By CYNTHIA Better Let Matters Drop

THIS is not a universal problem, but an interesting one. Tradition has it that a man should be older than his wife by four to not any biological or sociol ogical or sociol ogical freason, this idea has persisted for centuries. It is similar to the fixed opinion that the man always should be taller. He that conceptor

And so we see occasional men of fifty—widowers, of course, few bach-elors at that age would be endurable if suddenly translated trom selfish bach-elordom to matrimony—who are ador-thg and delightful and appreciative hus-bands. They recall all sorts of little things that women find important, and they regard indulgently certain tem-pers and outbursts which infuriate the younger men. They have a same, bal let others care for theirs.

We frown on the wedding of a woman with a man ten years her ju-nier, for we see in the future her tragic struggle to seem young. She cannot grow old gracefully and normally, along with her contemporaries, but must use every art and artifice to stave off cruel time. But the saddest is not the necessity of wrinkle-removers and face-massage, and dyed hair and softened lights; it is the psychological effect on berself. She depreciates herself. She

Don't be broken-hearted about this trouble of yours. It is hard for you, of course, but remember that things like that always seem worse to the person who has them than to those who look on from the outside. Try bleaching the hair with peroxide to which a few drops of ammonia have been added. This will discourse the growth although it may hair with peroxide to which a tew drows of ammonia have been added. This will discourage the growth, although it may not remove the hair entirely. Have you tried depilatories that are sold at the drug stores? Even if you have to repeat the treatment from time to time. I am sure you can get relief from this annoyance by means of one of these or the peroxide. You know if you just try to forget all about it, and be just as happy and pretty as you can fingte of it, you fingt the is a civil engineer and cannot come in his letter he did not say anything and pretty as you can fingte of it, you fingt the commendation to the make people overlook it entirely. Try to do this, don't let your life be made miserable by something which really isn't so dreadfully bad as you think he means to pay for it for me?" She is going to marry the man, but to the Editor of Woman's Page:

Wants to Write for Papers

Dear Madam—I am very anxious to write for newspapers and magazines. wish you could give me a few hints as o what kind of writings, not including fation, are most in demand and also where to sell them, I. A. W. Have you tried any of the magazines? Write an article on some current events.

Have you tried any of the magazines? Write an article on some current events, travel, or something that you know any-that an appeal, and send it off to the first magazines you happen to think of. If it comes back send it to some one else, and keep on sending it around until some one takes it. If you know any-thing about cooking, sewing, something new in housekeeping or women's inter-ests send it to one of the women's of articles of this kind and sell them to papera or magazines, and if you in the meantime keep going the rounds of the magazines until you are suc-cessful. I hope that will be very soon.
