

THREE BANDITS ROB DRUGGIST IN STORE

Armed Men Take $40 From Chas. E. King, 24th and Master—One Suspect Caught

CAFÉ MAN BLACKJACKED

Charles E. King, a druggist at Twenty-fourth and Master streets, was held up in his store by three bandits at 10:30 o'clock last night, just as he was preparing to close the place. The men got $40 from his pocket and fled. One suspect was captured later.

This man gave his name as Jerry Hession, Spring Garden street near Front. He was arrested in a house on Bolton street near Twenty-third. The suspect was identified by King as one of the men who entered his shop, Magistrate Oswald, at the Nineteenth and Oxford streets station, held him without bail for court on a charge of larceny at the point of a revolver.

"I was back in the prison department," said Mr. King today, "when I heard some one in the store. As I came around the end of the partition I found myself face to face with two men. I could hear another one, but did not see him."

"These two men pointed revolvers at me and ordered me to hold up my hands. I did so, and they went through my pockets, getting a roll of bills containing about $40. Then, threatening to shoot if I called for help, the men ran to the door, slammed it after them, and were gone."

"Mrs. King, who had come downstairs at the sound of the talking and running, found out what had happened and ran to a side door and screamed. I shouted out of the front door and a crowd soon started after the bandits. They were chased through a number of alleys and side streets, eventually getting away. I heard later one suspect was captured."

The man arrested gave the police his name as Jesse Hession and was found in a house at 2318 Bolton street. Mike Hession, the man's brother, occupies the Bolton street house. Hession, who was smoking a cigarette by the parlor window when arrested, denied any knowledge of the robbery. He gave his address as Ninth and Spring Garden streets.

Two Negroes last night attacked William Kalz in his ice cream store at 1620 Jefferson street. Kalz, who is twenty-six years old, was blackjacked and physicians at St. Joseph's Hospital, where he was taken, fear his skull may have been fractured.

The Negroes, according to Kalz, entered his store and asked for ice cream. As he turned to serve them, he said, one hit him with a blackjack. He did not fall immediately, but called for help, as the men struck him again and again. He fell behind the counter and the Negroes fled without obtaining any money. A man in the neighborhood who saw the bandits run, called up the

LEGLESS MAN ROBBED

Crippled Musician Beaten Near Belmont Mansion

A legless Negro musician was beaten and robbed near Belmont Mansion last night by two white men who had volunteered to take him for a ride through the Park in an automobile. His broken banjo was found near him. The victim is James Tucker, Thirtieth street near South, who has played his banjo on that corner for almost twenty years. Last night two men spoke to Tucker while he was playing, and offered to give him a ride through the Park. He accepted, taking his hat of money and his banjo along.

Three hours later Park guards found him cut, bruised and hysterical in the bushes on Belmont plateau. His hat and money were gone. He now is in the West Philadelphia Homeopathic Hospital.

Woman Swallows Poison

Believed to have been despondent over illness, Mrs. Ruth McGlade, forty-nine years old, of 417 Lincoln avenue, Collingdale, Delaware County, attempted to end her life yesterday by swallowing two poison tablets. The woman, who was found by her son Edward, twenty years old, was rushed to the University Hospital in the ambulance of the Darby fire company. Her condition is said to be serious.
