

8-YEAR-OLD GIRL WINS BLACK BEAUTY

Violet L. Munson, 3210 Comly Street, Gets Prize in Ledger Contest

ALWAYS WANTED A WHEEL

Violet L. Munson, eight years old, 3210 Comly street, Wisconsin, has won a bicycle prize in the "Black Beauty" contest. She came in yesterday and claimed her prize.

Violet is the youngest girl who has won a Black Beauty. She has been waiting for it because it didn't take long to get the required number of subscriptions once she started.

Herman Wehman, who lives next door, started the ball rolling when he showed her the announcement of the contest. "Go to it, Violet," he said. "I'll give you your first subscription."

That night she started out among her friends and five promised to help her. The next day eight more fell in line, and almost before she knew it the prize was hers.

"It wasn't hard," she said yesterday as she perched on the edge of a chair and told her story. "I just asked people if they'd take a subscription and help me get a bicycle."

Her father didn't like the idea of her getting a bicycle before the time he promised one, but when he saw how earnestly she worked to get the necessary thirty-five subscriptions to the Evening, morning and Sunday Pungo Leagues, he changed his mind.

CAMDEN DEMOCRATS ROW

Harmony Decidedly Inconspicuous at Harmony Meeting

A harmony meeting of the Camden City and County Democrats last night in Camden was attended by fewer than 100 Democrats and was punctuated by hot weather, hotter speeches and the absence of harmony.

The meeting, which was called by Patrick H. Harding, was for the purpose of reorganizing the Democratic Party in the city and county and for the restoration of harmony within the Democratic ranks.

Charges that the Camden County Democratic Executive Committee was inactive and was not functioning properly, much to the detriment of the party, few thick and fast. Some of the Democrats made themselves much warmer by denying the charges.

It was at this stage that harmony, which had been beating upon the parade, packed its grip and went out for a walk.

Later on in the evening after every person there was willing to try to talk at once, Mr. Harding announced that at a later date he would appoint a committee of five members of the party to get together with the Executive Committee to see if a harmony program could not be worked out.

JUDGE CALLS FOR ACTION

Patterson Tells Rotarians City Has Too Much Talk

"Philadelphia needs more action and less discussion about how to do things," said Judge John M. Patterson, of the Common Pleas Court, at a luncheon of the Rotary Club in the Bellevue-Stratford yesterday.

"We build an L to Frankford and then argue about the terms under which it shall be operated," he continued. "The important thing is to operate it and not to discuss how it should be done."

"The question of where to build it should be left to the commission or those who make city government a football. We should vote for the best man for Mayor, and whoever is elected should receive the support of every voter, irrespective of whether he was his own particular choice. There is no reason why public safety and other functions of the municipality should be controlled by political motives any more than the management of your own business is."

"Philadelphia should have everything of the best. We do not care so much how much our transportation or our fire department costs us provided it gives us the best possible service. Philadelphia should have a grand central depot to afford a great railroad terminus for the city. Philadelphia has the possibilities of being the greatest city in the United States."

TO FIGHT SUNDAY BUSINESS

Interchurch Federation Says European Influence Keeps Stores Open

Business and labor on Sunday are due partly to foreigners who practice customs in other lands, according to a statement by the Interchurch Federation yesterday.

"The Federation plans a campaign of education to show the value of one rest day in seven in the hope of preventing continuance of Sunday business. 'The need of the present hour is for concerted action against the increasing practice of commercializing the first day of the week,'" declares the Rev. E. A. Palmquist, executive secretary of the Federation.

"Those who close their places of business on the Sabbath have unjust advantages taken of them by violators of the law, who, for the greater part, carry on unnecessary work, the statement says."

Auto Breaks Woman's Knee

Her foot catching in the rear wheel spokes of a passing automobile, Mrs. Lucy Richardson, fifty-eight years old, of 628 Panama street, was hurled to the street at Fifty-second and Market streets last night, receiving a broken knee. She was taken to the West Philadelphia Homeopathic Hospital, and Thomas Lytle, of Upper Darby, Pa., was arrested by the police of the Peach and Media streets station. MAYOR PROCLAIMS SANE 4TH OF JULY

Moore's Statement Calls on People to Obey Law Against Fireworks

TO PROSECUTE VIOLATORS

Citizens of Philadelphia are asked to keep their Fourth of July "safe and sane" by Mayor Moore. He calls attention to the new law prohibiting use or sale of fireworks in any form and also to the penalties for its violation.

"I call upon all the inhabitants and others within the city to celebrate sanely and safely the approaching Independence Day," said the Mayor. "So that it may be an occasion, as it should be, of universal gladness and grateful remembrance of the great event which it commemorates, bringing happiness to all and grief, damage or loss to none."

"I do hereby proclaim and notify all persons," the Mayor continued, "that the laws and ordinances forbidding the sale and use of fireworks, firecrackers, sparklers, explosives and pyrotechnics on and about Independence Day, 1921, and at all other times, and all the provisions thereof, will be strictly and vigorously enforced, and that all persons violating the same will be proceeded against to the full extent, as provided by such laws and ordinances."

"The ordinance of the city of Philadelphia, approved May 31, 1921, and passed pursuant to authority conferred by act of Assembly, forbids and makes it unlawful after June 15, 1921, to store, sell, offer or expose for sale, or to have in possession with intent to sell, or to use, discharge or cause to be discharged, ignited, fired or set in action, within the city limits, any fireworks, firecrackers, rockets, sparklers, torpedoes, roman candles, fire balloons or other fireworks, or substances designed or intended for pyrotechnic display, except after having obtained a license therefor as provided for in the ordinance, under a penalty of $100 for each offense for using, offering or exposing for sale, or having in possession with intent to sell, any of the foregoing articles, and under a penalty of $10 for each offense for using, discharging or causing to be discharged, ignited, fired or set in action, any such articles."

FOOD DISTRIBUTION PLAN HIT BY BUREAU

Municipal Research Says Increased Market Facilities Will Not Cut High Prices

SHOWS REROUTING EVIL

Increased market facilities in the city mean nothing so long as the present uneconomical methods of food distribution and transfer persist, according to the Bureau of Municipal Research.

As an example of why consumers pay high prices for perishable goods they point out that when produce is carried on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in this city it is to be transferred to the Pennsylvania Railroad it must be shipped back to Wilmington and then re-routed to Philadelphia.

"Market facilities in the city are inadequate and antiquated. Three or more markets on the water front or in any section of the city or temporary curb markets will not help solve the problem so long as the city continues to have no adequate facilities for food distribution," the bureau bulletin says.

Must Provide Against Waste
"So long as these conditions continue, producers will be disinclined to ship to the city many kinds of food supplies that might otherwise come to us. The very nature of the products requires the quickest possible handling to avoid deterioration and waste."

"The problem is a big one and is of vital interest to all citizens. It cannot be solved by doing a little here and a little there. We must work out a comprehensive plan based upon a thorough knowledge of all the facts and then proceed according to that plan."

ROANOKE JASPER ACQUITTED

Media Verdict in Sharon Hill Murder Case is Big Surprise

Roanoke Jasper was acquitted of the murder of John Dalton, of Sharon Hill, late last night at Media. The verdict came as a big surprise to the District Attorney and those that heard the case. Jasper shook hands with the jury after the verdict and left for his home in Philadelphia with his wife.

Jasper took the witness stand in the afternoon in his own defense. He made a denial of having participated in the crime, declaring that he was not in Sharon Hill on the night of the murder or on any night prior to that time when a number of persons were held up and robbed by Negroes. He also denied that he knew John Austin, also indicted for the slaying of Dalton.

Autoist Held in Child's Death

Moore Namankin, of 909 South Bernard street, was held without bail by Magistrate Dugan today to await the action of the Coroner in the death of Theresa Donnivan, seven years old, of 6120 Irving street, who was struck by Namankin's automobile May 21. The child was run down at Sixty-first and Locust streets, and taken to the Misericordia Hospital. She died there this morning.

"A commission was appointed by the Mayor in June, 1919, to investigate the existing market facilities of the city. On November 12, 1919, $10,000 was appropriated for carrying on the work of this body. About six weeks later the members of the commission resigned, feeling that the new Administration should have the opportunity of appointing its own commission. Up to this time, however, the present Administration has not appointed another commission.

"Nothing can be accomplished by putting off this question from year to year. Philadelphia needs better market facilities now. Her methods are cumbersome and expensive. A survey by competent specialists will be a big step in the right direction. Philadelphia is strategically situated as a natural distributing center and only needs proper development to take her place as a great market for perishable foodstuffs. This is a possibility of the immediate future and is dependent entirely on what action is taken at this time."
