Brookline, Pa., Army Officer TRAPPED BY BLAZE

Jumps Into Blanket Safety Net When Porter Street Home Catches Fire

FLAMES DAMAGE STORE dashed upstairs to the bedside of her fiance, whom she had not seen for

Mrs. Esther Fabrikant leaped into a safety net made from a blanket when

The woman was poised on a window all on the second floor and was just about to leap when her husband, Samnel Fabrikant, returned after summon.

A neighbor ran out with a blanket and helped to hold it taut as Mrs. Fabrikant jumped. The improvised net broke her fall. The woman had been Mayor Will Address Graduates of ill and had returned from a hospital last

The fire started in the basement and spread rapidly to a grocery store on the first floor. Mr. and Mrs. Fabrikant were asleep on the second floor.

The fire was sweeping through the procesy stock and the flames were atthe stairway when the smoke into the bedroom above. Mrs. Fabrikant awoke, coughing.

She aroused her husband, who pulled on a pair of trousers and ran from the room to summon help. The stairway from the private entrance which, filled with smoke, was still passable and Fabrikant rushed down to the street. Meanwhile, his wife had put on a kimono and thrust her feet into slippers. She, too, went to the head of the stairs, but she became terrified by the swirling smoke and the snap and crackle A wave of fire billowed up the stairway as she paused in panic. Then she way as she paused in panic. Then she ran back into her room, raised a window and climbed up on the sill.

As she nerved herself for the leap to the sidewalk Mrs. Fakrikant saw her husband running back to the burning building. He had sent in an alarm. Faribkant saw her at the same moment and cautioned her not to jump.

and cautioned her not to jump.

When firemen arrived a minute or two later the flames had ruined the grocery stock and heavily damaged the fixtures. The loss is estimated at $1000 approximately.
