

WOMEN ASK EQUAL RIGHTS IN UNIONS Will Demand Separate Charter From Federation if Refused Membership HOLD ELECTION TOMORROW

By the Associated Press Denver, June 24.—The demand for equal rights and privileges in all labor unions, determination of future relationship with jurisdiction movements and jurisdictional disputes were the major issues confronting the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor today.

Although the convention had been in session for two weeks, an unusual volume of work remains. Because of this several delegates announced that they would more or less drop out in order that all business could be transacted by Sunday morning.

Owing to a ruling by President Gompers, the election of business on a special order of adjournment will be held this year, on the last day. The action of the convention last year, in electing a day before adjournment was unconstitutional, Mr. Gompers said.

The committee on International Relations, which will report on the favorably by the convention by the International Association of Machinists, and the Firemen and Oilers Union, demanding that President Gompers be deposed, will be in the hands of the federation with the International Federation of Trades Unions.

The machinists' delegates have announced their intention to put up a separate platform to put up a report and obtain the adoption of their proposal.

The women delegates have united to overthrow the committee's report and obtain the adoption of their proposal.

The resolution which would amend the federation's constitution so as to give them "all the privileges of membership in the union of their trade or industry." If they are denied membership in any union they ask the right to obtain a separate charter from the federation.

Gompers Issues Statement The announcement by John L. Lewis of the platform on which he is running for the presidency of the federation brought a statement today from President Gompers, who declared "it is not the right or the privilege of any individual to make a platform in the labor movement."

Mr. Lewis in his announcement yesterday declared for nationalization of the mines, government ownership of the railroads and other "progressive policies."

GLADYS DEACON MARRIED IN PARIS

She is now the Duchess of Marlborough. Her civil marriage to the Duke of Marlborough was celebrated this morning. The religious ceremony will take place tomorrow

Gladys Deacon Weds Duke of Marlborough

Continued from Page One ninth holder of the dual title derived from his celebrated ancestor, is likewise a Marquis, an Earl twice over and twice a Baron in the British peerage. Also he is a Prince of the Holy Roman Empire and a Prince of Mindelheim in Swabia.

His dignities, joined to family prestige, manifestly do not blind him to the desirability of matrimonial alliances with American wealth and beauty, as his union with Miss Gladys Deacon, of Boston, is his second venture with a bride from this side of the Atlantic.

It does not require a great stretch of memory to recall the Duke's first marriage, back in 1878, when on November 6, in St. Thomas' Church, New York, Consuelo Vanderbilt, daughter of William K. Vanderbilt, Sr., and Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, became the bride of Charles Richard John Spencer, Churchill.

Romance Ends, Divorce Follows Came rumors by and by that the dual couple did not get along as well as formerly. Report had it the Duke was extravagant. In the winter of 1907 it became known a separate marriage contemplated. A formal deed to that effect was drawn up but not signed.

In February of last year, after the Duke and Duchess had lived together some time, Marlborough departed from Cromwell, leaving a note for the Duchess saying he was convinced it would be impossible for them to be happy together.

On receipt of this note the Duchess went to the Continent for a rest, again wrote to the Duke, begging him to reconsider. The Duke again reiterated the impossibility of living together happily, and the Duchess began suit for the restoration of her conjugal rights, the preliminary step to divorce in English law. A decree was granted her on March 22.

This was followed by divorce proceedings, in which the duchess was the plaintiff, a decree being granted her last November. The decree was made absolute in May 13 last.

FIRE PATROLMAN ACCUSES ANOTHER

Files Affidavit Alleging Blue-Count Collected $50 as Fake Dry Agent DECISION IN CASE WITHHELD

Joseph Perrie, Passyunk avenue near Broad, suspended two weeks ago as a patrolman attached to the Moyamensing and Dickinson street station, today charged a patrolman of the same station as having posed as a prohibition agent and obtained $50 for not arresting a violator.

At a hearing before the Civil Service Commission an affidavit made by Perrie was read, in which he swore Thomas Deering, while an acting detective at the station house, approached him May 6 and asked him to co-operate in "slinking down" a man who had a whisky still.

The men went to the home of Fedore Konoff, according to the affidavit, found a still and Deering asked and was given $50 for not arresting Konoff. Perrie was brought before the Trial Board and dismissed.

Perrie made no mention of Deering and it was not brought out who the supposed prohibition agent was. Something went wrong, it is said, in the relations between the men, because today, when Deering asked Perrie if he had not contradicted all the testimony of the previous hearing, Perrie said, "Yes, but then you promised to stand by me. You haven't, and I'm going to stand by myself now."

The findings of the board on the charges brought against Deering were withheld temporarily.

Lancaster Stirred by Zell's Arrest

Zell, it is believed, had planned to escape. It developed last night that the trust company's officials had discovered a shortage in his accounts several weeks ago. The matter at that time was temporarily adjusted, but with the visit of the examiners from the State, Zell was dismissed pending an investigation and had been at home two days.

Known as "James Wilson" It is said that Zell used the name of "James Wilson" during his speculation. He is declared to have plunged so recklessly in Philadelphia that his name was frequently asked. As James Wilson he attracted attention on the stock exchange rooms in Philadelphia.

Recently he purchased a plot of ground in this city on which he planned to erect a handsome home. He owns a cottage at Ocean Grove, which his wife and two children are now occupying.

Zell came to the trust company in 1916. Born in Akron, Lancaster County, he knew the thrift and the habits of the Lancaster County farmers and was thought the ideal man to bring their business to the bank. He was cashier of the Maytown National Bank for seven years, leaving the institution in a flourishing condition and the banks in excellent order.

RAIDING PARSON DIES OF OVERWORK

Continued from Page One was his challenge in response to several threats made against his life, after his official activities had gained him enemies among those engaged in the liquor traffic.

Dr. Johnson was pastor of the Twentieth Street Methodist Episcopal Church up to several months ago, combining his duties in the pulpit with his regular in his home. Recently he resigned the active pastorate.

The clergyman's family say that overwork wrecked his health and caused his death. He had a nervous breakdown and was not able to leave his home after May 1. He suffered greatly, but two days ago the pain seemed to disappear and he slept most of the time.

Alien Ideals Melted in American Mold

The kindly blue eyes of the principal kindled and there was unmistakable pride and there she talked about her girls. With her white hair and gentle face she seemed more mother than teacher of the 1459 who have passed through the school.

"The girls," she continued "are fond of a story of Anzia Zezierska, which tells about the little Russian girl who came to America. The crowded boat could not have been the wonder land. Neither could it have been the factory or the night school. It was only, when through chance, the little Russian girl found out that she herself was really helping to make America that she felt she had found it."

"The foreigners have much in them that is fine, wonderful and talented. Our plan is to have the girls develop their own national gifts to the highest degree and to give them to America. In seeking for the best in themselves and in its development they make the best citizens. They find America and become American."

Special stress in the school is laid on courses which teach the girls to dress, to prepare for business, to learn to know the world, to choose their vocations. There are courses in English, and Dr. Wilson attributes a great deal of the ironing out of the accent and foreign idiom by graduation day to the fact that the teachers are relentless in making corrections in all classes. Slip in speech is never allowed to pass.
