

SOME RUN, SOME WALK, OTHERS CUSS

Rival Clocks Face Each Other Unflinchingly, Refusing to Give a Minute

CONFUSION AT R. R. STATION

Varying emotions stirred travelers who approached the central railroad stations today. Those who were running walked to a walk. Others who were strolling came to a dead stop. And still others, to be candid, swore. It was all due to two brands of time—Eastern Standard and Daylight Saving.

Those who were running walked to a walk. Others who were strolling came to a dead stop. And still others, to be candid, swore. It was all due to two brands of time—Eastern Standard and Daylight Saving.

Some of the passengers turned and aired their views about railroads generally and railroad clocks in particular. Of course, some were blamed, so they made an offensive toward the Bureau of Information and vented their wrath upon him.

Water Amodeo, in charge of the bureau at the Terminal, is a pleasant man of rather slim build. He has remarkable patience, as well as a large fund of information.

"What time does the 10 o'clock train leave for New York?" asked a broad-shouldered man in threatening tones. "Eleven o'clock," replied Amodeo pleasantly.

"How do you get that way?" growled the brassy customer. "Do I hear you correctly or am I sober?"

"I'm sure I don't know," said the information chief. "There is a line at the bottom of the time table which explains matters very clearly."

"This line explains that trains scheduled to leave at 10 o'clock Eastern standard time would leave one hour later."

"Then the time table is a liar," growled the patron. "Not exactly," argued Amodeo. "And the railroad's a liar by the way."

"The two clocks faced each other bravely. Neither would give a minute. Many persons from the rural sections were puzzled. A zib, well-dressed traveling salesman endeavored to explain the difference in time. "It's all very simple," he said. "You know we have the Western time while traveling on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul to Chicago and to Pittsburgh. Then when we get to Pittsburgh we get the Central Western Time. This time holds until we get to Philadelphia, when we work according to the Philadelphia daylight-saving time. When we get to New York it's the same, when we go to Boston we have the Eastern Time."

"I suppose if you started for Portland, Me., this morning, you would get there last night, eh?" "Read the newspapers," chimed in a man who had been listening. "and you'll know just where you're at."

Scenes at Broad Street Station There were similar scenes at Broad Street Station. The clock outside the station absolutely denied the brand of time offered by the City Hall clock. The two clocks faced each other bravely. Neither would give a minute.

Had Only One Drink, Is Paul's Defense Continued from Page One around it. Then Hasset jumped into the car, took the wheel, and drove it to the nearest patrol box.

Says Paul Attached Him Hasset testified he asked Mr. Paul to remain in the car when the latter tried to get out of the car. Mr. Paul attached him when the patrolman tried to enforce the request. The two wrestled, falling to the road, and then Hasset used his blackknock on the prisoner. He was taken to the police station, then to the Bryn Mawr Hospital, where a slight cut in the head was closed.

Dr. Norman W. Lound, staff physician at the hospital, was called as a witness today. "Was Mr. Paul drunk?" he was asked. "I noticed the odor of liquor on his breath, but I couldn't say that he was drunk," replied the physician. "You see, I don't know how many drinks he had."

Captain Donaghy of the Lower Merion police, then spoke up. "Dr. Lound," he said seriously, "is a fact question, may I ask if you ever were drunk yourself?" "I can't say that I ever was," confessed the physician with a smile.

Objected to As Expert "Then," said Donaghy, "I insist that you're not a competent witness. A man who's never been drunk himself can't tell when another man is in that condition. The courtroom rocked at Donaghy's sally.

Mr. Paul, on the stand in his own behalf, denied that he had heard the patrolman's order to stay, that he had been intoxicated; that he had used profane language and that he had tried to strike Hasset.

"The thing I objected to," he said, "was his trying to force me back into my machine. Then I wrestled with him. I didn't even know I was under arrest."

Mr. Paul looked upon the case for his encounter with the patrolman's sally, except for a patch of plaster which he had.

MAN SHOTS WIFE AND THEN HIMSELF

Camden Storekeeper Wounds Sleeping Woman—Tries Suicide as She Phones Police

BOTH TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Charles Simon, thirty years old, who conducts a candy and cigar store at 2330 Westfield avenue, Camden, shot his wife with the pistol on the night of the 4th and then turned the pistol on himself. Husband and wife are in the Cooper Hospital, where it is said they probably will recover.

The sound of the shot and the pain of the wound brought Mrs. Simon staggering to her feet. With blood streaming down her face she groped her way to the telephone and called the police. There was another shot almost instantly, and she saw her husband fall.

The police found both husband and wife semi-conscious. The woman, who was lying on the floor near the telephone, was taken to the hospital and rushed to the emergency ward.

After their wounds had been dressed Mrs. Simon recovered sufficiently to tell the police what had happened. She said she was unable to give a reason for her husband's act. "We had no quarrel," she said, "and there was no hint from him that he intended to do anything."

"Recently he has been acting strangely. He was extremely nervous and thought every one was against him. I don't believe he was responsible for what he did."

EATS NAILS A LA SPAGHETTI But Tom Blocks Traffic and Now He's Gnawing Cell Bars

A doctor told Thomas Williams, 812 Lombard street, his section required a public demonstration of his unusual appetite that caused Williams' arrest this morning in his home. He is now in jail eating his nails.

Williams had a long of long nails which he was eating, spaghetti fashion, on the corner. First he ate the nails and then he ate the spaghetti. The doctor said he was not an "ale," as it came from a bottle and was dark brown in color. Its odor was in violation of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Patrolman Dodson, of the Twelfth and Pine streets station, arrested Williams, so that the street cars might run. His auto was stretched across the street, and then some.

Magistrate O'Brien doubled Williams' bail, but the prisoner declared he was not taking it. He grabbed a pen from the desk in the station house and ate it as though it were a plum. Some one offered him a pen and then he ate that, too.

Williams was placed in a cell and Turney Sam Mason watched him to see that he didn't bite the bars in halves.

ARRESTED WRONG MEN Hold-Up Victims Taken into Custody on Disorderly Conduct Charge

Paul Shurer, 816 Columbia avenue, an overseas veteran, and John Phillips, 218 Columbia street, arrested at 10 o'clock this morning at Tenth street and Columbia avenue, were discharged today by Magistrate Renshaw, when it was found that they were innocent of the disorderly conduct, they had been victims of a gang of hold-up men.

Detectives Hanson and Boyle testified that they saw Shurer and Phillips on Columbia avenue early this morning when they heard a noise and, looking down Columbia avenue, saw a free-for-all fight in progress.

When they reached the scene they found Phillips aiding Shurer from a plate-glass window, which he had broken. At today's hearing, Phillips and Shurer testified they were waiting for a trolley car when seven men attacked them. Harry Kohler, owner of the shop in front of which the fight took place, failed to collect damages for his broken window.

AUTO CLIMBS DOORSTEP Speeding Car Leaves Street—Two Occupants Arrested

A speeding automobile suddenly left the tracks on Twelfth street this morning, and started to climb the front steps of the house at 1024 North Twelfth street, but as the front door was closed it could not get up.

The car was still wanting impatiently on the steps when Patrolman Hanson arrived. He was wondering how the machine intended to reach such a high point, when two men crawled from under it. They gave their names as John Kelleher, thirty-nine and Brown Street, and William Moore, thirty-five and Columbia avenue. Neither was injured.

Hanson happened to remember that a car going at a little less than a mile a minute had passed him on the street. A minute had passed him on the street. Kelleher and Moore were arrested, charged with reckless driving.

CHAMBER IN NEW HOME Offices Now Situated at Twelfth and Walnut Streets

The Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce today moved into its new home at the northeast corner of Twelfth and Walnut streets, the building formerly known as the Merchants' Building and occupied as headquarters for the Division of Eastern Pennsylvania.

The old rooms of the "chamber of commerce" at the corner of Twelfth and Walnut streets have been given up, and all the activities of the body will now be directed from the new headquarters. There are just enough offices to go around in the new building, which is still in the hands of the painters and decorators.

NO BAN ON BARE KNEES

Ventnor, However, Doesn't Fear Invasion by One-Piece Bathers Atlantic City, June 6.—(By A. P.)—Ventnor City, the fashionable summer home of hundreds of Philadelphians, does not fear an invasion of bare-legged girls clad in one-piece bathing suits as a result of the edict of the Atlantic City authorities banning the immodest garb from the beaches here, according to Mayor Amor Brehan.

Invitation of Mayor Crissey, of Somers Point, for men and women to which to dip in negligible attire to bathe in the brackish waters of Great Egg Harbor Bay has caused a furore, and the suggestion that other resorts could well come to the attitude of other resort officials.

"We have never had the question raised here," said Mayor Brehan today, "and inasmuch as Ventnor is a home section it is hardly likely that a matter will come before an official. When it does it will be time enough to act. In the meantime Ventnor bathers will continue to enjoy their city unmolested."

"We have never banned the one-piece suit and bare knees the Mayor's remarks are taken to mean that it will not do so this year."

TO EXAMINE NEWHALL Slayer of Miss Howard Watched Carefully to Prevent Suicide

Lester B. Newhall, the twenty-one-year-old murderer of Josephine Howard, will undergo a thorough examination at the hands of Dr. Frederick C. Baldi, prison physician, today. Since he was received in Moyamensing Prison Saturday afternoon, the youthful slayer has not uttered one word except to ask if he could see his sister.

Following the request of Police Surgeon Dr. John P. Egan, the prison authorities placed Newhall in the hospital with a special man on watch as a precaution against any attempt at suicide. Newhall might make an attempt at suicide.

Today Detectives Belshaw and Mulgrew questioned every one who has any knowledge of the shooting of the girl. They will probably secure statements from witnesses who will be used at Newhall's further hearing on June 24.

In the meantime District Attorney Raitt will probably question a representative of the case and it is quite likely that an Assistant District Attorney will be on hand when Newhall is arraigned for his further hearing.

COMPETITIVE DRILL OF I. O. O. F. TODAY

Visitors Will Be Addressed by Governor and Mayor in Metropolitan Opera House

REBEKAH'S INITIATION

A competitive drill of the Cantons of Patriarchs Militant this afternoon and an anniversary reception in the Metropolitan Opera House tonight, to be addressed by Governor Sprout and Mayor Moore, are the outstanding features of the third day of the week-long anniversary celebration of the Grand Lodge of the I. O. O. F. who are holding the ninety-eighth annual session of the Grand Lodge.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon the Rebekah Assembly, the women's auxiliary of the I. O. O. F. who are holding their thirty-second annual session in conjunction with the parent order, will hold a special session for the conferring of degrees in Columbia Hall, Broad and Oxford streets.

Ranking in importance with the flashing color of the drill on the Parkway will be the gathering at the Metropolitan tonight, when virtually all visiting Odd Fellows and their families will gather to hear the addresses of welcome to State and city delivered by the Governor and the Mayor.

Responses will be made by Frank Shannon, grand master of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania, and Anna J. Cline, president of the Rebekah Assembly of Pennsylvania. Bishop Rhineland will deliver the invocation. Other speakers will be Joseph Oliver, grand sire; Charles C. Bulky, grand warden and chairman of the Executive Committee; and other officers of the Sovereign Grand Lodge.

The musical part of the program will include singing by children from four orphan homes, selections by the Sunbury Orphan Home Band, chorus by the Aquetong Glee Club, led by Webster Grim, P. G. and singing by the audience.

Loyalty to Christianity and to American ideals was pledged anew last night by the Independent Order of Odd Fellows at its service in the flag-draped Metropolitan Opera House. In the impressive service the spirit of religion and fraternity was beautifully blended and struck a high note in the jubilee celebration which began on Saturday and will end Friday night.

An appealing feature of the convalescence appeared yesterday when 150 children from orphan homes, conducted by the order, came to the city. As guests of the convalescence they will be given a week of sightseeing here and in Atlantic City. The orphans from Sunbury brought their own band.

Appeal for Fraternalism Democracy was declared to be the cornerstone of "the fraternity of Americanism" in the anniversary address delivered by M. Clyde Kelly, member of Congress from the thirtieth district of this State.

"America is built on the ideal of fraternity, fellowship, friendship and brotherhood," said Mr. Kelly. "These are the very structure and heart of Americanism. With all its mistakes the people's faith will go on ruling. By mutual aid and trust the good Samaritan idea of fraternity is carried out in government."

Clean in the Chestnut St. MACDONALD & CAMPBELL Shops

Among the shops on Chestnut Street, that of MacDonald & Campbell is one of the most noted. The variety and quality of men's apparel which they sell for every occasion—street, dress, sports wear—is remarkable.

Delora Seagan THE other day I met a friend on the street and I remarked on the charming little gray Georgette dress she was wearing. It was a beautiful shade and most becoming. "Don't you remember this?" she said. "It is that old white dress that I had last summer. I had it dyed at Barg's." White Georgette, in fact, all kinds of white silks, you know will get yellow after being worn for a season. You will, therefore, be glad to know how successful Barg's, Cleaners and Dyers, 1113 Chestnut street, have been in dyeing dresses which otherwise would have had to be discarded. Men as well as women have found the work done by Barg's perfectly satisfactory. It is surprising how new they can make your old things look.

EVERYTHING to assist the June bride who is contemplating keeping house—from the smallest kitchen utensils to refrigerators, washing machines, etc.—may be found at the store of J. The girl who receives one of these gifts will be proud to compare it with any other, for she will know that she possesses the finest ring in the world. Bailey's also have a wonderful selection of wedding rings. The most beautiful, but there are many other styles, both in platinum and gold, which are very charming. HERE is a surprise for my readers. I discovered on the second floor of the Electrical Shop of Walker & Kepler, 531 Chestnut Street, a descriptions—table lamps, lamps of all kinds and etc., of such variety of color as will surely delight you. The fact that the design and quality of these lamps are found in the most exclusive shops and are sold at astonishingly low prices. Here, then, is your opportunity to select a wedding gift for the bride, and I will suggest their charming little Bridal Lamp. It is at the remarkably low price of $6. THE CHESTNUT STREET ASSOCIATION
