CONTEST BICYCLES MEAN GREAT TIMES

Quick Trips to Country Only One of Many Treats in Store

EVERY ONE IS TRYING

It was hot as could be. The sun beat down just as though it was trying to bake the street, and there was not even a bit of paper stirring in the gutter to show there was a breeze anywhere around.

A scorching day, that's what it was. But the two boys standing on the porch of the house in West Philadelphia didn't seem to mind. They were very busy, in fact. One of them was tying up a good-sized package of lunch and the other was screwing on the top of a vacuum bottle.

Mind the post? These boys? No sure. Right at the edge of the curb stood two shining new bicycles. Quicker than it takes to tell the boys had shouted good-by to their mother, jumped on their bikes and away they rode!

Off for a day in the country! Out of the heat and dust of city streets into the cool, shady lanes of green, where the breeze blows back your hair as you whiz along. Like us not in an hour or so the boys would be marking their bikes under a convenient tree. Then they would stretch themselves out under another. There might be a swimming hole near by, there might be fishing—

Is this a fairy story? Indeed it is not! It's just a picture of the wonderful chance the PUBLIC LEDGER is offering to 5000 enterprising boys and girls in Philadelphia. Any one can go a riding in the country this summer.

Five thousand $45 Black Beauty bicycles are offered free to boys and girls who succeed in getting thirty-five subscriptions to the Morning, Evening or Sunday Ledger.

The news has spread like wildfire, of course. No doubt you have heard about it before, but perhaps you didn't realize just how easy it was to take advantage of it and get the bicycle. You just ought to take a run down to the Circulation Department of the PUBLIC LEDGER Building, at Independence Square, and then you'd find out—from the other boys and girls who are taking part in the contest.

Entire Family Eligible Yesterday one boy ran in for his subscription blanks, shouting, "Say, I've got ten presents already!" Won't a bicycle now, will it? It's as easy as pie. Even the girls say that. And Before McMenomay disappeared a week ago he drew $4000 from a savings fund. He had planned to use the money to furnish his home.

Before McMenomay was employed by a jewelry firm, but because of lack of business had been working only three days a week. His employer told his relatives that for several days before he disappeared he had seemed depressed.
