

SEA GIRL CAMP NOT LOAFERS' PARADISE

800 Officers and Men Kept on the Jump by Snappy Martial Training

BORDEN'S DISCIPLINE STRICT

Special Dispatch to Evening Public Ledger
Camp Edwards, Sea Girl, June 9.—Progressing into the more advanced stages of their instruction work, the 800 officers and men at camp here are finding that this is purely a working-man's camp. They were out on the field for several hours yesterday, going through preliminary and fundamental stages of the training course, and today's program called for even more strenuous activities.

Brigadier General Howard S. Borden, the camp commander, at a conference with the officers and men late yesterday, discussed plans for rapid development of the State's National Guard. He expressed hope for friendly unity, but left no question as to his strict views on discipline.

General Borden attended the military ceremonies with some degree of discomfort. Soon after the day's work was done he left for Red Bank, where he submitted to the surgeon's knife in the treatment of a number of boils. Lieutenant Colonel Edward B. Stone, of the Third Infantry, accompanied the general and was a dinner guest at his Oceanic home.

The company, made up of officers and three of the infantry companies, went through extended order drills, arm signaling, bayonet exercises and scouting and patrolling work yesterday morning and Company D was given sand-table instruction and extended order drills. Company C engaged in a study of the Browning machine gun. In the afternoon Company E, Infantry, took its turn at the sand tables.

The officers, company and infantry Companies D and F worked out an advance guard problem and continued the bayonet exercises and patrol and scouting work. Company B, which is made up of cavalry, engineer, medical and signal troops, was divided according to its respective branches and given instruction by the officers of those different branches.

List Eligibles for City Jobs
The Civil Service Commission issued an eligible list for the position of assistant superintendent of the garbage disposal plant. Frank A. Yabson, the present provisional appointee, was the high man. The job pays $250 a month. The commission also made public a list of eligibles for the position of secretary of the Bureau of Fire. The high man was Joseph J. Closius, 2049 North Eighth street. The present provisional appointee, Charles J. Webster, 3830 Susquehanna avenue, was seventh on the list.

DELAWARE COUNTY FIREMEN IN TESTS

Kokomo, Ind., June 9.—(By A. P.)—Orland A. Somers, aged seventy-eight, former National Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, and one of the most prominent Civil War veterans in the country, died at his home here yesterday, following an illness of several months.

REJECTS ASSIGNED COUNSEL

"They Always Lose Cases," Defendant Tells Judge: Wins Own Suit
Harrisburg, June 9.—When Judge Wickersham yesterday offered to assign counsel to Frank Hoster the latter refused legal aid, saying that assigned counsel always lose cases for their clients anyway. He was up for non-support and he argued his case so convincingly, contending his wife was not entitled to any of his money, that the court threw out the case.

"Thank you, Judge, for the offer, anyway," Hoster said as he departed.

CONNECTICUT MAN MURDERED IN BED

Sister of Farmer, Shot by Unknown Assassin, Also Wounded

STATE POLICE SEEK SLAYER

By the Associated Press
Norfolk, Conn., June 9.—State police have taken up the investigation into the murder of Joseph M. Parsons, a dairy farmer, who was shot to death in bed in his farmhouse in the Littlefield Hills at South Norfolk early yesterday. Miss Mary Parsons, sister of the murdered man, is at the home of her mother, with a bullet wound in the face and several teeth missing. Her story of the shooting is virtually the only tangible clue on which to base an inquiry.

The body of Parsons was found by Fred M. Riggs, a neighbor, who called at the house yesterday morning. He found Miss Parsons lying in one room painfully wounded, and then came upon the body of Parsons in his room. There was a bullet hole in his head. After aid had been summoned and Miss Parsons had been revived, she was able to tell the story of the affair. She said she had gone to her brother's house to do some housework, as had been her custom, he being a bachelor, about forty years old, and something of a recluse in his habits. Some time after midnight she said, she was awakened by a shot, and after summoning courage she went into the hall and opened the door of her brother's room. A man was standing beside her brother's bed, she said, and she saw a revolver and flashlight in his hands. He fired at her almost immediately, and her remembrance of events ended there. She described the man as past middle age and having a grayish beard.

Riggs said he found a key in the door on the outside when he made his way into the house. Medical Examiner I. L. Hamant would not comment on Miss Parsons' story. He will conduct an autopsy on the body of Parsons at an undertaking establishment in Winsted today under the direction of Coroner Samuel A. Herman, of Littlefield County. State Policemen Philip Flynn and Walter F. Stiles are working on the mystery. The house had the appearance of having been ransacked.

Friends of the family said that sudden deaths had marked the family history for several years. Parsons' father was killed by a train near Winsted; an uncle was drowned in a pond at Goshen and another uncle committed suicide.

INTERMYER TO ASK U. S. AID IN PROSECUTIONS

Will Urge Attorney General to Assist in Curbing Building Trust
New York, June 9.—(By A. P.)—Samuel Untermyer, counsel of the legislative committee investigating the building trust, announced at today's hearing that he would write Attorney General Daugherty to ask if his department could not spare men and money to prosecute violators of the anti-trust laws.

Mr. Untermyer declared the committee had received no co-operation, although it had turned over to the department early last winter evidence against more than twenty illegal nationwide combinations of manufacturers and dealers in the building trades. He added that he was not criticizing the present Federal authorities.

At the same time Mr. Untermyer called from the committee authority to request State Insurance Superintendent Phillips to make a special investigation of the Prudential Insurance Co. to hear particularly on private holdings of Forest F. Dryden, its president, and the "seeming" mutualization of the company.

The Hen or the Egg?

Shall advertising precede or follow the distribution of a new product?

If you advertise, and as a result, send people in vain quest of your trade-mark to stores not yet carrying your goods—what then?

Or, on the other hand, if the dealer tells your salesmen—"Advertise, first create a call for your goods and then I'll stock them"—what of that?

Protagonists for both sides still argue this question as though there were some easy "Open Sesame" route to national distribution and consumer good will.

There is no royal road to instant success.

If there were, the protection of a great public Good Will trade-mark would be slight and it would be of little value.

What is worth having is worth getting.

But it takes time and money to secure a national following in any line.

Another Ford Reduction

Made Possible by Enormous Production and Sales

It has been the traditional policy of the Ford Motor Company to share with the public the economies resulting from the gigantic production and tremendous sales of Ford Cars.

In keeping with this policy, the Ford Motor Company announces a further reduction in the prices of Ford Cars and Trucks.

The new prices become effective immediately—at a time when the demand is enormous and many thousand unfilled orders are yet to be delivered.

Ford sales have passed the five-million mark—more than all other passenger cars in the United States combined. This unparalleled record explains how it is possible to sell the sturdy, dependable Ford at the present low price level.

At former prices Ford Cars and Trucks were phenomenal values. At the new prices they represent the greatest values in automotive history.

This announcement will unquestionably produce a still greater pressure of orders. The Ford dealers of Philadelphia therefore suggest the immediate placing of orders to insure early delivery.

The price of Fordson Tractors has not been reduced. It must be remembered, however, that the Fordson price was reduced $165.00 on January 28, 1921. The present price is only $625.00, F. O. B. Factory.
