Athletics Fail to Get Homer for First Time This Month as Dick Kerr Applies Coat of Whitewash

OLD-FASHIONED GAME IS WON BY WHITE SOX WITH ONLY 2 HOMERS

Twelve Hits Are Registered by Both Teams and Ball Is Not Knocked Out of Shape—Dick Kerr Is in Great Form and Athletics Receive Coat of Whitewash

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL Sports Editor Evening Public Ledger

OUR A's and the White Sox turned back the calendar yesterday and put on one of those old-fashioned games where the ball is not battered out of shape in every inning. It was a strange sight to see the infielders working without getting burt and the pitchers acting as if they knew what it was all about. Both Kerr and Remmel twirled high-class, brainy ball, and the list of bingles proves it. The Sox connected with seven safeties and the home folks clicked off five. Twelve hits in one game by both teams isn't being done any more, and for that reason vesterday's contest was distinctive

Another interesting feature was the fact that the A's failed to score, This also means that for the first time this month a local here has not connected with a home run. They were cattling them off with amazing regularity until Kerg stepped in, and then the act was all wet. Rommel made a long hit whiel should have been a home run in the fifth inning, but Ed was running on a flat tire and had to pail up at second. That was the only decent sock uncorked by the Macks during the P. M.

Of course, there were some belts into the blenchers. Earl Sheely connecied with a homer with one on in the second and repeated in the sixth. Both wallops landed in the left field stand for the usual and customary four bases. Dick Kerr tripled in the fifth, but outside of that the pitchers had a

Rommel was injured in the second uning when he stopped Ray Schalk's torrid liner which was sailing at his face. Ed put up both hands and knocked down the ball. He spun around a couple of times and then made the putout. The ball hit his bare hand and it was numb for a couple of innings. He was a triffe wild after that, issued several passes, but managed to stick to the

The White Sox played a good game, outting over the punch when needed and acting like anything but a seventh place c'ub. Little Dick Kerr was in rare form and pitched his best game of the season. He also starred at the plate, getting two singles and a double.

ID GLEASON'S athletes now have a better record than the A's A for the month. They came here with one victory and three defeats and left with the score of four and three. Against the Western clubs the A's have won two and lost five. St. Louic is here today for the

Umpires Discuss Some Unusual Plays

BEFORE they left for Washington last night Office Chill and Brick Owens discussed matters pro and con as unpires usually do. They had many things to take up and the discussion was quite interesting.

The debate started when we asked a question about that ruling on Thursday when Eddie Collins, in an effort to get away from a wild pitch, held his but so the ball struck it, then his hand and sailed down to Joe Dugan in fair territory. It was a dead ball, and Ollie Chill was able to convince the A's that such was the chse.

"It was a most unusual play," said Brick Owens, "and I have seen it only a couple of times since I have been umpiring. However, if a batter takes a firm hold on the but at the end of the handle the ball is likely to hit his fingers niter hitting the wood. I am told that players show bloody fingers and try to get to first when the ball slides off the bat and hits them, and the fans razz the unputs because he won't allow it. But it is seldom that the half rolls fair 'Many things come up in ball games," continued the arbiter, "and sometimes one wonders why the players don't notice things more closely. A couple of weeks ago Washington was playing the Yanks and Zachary and Host were going good. Host retired the first three men casily and after two were out in the second the Senators pur on an old-time batting rally. The first four men got clean hits, even Zachary getting a two-bagger. Judge came up and busted one and Zachary scored

"The funny part of this play was that Zachary pranced to the home plate taking long steps and stepped right over the platter. Every man on the Washington bench saw it, but not one member of the Yankees was hep. It was the most apparent play I ever have seen, and had a play been made on him the rally would have been out short. After that Washington continued to hit the ball and four more runs came in, giving them eight in that inning.

"DLAYERS should know the rules, but few take the trouble even to rend them. I guess the best-posted man in the American League is Eddie Collins. He always is studying the playing code and asking vulings on intricate plays. It would help a lot of others if

Ruling on Groh a Good Thing for Baseball

TUDGE LANDIS has put a crimp in the proposed trade between the Giants and Cincinnati for Heinie Grob. Hizzonner ordered the star third baseman to go back to Chelmati and play there all season for a pairty $10,000 salary. losing only the pay for the time he was holding out.

Perhaps some of the other clubs protested to Landis, fearing the addition of Grok would make the Giants almost unbeatable and give them the pennant in a wald. Things like this are likely to happen, and you cannot blame the opposing magnates if they can get away with it. However, the ruling of the Judge is a good one. It proves that a player cannot get up stage and put on a sole holdout to gain his ends because he believes he is invaluable to his ball club and the league. Heinie is a great player-one of the greatest on the National circuit-but the game is much bigger than the individual

Landis handed out un object lesson to future holdouts. Many player- get dis-atisfied with their jobs because their clubs are not up in the race and there is no chance to cut in on the World's Series dough. Then they refuse to may the following season, send back their contract and demand to be traded to another club. They usually pick one that has a chance to finish up near

The ball player cannot be blamed for trying to get all the money he can, but if a man like Grob was allowed to get away with his stunt there would be a lot of trouble in baseball next season. Star players and players who imagine they are stars would refuse to join their second division clubs and insist on being sent elsewhere. Then the tail enders would remain tail-enders. The Grob case is a good thing for baseball. Big league players are well paid for the work they do, and if they place commercialism above sport, the grand old game is due to take a terrible flop.

If Diffe LANDIS used excellent judgment and condered a masterlic decision when he ordered Grah to play with Finemats or no place.

So Tommy, Jr., drew his polo start in a polo family, and when he was able to toddle around one of his first gifts was a diminutive polo mallet, which he began swinging industriously, possibly with a rocking horse as his first mount.

began swinging industriously, possibly with a rocking horse as his first mount, for all we know. At any rate, he was swinging a polo malket at a very early age, thereby acquiring the proper foundation for a great career.

A Flier in France

YOUNG HITCHCOCK developed into player as he took on years and weight, but when the flame of war broke out he enlisted as an ambulance driver and later in the French air service well before America entered. He was one of the youngest fliers in France, yet the youngest fliers in France, yet about his coolness under international his record was unusual. After bringing down two or three fire.

He may have his off day, just as any one else, but it will be just an off day, in no sense due to nervousness or wort; through the deep importance of the occasion. He fits well into team play, despite his desire to be where action is the keepest, and it is in no way lay. German planes he was finally shot down back of the German lines, and after a miraculous escape from death was cap-tured and sent to a German prison camp. But the young American, though the keenest, and it is in no way im-probable that he will be one of the leading stars of the approaching pole jubilee along Hurlingham's wonderful under twenty at the time, had no idea of remaining indefinitely in any such bunkered spot. He promptly made his escape from the prison camp and walked 200 miles to freedom, living on walked 200 lines to the fearless such German herbs as he could gather such German herbs as he could gather by the wayside.

Small wonder that Captain Devereux plane shot down behind hostile lines, an escaped prisoner and a polo internationalist, all this side of twenty-one. is something one rarely sees beneath 4 be young in years and inexperienced in its something one rarely sees benea international polo, but he has the dash and confidence of a veteran, with all Copyright, 1921. Danny Ferguson says he still is waiting to hear from K. O. Sullivan. Dan recently issued a defi to the former Shenandaah heavyweight. An effort is being made to match Ferguson and Sullivan for a fiftes-rounder at West Manayunk. Tim Droney may meet either Whitey Fitserald or Jimmy Murphy at West Manayank previous to his session with Lew Tender at Reading July 4. Lew trimson wil referee all the bouts in Reading.
