PROTECTION
Means More Than Insurance

That insurance is the ultimate in protection is a fallacy. Insurance pays for varying fractions of your losses—a valuable adjunct. But what recompense do you get for the loss through delays in delivery and business upsets that follow catastrophe?

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Holmes Protection prevents loss. Thousands upon thousands of successful merchants use our service. Why? Ask them or us—you'll get the same answer:
"Because—

Where There Is Holmes, There Is Safety"

Luck!

HEINZ OVEN BAKED BEANS with Tomato Sauce

You always bring back your appetite—whether you bring back any fish or not. And you're always in luck if you have Heinz Baked Beans on hand—delicious, well-cooked, ready to eat, hot or cold.

It's not just "luck." It is judicious foresight—and that's as true at home as out in the open.

The housewife who appreciates the convenience of ready-cooked, well-cooked food—who realizes her responsibility of providing food that is good for the health, as well as good to eat—who knows that quality means economy—she keeps on hand a supply of Heinz Oven Baked Beans with Tomato Sauce.

Quality Always Sells Itself

There is a distinct sense of comfort in buying your meats where you are absolutely certain that what you are getting is the very best.

We realize this and from the start set ourselves a high standard of quality from which we would not deviate for any reason whatsoever. Every pound of meat that is sold over our counters is sweet and wholesome, and, furthermore, you receive 16 ounces to every pound.

High quality, true weight and a small margin of profit—these are the three planks in our platform upon which we have grown, until today our Meat Markets alone number One Hundred and Eighty-Seven (187).
