SEARCHING FOR THE SCOTCH

Custom officials, prohibition agents, Department of Justice men and other Government operatives came in bunches until midnight and were dispatched to various parts of this city with orders to search up the 1000 cases of Scotch believed to be hidden here. The principal places under surveillance were the three thoroughfares leading from Atlantic City—Albany avenue, Oak avenue and Longport. Others were to stop all trucks and other suspicious vehicles for a minute examination.

Hiding Place Still Hidden

Customs Inspector Agnew, assisted by other Government men, made the searches at an early hour this morning, but their efforts did not reveal the hiding place. They have labored incessantly since they came here Saturday.
