

THIEF IN HOUSE
OUTWITS POLICE

Man Hides While Five Patrolmen Search Home, Then Walks Away When They Leave
WAS SEEN BY NEIGHBOR

A cool thief who did a disappearing act and outwitted a squad of five patrolmen, robbed the home of Oscar E. King, 4561 North Seventeenth street, yesterday afternoon, while the family was out.

Small articles of jewelry and silver were taken, but Mr. King has not yet determined the exact value of the stolen goods.

Mr. King looks on the affair humorously, especially the circumstances surrounding the thief's escape from the police.

"One of our neighbors," he said today, "saw a man climbing up to a second-story window late in the afternoon and enter my house, while my family was out. She sent in a call to the thirty-fifth district police station a few blocks away, and they sent a squad of five patrolmen to my house."

The patrolmen entered the house, searched the first floor and the cellar, went upstairs, examined every room, but found no one, and they came down and told the neighbors, who had gathered, that there was no one in the house.

"There was where the amusing part comes in, about an hour later, the same neighbor who had first given the alarm saw the same man who had seen enter the house, come leisurely out, and before she could cry out disappear down the street.

"At first we couldn't find a thing which was the kind of things which they were lying around in easy reach, and he had evidently not taken the time to search drawers or cupboards. The amount made no estimate yet."

"The question is: Where was that man hiding while the five policemen searched the house?"

LEIB HAS HARD NIGHT
Former Political Boss Paces Cell Until Dawn

The first night in the penitentiary was a hard one for William S. Leib, former political boss of Schuylkill County. He was placed in the quarantine section of the Eastern Penitentiary, known to the inmates as the "flap-jack," and was heard pacing the narrow confines of his cell all night.

As soon as the quarantine period is completed, Leib will probably be placed at work in the office alongside of Charles Toomey and Ralph Meyer, who are both parole clerks. This will make it so that he will not have to be locked every afternoon at 4:30, as the other prisoners do. It will also give him the run of the penitentiary at all hours of the day. These are the only things that can be considered privileges that the former boss will enjoy while a guest of Warden McKenty.

DOCTOR WINS NEW TRIAL
Was Ordered to Pay Chaffeur $3000 in Balm Suit

Dr. David S. O'Donnell, fifty-second street and Haverford avenue, against whom a verdict of $3000 for alienation of affections was recently given, has been granted a new trial. The damages were awarded Walter Van Sant, a chauffeur.

Mrs. Van Sant testified at the trial that an intimacy had existed between her and the physician. Dr. O'Donnell will be placed on trial at the June term of court.

It was shown at yesterday's hearing that though Magistrate Wagner at the first hearing May 2 set O'Donnell's bail at $25,000, the actual equity represented in the properties provided by the bondsmen did not amount to $7000.

CAMDEN SENIORS TRICKED
Graduates of Last Two Years Spoil Flag Raising

Squaring accounts for a similar trick played upon them, Camden High School graduates of 1919 and 1920 cut the flag-raising ceremony, and thus spoiled the new graduating class from having its flag-raising.

On the pole the seniors found the inscription "1919-1920 High School Graduates." Undaunted, the seniors unfurled the flag, and the ceremony proceeded. Miss Grace Frazee, president of the senior class, made the principal address.

In 1919 and 1920 students took down the flag and hoisted crepe in its place.
