FIGHTERS ON EDGE; NOW NEED SLEEP

"Night Before Battle" Has Marred Chances of Many Champions and Challengers

It is an old story of both the ring and the field. And it may come to even the gamest. Travers knew it at Muirfield, where for nine hours he looked, open eyed, into the darkness, until his weary perves finally gave way at dawn, leav ing him an easy prey to the first opponent in sight.

Time to Think

Both the champion and the challenger now have time to think it over with their physical training done. Dempsey has trained too much in the whirl of the crowd, and Car | nuti-aircraft guns. pentier has made no violent effort to toughten his fiber against the punishment he will be forced to weather But in the main they are both as ready as men can get for the job of carrying out the basic ideals of their chosen profession.

Champion and challenger together ter improve. Whether the remarkable outburst of Prof. George Bernard Shaw had anything to do with the shift is not known. George Bernard has duly warned a gullible public against Donor. warned a gullible public against Dempsey's quick and sudden overthrow at the Remembering Madison Square Garden just after the Brennan fight. Dempsey dreads this first moment more than any two swings his apponent may have to hurl his way. He has already been told that the big majority of the andience will be for his rival, something upon a home field unheard of in the vast history of sport. crushing smash.

Or it may be that any such public display will have the effect of killing off his ambition to win, leaving him in the lethargy of a drooping spirit that no longer cares. Not even Demnsey himself can know how his subconcensions spirit will work in with the feeling of the crowd.

This, to us in the most investigation.

This, to us, is the most important phase of the fight. It has been shown clearly enough that in a physical way Dempsey is heavier, stronger, far more rugged and about as fast in those departments where speed is a vital asset. Can Hit Fast Man

He has shown that while he can be hit by a fast man, he can also hit a fast man bimself, and his with more punishing effect, both hands considered, than his rival. But Carpentier, with the volatile Latin temperament that thrives upon acclaim and the braves of the populace, is sure to be psychologically at his best. The feeling that so many from a foreign nation are with him can have but one effect. If he is even close to the campion in a physical way, counting up both strength and speed, and if he has the stammer to take something and still keep on the way, this paychological edge will have a big effect and play an important part in the final returns.

The odds against him might be even lower if he had whipped just one good man since he laid aside his sky hippuniform of service and returned to civil life. But in his care so much has to be taken on faith, with so little actually because the latter than the heart of latter than the l own to indicate that he has the quali

Dempsey Cares Little About Shaw's Opinion

Atlantic City, N. J., July 1.— When Champion Jack Dempsey was shown the published statement of George Bernard Shaw that Carpentier is invincible and should be a 50 to 1 favorite, all he had to say was "is that so." Jack knew who Shaw was, but he seemed to have no more interest in the great play wright's opinions than he has in the price of ukuleles in Sumatra.

On being pressed he said: "Every man is entitled to his own opinion and I don't think I'll worry much about what people in Ergland think of Saturday's fight."

This "night before the battle" has marred as many champions and challengers as any opponent's speed or power on the following day. Only those upon the eve of some hig test who have looked for endless hours with wide, staring eves at the ceiling, wait-wide, staring even at the ceiling count.

In France with its separate air ministry airplanes for commercial routes are subsidized by the Government, which pays balf the cost of operation. The result is that from Paris there is a daily air service to all the more impor-tant capitals of Europe, including the distant Constantinople. It costs little distant Constantinople. This Government is far behind in this respect. General Mitchell thas done remarkable work in training his fliers to act in squadrons, surpassing anything done abroad, but beyond this the United States is falling behind.
