable half miler and should push Eby to the end for victory.

Another Wait in Hurdles

Bonsall and Brown, the Ithacan trackmen, will force Don Head to do better than he has done at any time this year. Both men were members of the Harvard cross-country team last fall. John Watt, a brother of the athlete who set up the world's record in the 1920 relays in the 440, only to have it broken last month by Andy Beach, of Notre Dame, and Archibald are the hurdlers at Lake Cayuga. They will have Smalley, Smith and Jack as their Red and Blue opponents.

Mayer, the football star, is entered in the hammer throw and pole vault for the Ithacans, with Ramsey, third in the intercollegiate last year, in the high jump. The last named cleared the bar at 6 feet 1 inch last year, which is several inches better than any of the Penn men have been able to do so far this year since the illness of Bill Reynolds. In the field events, Robertson has entered Bartels, Frank Thurman, Foley, Nichols, Woodside, Temple, Nott, Nichols, Winsor and Griffin.

The baseball team left yesterday afternoon for Burlington, Vt., where they meet the University of Vermont this afternoon. Sixteen players made the trip. Danny McNeill, because of exhaustion, did not leave with the team. Mel Schriver will play shortstop on the trip, which includes a game with Dartmouth tomorrow afternoon. Jim Canady will be seen at second.

The lacrosse team is due for a double header tomorrow afternoon with the team playing Erasmus Hall before the track meet between the Penn and Cornell freshmen teams. After the meet the varsity track riders and Stevens play a league game.

Harvard Track Team Picked

Cambridge, Mass., May 12.—The Harvard track team has picked a squad of twenty-one men to compete for the crown in the annual track meet with Yale, scheduled for tomorrow at New Haven. Ned Gourdin, entered in the sprint, head of the squad, which will leave this afternoon, jump and shotput, and George Kroness, includes Captain Dennis O'Connell, Miller, Olympic pole vaulter.

Wall Street Doesn't Fix My Price

It's a lot of fun to do business when you've got the right policy and the best quality at the lowest price.

You remember last September, I anticipated a drop in Fur—dropped my price—swallowed my loss—and sold at cost,—and every link in this chain was strained to handle the crowds.

At that time, Hatter's Fur was quoted at $13.50 a pound. You can buy it now for $3.75 a pound. Before the War it cost $1.50 a pound,—and I don't blame the Rabbits for the jump from $1.50 to $13.50. I think it was Wall Street's influence on the Fur Market.

But Wall Street doesn't run my business, or make my hats. While Wall Street was busy manufacturing rumors, I was busy manufacturing hats. While Wall Street was full of gloom, my stores were full of Happiness and Hats. When I took the lid off the price, the sales jumped up.

And the same thing happened in Straw hats. The break in the price of Rabbit Fur in Australia last Fall was followed by a slump in the straw braid market in Japan this Spring.

When I started to make straw hats for this season, the best quality of straw braid was selling at $1.10, and a number of manufacturers bought at that price. I knew the market would break, and waited until it dropped to 40c., and then jumped in and bought more as it went lower.

So don't blame the retailers around town who are charging all kinds of prices for the Quality that I am selling at $2.85. They're not profiteers,—they're simply victims of early buying. They bought at the top. I bought at the bottom. And my good fortune is yours.
