Sketches of Ring Battles of Dempsey and Carpentier

William Harrison "Jack" Dempsey, born in Manassa, Col., June 24, 1895, is a novice in ring affairs when com-pared with the fistic experience of Georges Carpentier, Carpentier's carliest ring engagements date back to 1907, when the Frenchman was but a slip of a boy. Dempsey's first official battles were fought in 1915. A contest with one Kid Hancock, whom Dempsey knocked out in a single round, is the first official engagement credited to the conqueror of Jess Willard. Dempsey, however, tells with evident delight, of an earlier battle. Dempsey himself was the promoter ticket-taker and a principal on that boxing program, which grew out of an argument with another youth at Mont-They were about to settle the difficulty in the usual American style, with fists, when Dempsey, show-ing a certain business accumen that has been noticeable in both him and his manager in later days, suggested that they hold the bout indoors and charge admission. Another interesting game took place be-tween the U.S. Marines and the Hospital. Naval Hospital put up the snapplest game of the season, winning 5-0. Smith, the big pitcher of the Hospital team, adds much to his effectiveness by also clouting the hall for many extra bases, usually in the pinches.

Smith, catcher for the U. S. Marines, is one of the steadlest men in the league. His neg to second is like a rifle shot. Perhaps his experience with hanc grenades helps. Lagino, receiving for the Naval Hospital, is the life of the team. Although he weights but 130 pounds his line of chatter would put a phonograph out of business. # PENN CREW MAPS OUT RACE PROGRAM

There was very little boxing in the heavyweight championship bout between Jack Johnson and Jim Flynn, the Pueblo fireman, at Las Vegas, N. M., on the Fourth of July, 1912.

Flynn attacked Johnson somewhat after the manner of a bull charging a Bolshevist banner. Johnson devoted most of his energy to holding Flynn's arms, like a ticklish person defending himself from a playful comrade. The police stopped the performance in the ninth round. The referee awarded his decision to Johnson, as he had had the Captain Mitchell Will Train Guns on California in Poughkeepsie Event
