

STATE BAR FAVORS NEW CONSTITUTION

Paul H. Gaither Sounds Foreword at Meeting of Association
LAWYER UNDER HOT FIRE

Asbury Park, N. J., June 28.—The sessions of the twenty-seventh annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Bar Association began here this morning at the Hotel New Monterey, with an attendance of several hundred members and their families.

The opening address of the president, Paul H. Gaither, of Greensburg, was in part the foreword in a campaign for the formulation and adoption of a new Constitution for the State, as recommended by the recent Legislature. He was decidedly of opinion that a new Constitution was highly desirable. It was fifty years ago, he said, that the present fundamental law was adopted. During that time vast changes had taken place.

Lawyer's Methods Condemned
A severe condemnation of the professional conduct of a former Pennsylvania Congressman, John H. Rothermel, a member of the House of Representatives, was the outstanding feature of the report of the Committee on Grievances, presented by Frank C. McGirr, of Pittsburgh, chairman.

Legal Discipline Urged
The Special Committee on Legal Discipline, comprised of Paul H. Gaither, of Greensburg; Frank C. McGirr, of Pittsburgh; and George Wentworth Carr, of Philadelphia, reported a proposed act giving original jurisdiction to the Superior Court, in addition to the jurisdiction already possessed by the local courts, in cases of disbarment or discipline of lawyers, and providing for the appointment by the Supreme Court of a Committee on Grievances to receive, investigate and prosecute charges of professional misconduct.

Campaign for More Members
That there are upward of 8000 lawyers engaged in Pennsylvania was one of the things brought out in the report of the Committee on Admissions, presented by the chairman, George Wentworth Carr, of Philadelphia. The figures were presented as an incentive for the continuance of a drive for new membership in the association.

WIFE PUTS DISCORD IN TOSTI'S 'GOOD-BY'

"There's My Husband With Another Woman," She Cries as Band Ends Composition

HARMONY FOLLOWS ARREST

The echoes of Tosti's "Good-by" by the Fairmount Park Band had barely died away last night when a discordant note was raised by a woman's voice. It carried the tone of a woman wronged. The good-by forever notes were still lingering in the ears of the audience when the woman, with a baby in her arms, rose and said "There's my husband with another woman."

Bank Head Tells of Trust in Zell

here again on June 1 and told us that Zell was overboard in the market. I realized that he had been tricking me all the time. I told him I did not dream that he was involved to any great extent, and when he told me that he would straighten out everything I believed him just as I had done all the time.

Directors Are Deceived

"No one realizes what a blow it has been to me. Perhaps we should not have had such implicit faith in Zell. He didn't fool me alone. All of us believed in Zell, and all now realize the grave error committed when we did not believe him as treasurer when first we heard, six months ago."

Gentlemen Bandits' Rob City Hall

Miami, Fla., June 28.—By A. P.—Two "gentlemen highwaymen," one in evening dress, the other wearing a Tuxedo, entered the City Hall, just around the corner from the police station here, last night, held up J. C. Turner, assistant city clerk, and escaped with $4850 in cash and $900 in city checks.

"No More Banks for Me," Says Farmer, Twice Loser

Lancaster, Pa., June 28.—One of the many farmers who lost their all in the crash of the Agricultural Trust Co., in handing in his pass book, told Special Deputy Banking Commissioner Graff that he became a depositor only three weeks ago after he had lost considerable money when the bank at Landisville had been stuck up and robbed by bandits.

"There was a tip going around that something was going to happen," said Mr. Malone, "and I got busy right away and managed to pry loose the $18,000 before the crash arrived."

"I told them the truth when I said that I took about $200,000. Zell told his attorney today, 'and, furthermore, this will be considered reduced when the accounts that I had with my brokers are turned in. Then I want to turn over to the receiver of the trust company my life insurance, which amounts to quite a sum. Putting all of my assets together, I will be able to reduce my shortage at least $65,000."

Zell Anxious to Help

"Zell is a contrite man," said Mr. Malone. "He wants to help all he can to straighten out the middle, and I believe he is sincere. I have advised him to come clean, as he has all to gain and nothing to lose by a confession. He is in a highly nervous condition and now wants me to keep his wife away from jail. He said his first desire was to see her, but he now thinks that asking his wife to come to him in jail will humiliate her, and he has asked me to forbid it."

"I have instructed Zell to waive hearing and have advised the authorities to that effect. He will also plead guilty at his trial and thus save time and trouble."

"I have known him since he was knee-high," said President Royer. "I watched him as he grew up and began to make rapid strides in the financial world. I respected him as a financial wizard. He was such a wonderful talker and such a convincing one that all who knew him had the utmost confidence in him. When I was asked to head the institution in which Charlie Zell was a director I was proud. I felt glad that I was to be associated with a man of his intelligence and character, but he fooled me—he fooled all of us. Personally, he has not inflicted any financial damage on me, not individually, but many of my good friends were taken in. I only hope we will be able to straighten affairs out in such a way as to render a good return to the depositors."

Depositor Warned in Time

John E. Malone, leading criminal lawyer of this county, who has been engaged as counsel by Zell, admitted last night that only a few hours before the institution closed its doors he succeeded in withdrawing $18,000 for one of his clients.

BLOOD TREATMENT TO CURE DRUG HABIT

Member of Allied Medical Association Would Substitute It for State Method

AGAINST CONFINING ADDICT

Atlantic City, June 28.—Institutional confinement as largely practiced today for the cure of the drug habit, an evil which has become to an extent a national menace, is frowned on by Dr. George E. Bille, of Harrisburg, who specialized in the study of the victims. He gave his views today in an address before the tenth annual convention of the Allied Medical Association at the Traymore Hotel.

"Prohibition, so far as my observation is concerned, has exerted a tendency to largely increase the addicts, and Pennsylvania is no exception," he said.

He opposed the entrance of the Federal and State addicts into the field of curing the addicts, which largely follows the plan of confinement. He argued that the blood of the victim provides relief and cure. His experiments proved conclusively to him that the blood was a counter-corrective for all excessive indulgence in drugs. Institutional cures, he pointed out, leave the patients lacking will power. He found that all drugs taken regularly form a compound tissue poison, whose effects on the system remain long after the drug has been eliminated.

The cure, he said, in treating the victim with his own modified blood, which normalizes all his functions and restores his normal emotional resistance against the drug.

Recent statistics show that death in this nation comes to 100,000 people annually from cancer and that the number of victims is steadily increasing. The convention was told by Dr. Frederick Dugale, of Boston, Mass., who has made a study of the dread malady for eighteen years. Cancer, he said, has been found to be a malignant tumor, due to causes which are interesting as expressed by investigators.

Cat Gets Owner "In Bad"

John Hoffman, 1123 Poplar street, was awakened yesterday morning by a noise which he believed to have been made by burglars. Police were summoned and turned over to the Federal authorities.

He promptly confiscated and returned to Hoffman a cat wedged fast in a stovepipe of an outside kitchen. Nobody knows what happened to the cat.

HUDSON SUPER-SIX

Have You Noted Its New Price Advantage?

Regardless of your ability to buy any car you choose, consider if you can find the justification of finer quality, in a costlier car than Hudson.

To appreciate its value you need not be a Hudson enthusiast in the sense of those thousands who hold it essentially the greatest of all cars. But you must recognize its long-held position among the leaders in performance, reliability and distinction.

And consider what an endorsement is represented in its more than five years' leadership of fine car sales.

Now that its price advantage is even more intensified, will not its sixth year of sales leadership show even a greater margin of popular preference?

A Gruelling Test to Prove OILDAG

O I PLUS Deflocculated Acheson Graphite

Is the World's Best Lubricant

Starting from the Chevrolet Salesroom, 334 North Broad street, on Thursday, June 30, at 4 P. M. a Chevrolet car with the oil drained from its motor will run north on Broad street and over the Boulevard to Sears, Roebuck & Co. plant and return.

This amazing achievement will be made possible by the graphoid surface formed from using Oildag.

What Is OILDAG?

Oildag is colloidal graphite, an invention of Dr. Acheson's, held in suspension in a high-grade lubrication oil.

This ultra-microscopic graphite amalgamates with the cylinder walls, bearings, etc., and forms a graphoid surface which reduces friction to a minimum.
