DEMPESEY IS NERVOUS AND ERRATIC ON EVE OF GREATEST BATTLE

Champion. Physically Perfect. Worries Over Trifles and Constantly Changes His Plans

MANAGER SHOULD HANDLE

Strain of Ten Weeks' Training Makes Him Anxious to Quit Camp

IS THE HEAVY FAVORITE

Should Defeat Carpenter With Little Difficulty if He Recovers Mental Equilibrium

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL, Sports Editor Evening Public Ledger

Astoria City, N. J., July 1.—The time has come to introduce the big "IF" in the battle of the century, as the spectacle at Jersey City is being called. Latest reports give Jack Dempsey an overwhelming victory, with all but the rural district around Manhamet to be used from. The vote out there is not expected to affect the final count, although it is said to be sold for Carpenter.

Dempsey is the heavy favorite because he has done better work and shown more class in his training. He hits harder, possesses cleverness and has all the confidence in the world. He can bring down any man he can hit, and the spectators believe he is a 1-to-100 shot. However, all is not well with the champion at this writing. True, he is physically perfect and ready to put up the fight of his life; but mentally he is NOT so good. The big boy is worried. He is brooding over little things, constantly changing his plans, and going from one cleverness to another. He is beginning to tell on him, and he is getting very nervous.

Leaves Camp Today

He planned to leave for Jersey City Saturday morning on a special train, but living at the arena shortly after 1 o'clock. Everything had been arranged, but yesterday other plans were divulged. He said he would leave today on the regular train and travel in a drawing room. He will have no guests, only his manager and his trainers. All of this has been known where it will be.

The champion wants to get away from the hands of his manager, and he has been annoyed by process servers, his car has been attached a couple of times and deputy sheriffs have been hanging on his heels. He is allowing them to go on and Dempsey says he will take the law.

Dempsy a Winner Unless—

"I cannot see how Carpenter can win, but of course, there may be a fluke. Just as sometimes happens in football. But that is improbable and I really think his victory tomorrow is certain."
