

Off Day for "Human Punching Bags" Makes Them Giggle Watching Dempsey Go Through Stunts

RECEIVING PARTNERS OF DEMPSEY LAUGH AS THEY SEE JACK TRAIN

Larry Williams and Jack Renault Look on Without Pain as Champion Scores Decisions Over Punching and Sand Bags—Spars With Little Men

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL Sports Editor Evening Public Ledger

Atlantic City, N. J., June 23.

THE Percheron pug in the Dempsey training camp attended the daily workout yesterday and thoroughly enjoyed himself. They just laughed and laughed as the champion went through his exercises, because the exercises meant nothing to them. They were on the sidelines, assumed the role of spectators and it didn't cost a cent. Also, they suffered no bodily injury, which was the real cause for the giggles. Mr. Dempsey was not indulging in heavy workouts and the heavyweights were given a day off for convalescent purposes.

On Tuesday, Larry Williams accidentally placed his glass jaw in front of a one-two punch and did a nose-dive until further notice. He was lifted out of the ring to march to the next victim. This happened to be Jack Renault, who claims to be a Canadian, but sounds like Egg Harbor, N. J. Jack practiced sprints for two rounds and his legs were tired at the end. Therefore he, too, needed a rest. Battling Glee, the colored phenom, put on a disappearing act and when last heard of he was headed west and going on a disappearing act and a dynamite factory or some other place where the work is easy and not dangerous.

All of which means the champion took a vacation yesterday and allowed his receiving partners to have a look without pain. He boxed a few rounds with the punching bag and then took on the big, heavy sanding, which was suspended from the ceiling of the hangar at the airport. This he socked with reckless abandon, landing rights and lefts and alternating with lefts and rights. This proved he was versatile.

THE workout was thoroughly enjoyed by Messrs. Renault and Williams, and there was much regret because they could not appreciate the act.

Champion Works Out Indoors

YESTERDAY, while Mr. Kohns was absent, Dempsey changed his plans and did not step into the arena. He evidently had the comfort of the exclusive spectators in mind, who can become exclusive by paying $1 at the gate. Instead of having them sit in the sun-baked arena, where the back of the neck gets sunburned and hungry green flies take large bites at unsuspecting spectators, he invited them to go indoors, away from the cool breeze and the hot sun, to say nothing of the green flies. If they didn't care to do that it was all right, because the tickets had been collected at the gate. After scoring decisive victories over the light punching bag and the bale of sand, the champion boxed with Kid Herman and Joe Benjamin. He worked beautifully against the kids, stepping around just as fast as they and showing remarkable speed for a big man. He did not look like a heavyweight in action. He was too good for that part. On his two constant dodging in and out, pulling tricks never attempted by those who have outgrown the lightweight limit, he astounded the cash customers with his cleverness. There is no bunk about it—Dempsey is just as good, if not better, than ever before. He was just as active and just as his lighter opponents, hit them when he wished, and when a guy can do that he is good. The big boy is all set and ready to step out.

DEMPSEY was signally honored yesterday. A delegation of EUs from Long Branch visited him and presented him with a silver loving cup. It was much appreciated by the champion.

Made Many Friends at Long Branch

JACK trained at Long Branch for most of his battles in this section, and while there he made many friends and honorable orders. He made many friends with something, and sent the delegation here for that purpose. When we arrived at the training camp the delegation, which consisted of Howard K. Bunting, once a famous athlete at Swarthmore College; Jack Mantion, Otto Kauer and Henry Jennings, were seated on the front porch of the champion's private and exclusive residence, which is itself in a great honor. They were there for a couple of hours and were interviewed by Teddy Hayes, the private secretary-trainer. Teddy said he would be glad to tell the champion his friends were waiting, but the only thing which prevented it was that Dempsey was asleep, and if he awakened him he would get his black knuckled off.

While waiting for the champion to appear the spokesman rehearsed his speech and had it letter-perfect. It was a noble effort and worthy of the occasion. He wanted Dempsey to know how much he was thought of in Long Branch, N. J., which means a lot. At 8 o'clock the stage was set for the presentation. The committee was led to the back yard, where there was a lot of sand and about twenty photographers, including Abe Weintraub. The spokesman was all set for the supreme oratorical effort when Dempsey appeared. The champion was in a talkative mood and made long speeches.

"Hello, boys," he said to the crowd and photographers. "I'm feeling fine." Then when he saw the delegation from Long Branch, N. J., he said with much feeling: "Hello, boys, I'm feeling fine." The spokesman stood there with a straw Mackin in one hand and the silver loving cup in the other. It glistened in the sunlight and was all duded up with purple and white ribbons. "On behalf of the delegation," the spokesman, but Dempsey interrupted the speech. "Is that for me?" he asked. "Thanks, much obliged."

THAT ended the presentation and, after many photographs, the cup was carried into the house and Jack went to the hangar to entertain the cash customers and newspaper men.

Carpenter Money Uncovered

THERE was some excitement yesterday. One of the feminine spectators appeared on the scene and wanted to bet as much as $100 on Carpenter. She did not care about any odds, but just wanted to bet. She was French and believed Georges would win. Furthermore, she had the money to prove it. But there were no takers, for some reason or other. It was learned that the fair bettor was a medium, or something, and after consulting a fortune teller, learned that "Carpenter" would win in the first round. Immediately she told her friends and, according to the story, was given $500 to wager on the bunch. So much excitement was placed in the report that one hundred was offered with no takers.

Mayor Trains With Dempsey

ONE of the most interested spectators down here is Mayor Edward L. Bader. Hizzoner is quite an athlete himself and a keen student of boxing. He was a noted football player around Philadelphia when the Athletics and Phils promoted the gridiron sport and was a student at the University of Pennsylvania, although he never played on the gridiron. He is now a member of the Philadelphia Athletic Club. Mr. Bader has been with Dempsey considerably, riding horseback with him and running on the road in the mornings. In five weeks he has taken off seventeen pounds and looks ready to step into the ring himself. "Dempsey is in better shape than any I ever have seen" said the Mayor. "He has worked hard for six weeks, and the only fear I have is that he will be overtrained. He is guarding against that and will take things easy from now on."

Jack Plans Fishing Trip

ACCORDING to the latest plans, Dempsey will be the heavyweights this afternoon and tomorrow and Saturday will rest. He intends to take a fishing trip and get away from the mols. The work is getting monotonous and a change will do him good. All of the experts are here on the job and every day Dempsey wins the battle without a dissenting vote. Now all he has to do is win it.

Boots and Saddle

Believe Idle Hour should win the Parks Hill purse at Latonia this afternoon, which is the feature race of a very good card. Brandywine and Rock may be depended upon to make a good showing. Horses well placed in other races are: First—Green Grass; Cosette; The Baggins; second—Killy Star; Drop Sinker; Billy Bush; third—Tanlar; Miss Puff; Pueblo; fifth—J. C. Stone; Wickford; Kimpalung; sixth—Tulsa; Fateside; Paris; Maj; seventh—Pook; Delahab; H. Grey; East.

LOCAL MEN IN BOUTS

Tipplitz, Williams, Brown and Kramer on Open-Air Program Four Philadelphia fistmen are putting on some intelligent training at Philadelphia Jack A. Ryan's gym today. They are Joe Tipplitz, Kid Williams, Harry Kid Brown and Danny Kramer, all of whom are getting into condition for resumption of matches at the Phillies Ball Park next Wednesday night. Tipplitz is matched in the stellar spar with George Chaney as his opponent. Williams is to take on Louismint, which also is a return bout, while another evening will be between Kramer and Roy Moore. The other match is a light-weight affair between Joe Benjamin and Harry Kid Brown.

COULD USE KONEY, SAYS LEE MEADOWS

Phils' Twirler Thinks Veteran Brooklyn First Baseman Would Fit in Well Here

A'S LOSE IN ELEVENTH

Lee Meadows, the pride of Wild Bill Donovan's Phillie pitching staff, was one of some 6000-odd who saw our Athletics take the count yesterday afternoon in the eleventh at the hands of George McBride's Washington Senators by a 5 to 4 count. Lee, whose claim to fame aside from his right arm, lies in the fact that he is the only bespectacled hurler in the big leagues, left in the mood of the boys who gather round the stoves during the wintertime. In other words he had no mind talking.

"I have heard that there is a trade brewing between the Phils and the Dodgers," said Meadows. "I do not know, except from newspaper reports, who are liable to be traded. We could use Ed Koney very well at first base now; as a matter of fact, I believe that either Mills or Mohart, the pitchers, who are reported to be on the market for Cecil Causley. Ed is far from being through and with a good amount of his money, I think he would be a valuable addition to our team. I am sure we could get him for a reasonable price. You know we got Jimmy Smith from the Reds as part of the trade for Greasy Neale. We were to get Sam Rice, but that was finally sent to us. Jimmy has been a utility infielder out in Cincy for the last four years."

Anent Wheat and Lebourveau

All was not glorious on the recent Western tour of Donovan and his band. Aside from asking railroaders with almost monotonous regularity the Phils suffered the loss of two of their best men, and the Western scribes never made a mention of the fact that they were both going to be traded. A word of it from Mack Wheat, the second string catcher, received a broken hand out in St. Louis, when a foul-pit from Bill Dook's bat splintered the member. He was to get a new hand from the Phillies, but the deal fell through. He is now in Cincinnati with his arm in a sling and may not join the team for several more weeks. DeWitt Lebourveau, the dashing outfielder, who sojourned around these parts while the Phils were starting their Western jaunt and who joined them in St. Louis, has been constantly dodging in and out of the Broad and Huntingdon streets crew. DeWitt suffered an injury to his nose that has been causing him great trouble of late, with the result that a physician advised him to have an operation performed. This is being done in his home town. DeWitt will probably join the club here within the next two weeks.

Phils Return Tomorrow

The Phils return here tomorrow afternoon for a stay that doesn't end until July 23. The Giants will be the party of the second part tomorrow afternoon, and it would not be all surprising to find them joining the initial sack when the teams line up. Getting back to the Athletics Meadows was treated to a real game for a stay that doesn't end until July 23. The Giants will be the party of the second part tomorrow afternoon, and it would not be all surprising to find them joining the initial sack when the teams line up.

Johnson in Form

The damage had been done and with Walter Johnson pitching as he did here his arm started to feel sore the A's were to have to look to the American League eye-went to the left to start the ninth, relieving Zachary, who wilted in the closing innings. In the eighth Bryn Mawr Jimmy Dykes, shot a high and mighty liner into deep center that carried off the wall into the field framework of the bleachers for a round trip. It was Jones' ninth of the current season.

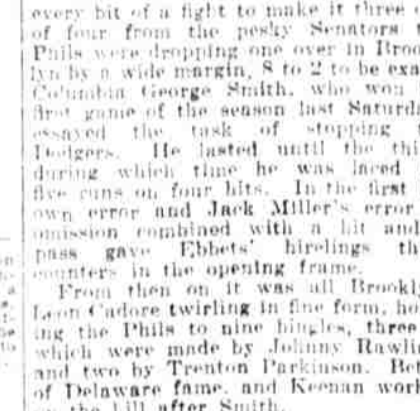

Phils Humped

While the Athletics were putting up every bit of a fight to make it three out of four from the pesky Senators the Phils were dropping their heads in Brook. The Athletics were working just as hard as the Phils, but they were humped. MYSTERY MEN AT CARPENTIER CAMP

Journee and Gans Unavailable. New Sparring Partners Arrive and Depart IDENTITY IS KEPT SECRET

Manhasset, L. I., June 23.—George Carpenter, challenger for Jack Dempsey's heavyweight title, is confronted with the loss of the services of both Paul Journee, French heavyweight who accompanied the challenger to this country, and Italian Joe Gans, Brooklyn middleweight. The pair made the mistake of engaging in ring bouts last Monday night and, both being knocked out, the camp routine of Georges suffered proportionately. Journee still is at the camp, but is incapacitated. He will do no more sparring with Georges.

Gans is not quite so badly banged up as Journee, but for some unexplained reason, he disappeared from the Manhasset farm, where and why nobody knows. Gans was about the estate Tuesday afternoon, but left for some unexplained reason in the evening and did not reappear yesterday.

Carpenter sent out a hurry call for assistants and assistance under the circumstances, and three big boxes returned. Who or what they were was kept secret. They arrived in a spacious limousine early in the morning, enshrouded in mystery, and the veil was lifted at any time during the day.

Trainer Wilson went so far as to state that the men were two middleweights and a light-heavyweight, but he admitted that Carpenter had worked out for about three-quarters of an hour in the gymnasium, but when asked if he would give any more details, he replied tersely: "I cannot comment on that."

Carpenter, with Manager Francis Fitzsimmons, Jr., J. H. Mallet, his friend and adviser, visited the arena in Jersey City in the afternoon, and was visibly impressed with his introduction to the place, which was the first time he had seen it. It was the first time the Carpenter party had visited Boyle's Thirty Acres.

At the arena Promoter Richard Prosser, Contractor Edward Lutz, secretary of Pennsylvania, and other interested parties, who were present, were amazed at the site spread before his eyes. The arena is almost completed and it is thought that the best thing of its kind he had ever seen.

INDEPENDENTS TO FORM PERMANENT GRID BODY

Meet at Rittenhouse Hotel This Evening to Elect Officers, Discuss Circuit The Independent Football Association of Pennsylvania will meet this evening at the Rittenhouse Hotel and elect permanent officers and complete plans for the 1921 season. At a recent meeting, Heinie Miller, former Penn. all-American end, was elected temporary chairman. A committee of three composed of Howard Bocker, of Frankfort; Fred "Pop" Cochran, of Hollingsburg; and Eddie Hyde, of Conshohocken, has been assisting Miller together with George Johnson and Bob Dawson, who are the organizers of the independent football organization with Heinie. Besides the big local clubs that have attended previous meetings, representatives will be present from Heidelberg, Logan, Lancaster, Lewis, Vinona, Riverside, Chesook and South Philadelphia All-Stars.

FLEISHER NINE TO PLAY NORTH PHILS

Bill Hockenbury Will Oppose David in Big Twilight Clash

TAMAQUA AT BRIDESBURG

Followers of two of the big city semi-pro teams are anxiously awaiting tonight's twilight baseball encounter at Wingochocking streets, the home of the North Phillies, where that team meets Fleisher. It is one of the big games on the Phils' schedule and the banner crowd of the season is expected as Eddie Lusk, manager of the farmers, is an uptowner. There promises to be a pitching duel between Bill Hockenbury and Bob Miller, who are the stars of the Phils. The uptowners are out to win as Fleisher won a previous contest when their pitching staff was considerably weakened.

At Richmond and Orthodox streets, Bridesburg crosses bats with Tamaqua. The uptowners expect to defeat the crack up-State combination with Detroit's new pitching ace from the Main Line, on the mound, Tommy Voiz will pitch first base and also be on hand to pitch if needed. He defeated Chester yesterday, 8 to 2. The feature of the game was two homers by Right Fielder Kramer, one with the bases full. Both of Chester's tallies were home runs, but one was questionable. At Chew and Pleasant streets, Stenton Field Club opposes the J. & J. Dobson team. "Liz" Powell will oppose Victor Keene, and a pitchers' battle is expected.

Madison Stars at Shannahan This has been a severe week on Shannahan, and Jim Honner is not decided as to whom he will use in the game with the Madison Stars, at Forty-eighth and Brown streets. The West Philly club played Marshall E. Smith on Tuesday and Fleisher last evening and today's contest is the third hard clash in as many days.

Walter Johnson has the Cuban Stars as the attraction for the first of the Thursday twilight games at Stetson Ball Park, Fourth and Berks streets. He will spring Kane, a new pitcher, on the colorless one, Herman Haeck, who has been engaged to umpire behind the bat at the Stetson grounds hereafter.

Miller Lock at Hohfeld

The Hohfeld Hammockers tackle Miller Lock at Broad street and Allegheny avenue. They won a notable victory over Highland Park of the Main Line League on Tuesday and expect to add the locksmiths to the number. Mackin will in all probability pitch. Tomorrow evening Hohfeld will oppose the Cuban Stars on the same field and will play their Industrial League match on Saturday.
