Architect Questions Failure to Call Conferences Between Employer and Employees

WANTS STRIFE ENDED

In an open letter to Ernest T. Trigg, chairman of the Industrial Relations Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, D. Knickerbocker Boyd, an architect of this city, calls the former to account by questioning his failure to call constructive conferences between employers and employees in the building trades and put an end to the present situation of strife and bickering.

"The public," says Mr. Boyd in his letter, "would now like to be informed why you, standing for the industrial welfare of Philadelphia and its supremacy as the 'workshop of the world,' do not require and demand that the employers and workmen shall immediately confer and shall not stop conferring until a definite understanding shall be reached which will insure to the public that all the problems of the building industry will be worked out co-operatively now and in the future."

"You did last February call a four-day conference of the construction industry in this city, showing that you recognize the importance of that industry and realize the possibilities your position in the way of leadership offers. I was honored by both you and labor in the position I held during the conference and was also made one of the members of the committee on resolutions."

"As such I was a party to the call, adopted at the closed meeting, that detailed conference be held in Philadelphia between labor, employers, material interests, financial interests, architects and engineers at once with the purpose of reaching an understanding among all concerned which will cause the immediate release of contracts for building construction."

"May I inquire why no such conference has been called under your leadership? The present and the future success of the building industry can only be assured through the creation of some permanent tribunal, congress or a central committee to work out and solve its problems."

Mr. Trigg expressed regret that the letter of Mr. Boyd had been given to the newspapers without a copy having been sent to him. "It always makes me angry when such matters as this are referred to the public without my receiving official notice of them myself. When I receive a copy of the letter I shall be glad to make answer to it."

"I suppose you know," added Mr. Trigg, "that Mr. Boyd is a spokesman of the union labor interests in this city."

CALL REV. DR. AQUILLA WEBB

Presbyterian Pastor is Invited to Wilmington Charge

The Rev. Dr. Aquilla Webb, pastor of the Central North Broad Street Presbyterian Church, has received a call from the First and Central Presbyterian Church, of Wilmington, Del.

The congregation of the Wilmington church unanimously decided to extend the call at a meeting held last night.

Dr. Webb has been pastor of the North Broad street church for four years. Previous to that he was pastor of the Warren Memorial Presbyterian Church, of Louisville, Ky. He is a graduate of Harvard Theological Seminary.

Dr. Webb, today, at his home in the Lyndhurst Apartment, Sixteenth and Green streets, said he could not discuss his plans until normal notification of the call is received.

"Any man would hesitate to decline such a call," Dr. Webb said. "I would, however, regret severing my connections here. Since I became pastor of the Central North Broad Street Church, my congregation has been very good to me in many ways. They provided me recently with an assistant pastor. The call from Wilmington is flattering indeed."

GIRARD STAFF IS INCREASED

Six Appointments at College Announced; Scholarships Awarded

Six additions to the administrative and teaching staffs of Girard College were announced yesterday by the Board of City Trusts, following its monthly meeting in the Lafayette Building.

Dr. Henry R. Wharton was made emeritus consulting surgeon; Dr. Charles Nassau and Dr. Edward J. Klipp were appointed consulting surgeons; Frank D. Potter was named as head gardener of the college; John Langley Jones was appointed a teacher of French, and J. Earl Kaufman, playground teacher.

Simon Muhr collegiate scholarships were awarded to the following: Mary Hilda Howe, West Philadelphia High School, to Holyoke College; Margaret Elizabeth McConnell, Kensington High School, to University of Pennsylvania; Frederick Casciato, West Philadelphia High School, to University of Pennsylvania, and Nicholas F. Tedi, Central High School, to University of Pennsylvania.

Falls Into Manhole

Charles Offelt, of 2828 North Opal street, stepped on the cover of a manhole at Sixth and Spruce streets last night, causing the cover to turn under his 200-pound weight, and Offelt slipped into the hole to his waist. His head came in contact with the edge of the manhole cover and it required twelve stitches to close a scalp laceration at the Pennsylvania Hospital. Offelt also received treatment for alcoholism and later was locked up at the Third District police station.

SNIFF, THEN WEEPI

27,000 Gallons of Alcohol Will Pay Philadelphia Call Today

Provided there is a good breeze from seaward, residents along the coast from Cape Cod to the Delaware may sniff with a sigh a breath from the past as the bark Tiburton passes down the coast on her run from Boston to Philadelphia. The vessel at Boston showed 27,000 gallons of alcohol in her hold. Philadelphia is a port of call and her voyage will terminate on the Gold Coast, where Monrovia, Freetown and Grand Bassa, Africa, will blithely unload her cargo.

Her reason for coming here is as yet unexplained. The bark's home port is Panama and it sails under the flag of that republic.

THIEVES RAID WINE CELLAR

During the temporary absence of the family of Alexander Lieberman, 1301 North Broad street, thieves invaded the cellar of their home and stole twelve cases of champagne and twenty cases of whisky, wines and cordials valued at $2000, police say. The thieves are believed to have used a motortruck to remove the booze.

DR. BATTEN GOING TO CAMP

Will Look After Boys Taking Summer Course in Adirondacks

The Rev. Dr. Samuel Zane Batten, head of the Baptist Department of Social Service, will pass the next four weeks at Camp Orangeton, on Orangeton Lake, in the Adirondack Mountains.

Dr. Batten is dean of the faculty at this boys' camp, which is conducted under the auspices of the Baptist Brotherhood Federation of the Northern Baptist Convention. One hundred boys, ranging in age from fourteen to twenty, including some from this city, are taking the summer course, which provides the "happiest possible ministry to the whole life of the boy."

The Rev. Dr. J. Foster Wilcox, of New York, but formerly of this city, is director of the camp. He has conducted boys' camps twenty years.

NABS BOYS AS THIEVES

Two 14-Year-Old Youths Accused of Robbing Shoe Dealer

Two fourteen-year-old boys are accused by the police of making an early morning raid on a shoe dealer in the rear of 418 Market street and stealing a suitcase full of new shoes.

The accused youths are Salvatore Posano, Montrose street near Fifth, and Thomas Chirico, Eleventh street near Meris. Detectives Powers, of the Fourth and Race streets station, was standing at the corner of Fourth and Market streets shortly after 2 o'clock this morning when he saw two boys coming from the rear of the stores fronting on Market street. One of them carried a suitcase.

Powers questioned them and they declared they were on their way home from a trip. Powers ordered them to open the suitcase and found it contained twelve pairs of new shoes. He placed the boys under arrest. He later conducted an investigation and found the Specialty Shoe Co. had been broken into and the stock ransacked. Entrance had been effected by means of a fire escape and forcing a second-story window.

Boys Accused of Bungalow Theft

Spring Mount, Pa., July 14. — A series of thefts from bungalows along the Peshlomen has led to the arrest of two Philadelphia boys. The police say the boys confessed to thefts ranging from a talking machine to bedding. The prisoners are Douglas Kane, thirteen year old, and Paul Sheridan, thirteen years, both of 1002 South Forty-fifth street, Philadelphia. They have been committed to the House of Detention and will be arraigned in Montgomery County Court this week.
