

EXPERTS ARE URGED FOR PUBLIC OFFICE

Dr. Aydelotte Says Democracies Court Danger in Failure to Obtain This Service

TALK AT DREXEL EXERCISES

Danger to this country as well as to other democracies in their failure to encourage and reward expert service was pointed out by Dr. Frank Aydelotte, president of Swarthmore College, at the annual commencement exercises of Drexel Institute, held in the auditorium of the school today.

"I am sure," said the speaker, "that the larger number of you are not going to enter the service of the United States Government. That is because this Government, as well as other democracies, has not yet learned to employ, control and reward this type of man and woman. That furnishes one of the great difficulties in the way of achieving the democratization of industry. When this is done the troubles of the world will be nearly ended."

"It is one of the traditions of democracy that the expert is not to be favored. Yet autocratic Governments have always known how to employ experts and have done so with great success. Great republics in the past have fallen because they did not adopt this policy."

"The expert is subject to a number of restrictions. He cannot seek a position. Experts are controlled in this country by those who are not, and in principle that is right."

"There is a tradition that public service must not be rewarded with large salaries, which is right, and yet democratic Governments must learn to see the expert as does the large corporation and pay him accordingly. If they are not to see the same service."

"The saving grace with the expert that preserves professional honor on the one hand and prevents his enslavement on the other is the professional spirit. No one is worthy of expert knowledge who does not use it for the general service of those about him."

Degrees and diplomas were conferred on ninety-three graduates by Dr. Hollis G. Coffey, president of the institute.

BERLIN TO RETURN AT ONCE ALL AMERICAN PROPERTY

Would Save Owners Further Trouble and Boost Trade

Berlin, June 24.—(By A. P.)—In announcing today that all American property held by the German Government would be released immediately, the Foreign Office said much of such property already had been restored, but that certain credits and securities were still held.

This was because Germany was unable to know whether the United States would adopt the same system of accounting as that provided for in the Versailles treaty, the announcement declared.

Consequently, it added, Germany was running the risk of having to make double payments, but nevertheless the Government had decided to save the owners further trouble, facilitate a resumption of German-American trade and establish the inviolability of private property.

CORONER TO INVESTIGATE COLLAPSE OF THEATRE

Seven Killed, Nine Injured in Fall of Building

Johnstown, Pa., June 24.—(By A. P.)—Coroner M. D. Swab, of Johnstown, left today for Harrisburg, near here, where he will investigate the collapse of the Grand Theatre Building, which caused the death of seven persons and injury to nine others. The structure collapsed late yesterday and gangs of workmen were busy all night removing the debris.

There were twenty persons in the theatre when the building fell and only four escaped death or injury. At first it was believed that many other persons were in the building and 200 volunteers with the aid of torches and flashlights worked until the ruins had been cleared away.

WOMAN SEEKS TO HAVE HER DIVORCE SET ASIDE

Also Sues for Annulment of Ex-Husband's Remarriage

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 24.—Fannie Van Heusen, divorced wife of Edward Van Heusen, known as Edward Renton, who is general manager of the Philadelphia Morning Times, has begun action in the courts here to set aside his divorce on the ground of fraud and to annul his marriage to Miss Grace Huff, actress, whom he wedded at Bethlehem in 1914.

The Van Heusens were married in Brooklyn January 8, 1906, and lived together until July, 1901, when, it is alleged, the wife was deserted. In November, 1900, an agreement was entered into by which Van Heusen agreed to pay his wife $25 weekly during the remainder of his natural life. From November, 1900, to September 18, 1911, he mailed her checks, postmarked New York. In September 21, 1910, Van Heusen reduced the amount to $15 weekly and made payment each week until May 27, 1916. Up until this time Mrs. Van Heusen charges he knew her exact address, for she had lived in New York all the time.

In September, 1911, Van Heusen started an action for divorce in the Luzerne County court and in his libel charged that Fannie Van Heusen from July 18, 1900, had committed willful and malicious desertion without cause. He gave his residence as East Market street, Wilkes-Barre, and claimed to have lived there one year. The wife charges that false and fraudulent service was obtained by addressing a letter to her "general delivery," Philadelphia. She further charges that Van Heusen perjured himself in a hearing before the master in divorce by declaring that he did not know the whereabouts of his wife.

Judge Fuller granted a rule to show cause why the divorce shall not be set aside.

Chicago, Mass., June 24.—(By A. P.)—Miss Lucy D. Only two witnesses were heard.

Judge J. P. Kirby said from the bench that he regretted there was no way such cases could be handled without preferring a charge of manslaughter.

COL. J. H. LAMBERT DIES AT AGE OF 74

Former Insurance Commissioner and Editor Passes Away at Home

HELD MANY STATE POSTS

Colonel James H. Lambert, former State Insurance Commissioner and widely known editorial writer, died at 11:20 o'clock this morning at his home, 311 South Forty-first street. He had been ill for several months.

Members of his family were at the bedside when he died. Colonel Lambert's condition became critical a few days ago and took a decided change for the worse last night.

Mr. Lambert was born at Syracuse, N. Y., May 22, 1847, and a few years later went to Wisconsin with his family. He became an apprentice in a printing office at Ripon, Wis., and worked for a time at La Crosse, Wis., and finally graduated at a reporter's desk on a Milwaukee daily. He was elected to the Wisconsin Legislature, but was compelled to wait ten days before taking his seat as he was under age at the time the Legislature convened. He later went to St. Louis and then to New York. In the latter city he served on the staff of the New York World.

In 1874 Mr. Lambert came to Pennsylvania as editor and part owner of the Williamsport (Lycoming County) Gazette and Bulletin. When the Philadelphia Morning Times was established by A. K. McClure and the McClure brothers, he came to Philadelphia as one of its editors. He was soon made managing editor, and held this position until 1886, when he became political editor. Further search revealed the skeleton in the barn at the farm of Michael Laffey, East Goshen township, by workmen late yesterday.

The space between the barn wall and the interior of the barn. When a board was detached a pelvic bone dropped from a cavity. Further search revealed the entire skeleton of a small man or large boy. A pair of dark pantaloons, white shirt and other garments, with a pair of rough shoes, covered the bones.

Colonel Lambert was married in 1870 to Mary E. Tucker—nee Perine—

CURZON ATTACKS LEAGUE, WANTS U. S. CO-OPERATION

Upholds Harding's Contention of American Rights on Mandates London, June 24.—(By A. P.)—An unexpected attack on the covenant of the League of Nations was made in the House of Lords last night by Lord Curzon, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. He declared that many existing international difficulties were due to the Allies having taken the wrong turning in the making of peace, and he uttered a strong appeal for the utmost American co-operation with the Allies.

The Foreign Secretary's speech was made in the course of a general discussion on the League, in which he admitted that Parliament was entitled to more information, but he said this was a subject involved in obscurity. The language of the covenant was such that not even a trained lawyer knew what it meant.

Lord Curzon was inclined to think there was a mistake in policy when the Allies met in Paris in their extreme desire to get the League of Nations on the International Statute Book.

Lord Curzon declared there were force and reason in President Harding's view that America was entitled to be consulted before the mandates could be entirely settled, and he believed that Leide was likely to reply that, holding the view themselves, they would desire to postpone consideration of the mandates, and trust that the other Governments concerned would enter into communication with the American Government in the interval before the meeting of the Assembly in September.

At the time of the murder of the girl Zinnari shot himself in the head with a revolver. Infection set in and his head swelled to twice its size. Although this was cured, his health has been impaired ever since.

He is so weak that he broke down on the way to the courtroom this morning and had to be carried in. His face and form were so startlingly emaciated as to make him look like a corpse.
