

JUST GOSSIP ABOUT PEOPLE

Nancy Wynne Talks of the Flower Market Which Opens Today in Rittenhouse Square—She Tells of a Conversation at the Circus

I GUESS it's because I fussed about the weather yesterday that it has been so nice and clear since. I have you ever noticed, when you get yourself all dressed up and bothered to death about something, all of a sudden it goes away, that something, and then you are so ashamed you made a fuss over so small a thing? Well, anyway, I do hope it will be another beautiful day for the Flower Market, for that is being held today in Rittenhouse square, and it certainly does look attractive up there. All the bright striped awnings there were being put up yesterday afternoon and the Garden Clubs has a darling house, with window boxes and little gate-way entrances and all sorts of odd and attractive contrivances.

There is one very interesting feature about this year's market, and that is that enough money will be made to put up the drinking fountain which, I understand, has long been the dream of Mrs. E. K. Price, who is the chairwoman of the late Mrs. George Gordon Meade Large, who started the annual affair, resigned from that position and went to live in Princeton. Mrs. Large was one of our most beautiful women, and her death, which occurred some four or five years ago, was a sorrow to the many persons who knew and loved her.

The fountain, which will be ready for use today, was designed by Dr. Paul Cret. It is simple in line, but very beautiful, as all simple things are, and will fill a long-felt want, not only for the children but the grown-ups, too, who use it during the hot days of summer.

ANOTHER novelty will be the Marriage, which will be shown under the direction of Mrs. Albert B. Paul. Mrs. Tom Ashton has a beautiful and Judy show. Mrs. Charles Starr has a frightfully busy time of it. She is in charge of the garage which Mrs. McFadden lends to the committee each year. There has to be a place to deliver goods for the Market, you know, and this garage is it. Mrs. Starr makes a careful list of donations and sends the various things to various booths by the Scouts, who are always entertained at luncheon by Mrs. Stotesbury.

A booth that will be very interesting is the one gotten up by the women of the Overseas Legion. They are selling all sorts of things, and the injured overseas, Mrs. Braden Kyle and Miss Sophie Caldwell are in the head of this booth. It is all very interesting, and I do intend to spend much time there today.

Did you know that the invitations for the Porter-Coxe wedding reception, to be held at the home of Mrs. Porter-Coxe, will be sent out today? Catherine and Andy are to be married at 4 o'clock with only the two families and bridal party present, and then there is to be a large reception at the home of Mrs. Porter-Coxe. I will wager that Catherine will make an attractive bride. She has such beautifully modeled features and a bright, intelligent face. Catherine is a sister of Ruth Stokes, you know. You remember what an attractive bride Ruth was, but Catherine is fairer and slightly more than Ruth. I think the wedding is to take place on June 16, just four weeks from today.

IF IT not wonderful the things one hears at the circus? I have been laughing to myself ever since attending one day last week over a small, golden-haired young girl, who was near me and who was enraptured over something. She was with a very nice-looking young man, and they were having a wonderful time watching the lion cubs play. This was before the circus left the city, and then they stopped in front of the Royal Bengal Tiger's cage, and at that moment his Royal Highness looked out upon the crowd and emitted a most horrible roar. "Oh," said the golden-haired girl, "isn't he sad? Poor thing, wouldn't it be awful to be a Royal Bengal Tiger and be put in a cage and look on at all these nice people who just hated like that and can't be able to do anything but wail?" Then, when her companion giggled, she added indignantly, "Well, you wouldn't like it if you had to see people who hated you and have them throw peanuts in your eyes, and you were just to eat the people and not the peanuts." Poor thing, said she, "I do feel sorry for you, and I'm going to always be sorry, too."
