WISTER RESCUES BOY

Author's Son Dives Twice into River in Bay State

Owen J. Wister, son of Owen Wister, author, and a Harvard over-seer, yesterday risked his life to save fourteen-year-old John McGish, of Allston, when he jumped into the Charles River and after two dives brought the exhausted youth to the surface and then to the shore.

Wister, who is a member of the sophomore class in Harvard College, was rowing on the Charles, McGish with a companion had swum from the Allston side of the river to Cambridge and in returning, was caught in the weeds under eight feet of water.

Wister had to dive twice before he could locate and extricate McGish.

The youngster was taken to the Cambridge Hospital where after an hour he was able to leave for home.

ADVERTISES FOR A WIFE.

"Lonely Philadelphian" Prefers a Poor Country Girl for Helpmate

Declaring he is a lonely Philadelphian looking for a life partner and helpmate, Lee D. Hartz, giving his address as 230 South Seventh street, has selected Shamokin as the most likely place in which to find the girl of his desires. He isn't particular as to age. Any one from eighteen to thirty-five will do, provided she is Protestant, a Christian and poor.

His advertisement, placed with a paper, says:

"A Philadelphia gentleman of middle age, left alone in the world and holding a steady position, is looking for a poor Protestant girl to be his wife and helpmate, to come to Philadelphia to live. Any age from eighteen to thirty-five will be satisfactory. One who will appreciate a man of sweet and loving disposition. No need to be backward. No washing. Only light housekeeping. Easy thing. I do not smoke, chew or drink. You will find me a straightforward man. Now, if some dear girl, a Christian, wants me, do write and send photo and I will send mine."

The offices of the Farm Journal are located at 230 South Seventh street and no Lee D. Hartz is listed in the City Directory.

MISSING BOY IN HOSPITAL

After Two Days Mother Finds Him Injured by Auto and Unconscious

Joseph Belton, sixteen years old, of 658 Sarah street, this city, was found yesterday in Cooper Hospital, Camden, by his mother, who had been distracted because of his absence from home.

On Sunday the boy, while riding a bicycle, was struck by an automobile driven by Charles Rosenberg, of 3706 Evans street, this city, at Watson town on the White Horse pike, Camden County. In an unconscious condition he was taken to Cooper Hospital. He is suffering from concussion of the brain and is still unconscious.

The mother yesterday asked Camden police headquarters to try to locate her son and was apprised that an unknown boy was in Cooper Hospital.

BLAZE FRIGHTENS WOMAN

Workmen Rush into House and Throw Out Pan of Burning Grease

Four workmen ran into the home of Mrs. Mary Auerechek, 204 North Hobinson street, this morning and threw out a pan of burning grease which had caught fire from a gas stove and frightened Mrs. Auerechek out of the house.

A string of clanging fire engines summoned by some one who heard the woman's screams arrived in time to find the fire out and Mrs. Auerechek back at her stove cooking.

J. N. SNELLENBURG AIDS FAIR

Sends $120 for Twelve Memberships in Sequel-centennial

One of the largest single applications for membership in the Sequel-centennial Exposition Association was made today by Joseph N. Snellenburg, who sent a check for $120. This was for membership for himself, his family and members of his firm, totaling $120 in all. The annual dues in the association are $10 a year.

Edward Robins, secretary pro tem, of the organization, said this morning many applications for membership had been received, despite the fact no effort had been made to canvass for them. All the applications so far received have been voluntary. Mr. Robins said there is a plan already under way to start a concerted drive to persuade as many citizens of Philadelphia as possible to become members.

SHOT IN FIGHT OVER CARDS

Man in Hospital in Serious Condition—Police Seek Assailant

Cornelius Di Emel, of 1114 Hall street, was shot in the breast and is in a serious condition at St. Agnes' Hospital following a quarrel over cards in the home of Joseph Reale, Trian street near Thirteenth, at 10:30 o'clock last night.

The police are searching for Guteno Ruggieri, address unknown, who is alleged to have shot Di Emel.

Joseph Ineca, Ninth street below Catharine; Antonio Riccardi, Catharine street near Ninth, and Reale were arrested by the police of the Fifteenth street and Snyder avenue station, and are being held as material witnesses.

HELD AS PURSE-SNATCHER

Woman's Screams Cause Arrest of Man on Street

Benjamin Treasky, twenty-six years old, who gave his address as 741 Watkins street, was held in $800 bail for the Grand Jury by Magistrate Renshaw on a charge of snatching a pocketbook from Miss Jeanette Landberger, 2321 Boekius street, at Fifth and Chestnut streets.

Miss Landberger's screams attracted the attention of pedestrians who aided her in holding Treasky near the Bourse Building on Fourth street until Traffic Officer Hermer came up.

SUSPECT HAD LONG DIRK

Man Nabbed by Patrolman When Alleged "Lookouts" Flee

After two alleged "lookouts" had fled from a patrolman early today a third man was discovered crouching behind a gate, police say, in the rear of the tailor shop of Osborne & Osborne, 120 South Sixteenth street.

Patrolman Cummings of the Fifteenth and Locust streets station, covered the man with a revolver and took a long dirk from him. At the station house the prisoner said he was Frank Blanco, twenty-four years old, no home.

About an hour later Patrolman Cummings saw a horse and wagon driven up Moravian street in the rear of the tailor shop. He questioned the driver, and when he could not account for his presence there at that hour, placed him under arrest.

The second prisoner said he was Leo Froner, Sixth street near Washington avenue. Police say Froner appeared to know Blanco.

THE MODERN SHEEPSKIN

The diploma which the college graduate receives with his degree is a "sheepskin" in name only. Long ago vellum [which is more apt to be calfskin than sheepskin anyway] became too scarce and costly to use for this purpose. Today the right to inscribe A. B. or A. M. after one's name is conveyed by an instrument engraved upon CRANE'S Parchment, which looks the part and rises to the occasion in every way.

This is but another of the many unusual uses to which CRANE'S Bond Papers, on account of their strength and fine appearance, are put.
