New York and Cleveland Are Only Contenders for Championship in the American League Race

FOURTH OF CRUCIAL SERIES ON BETWEEN YANKS AND INDIANS

New York Has Won Seven of Twelve Games Played With Cleveland—Possibility of Change in Standing of the Clubs

> By ROBERT W. MAXWELL Sports Editor Evening Public Ledger

THE time has come to set the stage for another of those well-known and highly advertised "crucial" series. These things are getting quite numerous and occurring with amazing frequency. Every time the great national game becomes slightly ragged a couple of teams get together and put on some exciting contests to determine the leadership of the league, which means nothing at this time. It is quite difficult—well-nigh impossible—to win a pennant in July. That is just the same as winning the flag in March. The last week in September or the first couple of days in October is the best time to put on that victorious stuff.

However, we have with us today the New York Yankees and the Cleveland Indians. They are meeting in the fourth act of the "croocials," and the winner will win, while the loser can do nothing but lose. Gotham is all het up about it and the gate receipts will not suffer to any great extent. teams are close to each other, are the only contenders for the championship of Mr. Johnson's circuit and are forced to light it out among themselves. The other six clubs are used for local color and other scenery purposes In order to get this up in proper shape, have a look at the first three acts of the thrilling and sensational drama compiled by Ernie Lanigan, the well-known and highly efficient figger expect. He has produced the following:

THE Yankees won the first three games, but when they attempted to make it A four Cleveland absolutely and positively refused to stand for it. George Thie stepped into the picture with some baffling twisters and turned back Mr Ruth and his pals. He scored the decision over Alec Ferguson, a native of Bloomfield, N. J.

ACT TWO

A GAIN the Yanks socked the Indians, winning the first two games. After that Speaker proved that the Tribe could turn the tables and walloped the Gothamites in the third game 14 to 4, and copping the final in eleven innings S to 6. This was done by scoring three counters in the ninth and knotting ACT THREE

A FTER winning the first game the Yanks took a slender hold on first place. They were out in the sunlight for twenty-four hours, when they were buried under a 17-to-8 score. The next day, with Allan Sothoron hurling, a 3-to-0 win was put over. The Yanks took the final 7 to 3.

YOU never can tell.

SUMMING up, one finds that twelve battles have been fought and Cleveland has won all but seven. It the Yanks keep up the good work there might be a change in the first line of the won and lost

Leading Club Not Always Best Hitters

VICTORY does not always perch on the banner of the best-hitting club. If such were the case the Indians would have been further out in front, They outlit the men of M. Huggins, the team averages prior to vesterday being 303 for Cleveland and .280 for New York. In the five games they wor Speaker's men hit the ball at a .364 clip, and when they lost it was .225. The Yanks, winning, socked the pill for .280, and losing they averaged .266a difference of only 14 points. In their first dozen games with the Tribe the Yankees never were able to score more than nine runs, while Cleveland got 17 tailies on July 21 when the Speakerites regained first place in the pennant pursuit, and on June 9 the Western club rang the scoring gong 14 times at the expense of Quinn, Ferguson. Collins and Sheehan. In this game followers of the Indians had no cause for complaint over the evenness of their team's hitting, for each New York artillerist yielded the same number of blows-four. The quartet of raps extracted from Harry Warren Collins came without his being able to retire a man, and he passed a couple of men who didn't hit safely while he was operating. New York outscored Cleveland by three runs in the first dozen meetings between the teams, the tallies being 67 for the Easterners and 64 for the Westerners. In hits the Indians had the advantage by 10, making 129 to the Yankees' 119. Cleveland's defensive work has been better, too, the Ohioans' errors numbering 13 to the New Yorkers' 18. But New York has won two more games.

Philadelphia is well represented in this series, former members of the deties stepping into the picture as stars. Bob Shawkey is the pitching star, having won three games. Frank Baker registered eighteen safe blows and is the leading slugger on the Yanks. For Cleveland the hitting honors go to Charley Jamieson, with nineteen safeties. Charley played in the outfield for Connie before going to the Indians.

IEW YORK has a good chance to cop in the fourth act. Speaker NEW YORK has a good chance to rop in the sidelines. With turned his ankle in Boston and is said to be on the sidelines. With Spoke out of the line-up the team loses 50 per cent of its strength. And they need all they get on the Polo Grounds.

Golf Pairings May Make or Break

SOME golfers paired together in an open tournament put on a duet, but in many cases it's only a solo. Sometimes it's not even that.

When a player with a reputation fails to qualify in an event there's usually a story behind it, especially if he turns around the next week and wins a tournament with about the same field entered. Such was the case with "Big Bob" McDonald, the well-known Chicago expert. He did not qualify at Columbia, but let loose at Siwanoy, surprised all of the talent and walked away from there with first money on the hip. But McDonald was a victim of circumstances at Columbia. He was paired with a player who was going at top form. In fact, his partner made two pars and a bird on the first hole alone, or something like that. However, after adding that all up. McDonald's partner decided that he had enough. picked up, offered to carry McDonald's clubs and otherwise asserted that he would play no more. From the second tee to the last all he did was wield a pencil on the scorecard for McDonald. The hig Chicago pro played by himself probably for the first time, and it wasn't a success. He couldn't play golf that way, and nobody else can. Also there is the case of J. Wood Platt, the Philadelphia amateur, who had found Columbia built to order-in practice rounds. But his partner to qualify was a pro out of the wilds of Beaver Falls, Pa. It is said that he Perhaps he was trying to prove coudn't even break $5 on his own course. it, but he finished that day with a snappy 92. Platt is the fastest player in the country. His partner held him back as nearly every hole. He lost his ball on the first seven, while other pairs went He hardly made a golf shot all the way around, and it took him about four hours of trying. Nobody can play in a champlonship with a partner like that.

It is said that Hagen's deliberate style of playing golf always worries his partner, but Hagen plays real golf, which makes all the difference.

JIM BARNES not only held his lead all through the national championship, but actually improved on it as he went along. A lot of credit this time goes to his partner, O'Hara, especially in the fourth round, where O'Hara was playing Barnes stroke for stroke. That driving finish landed Barnes out in front, nine strokes to the good. All of which shows what difference a good partner makes.

Lew Grimson May Referee Big Bout

TN A short time the promoters, managers and boxers will get together and try to decide on a referee for the Leonard Tendler match on August 12 This always happens, especially when a champton is in the ring. The boxers and managers cannot be blamed for being particular in selecting the third man, because when he steps into the ring he has absolute charge and is monarch of all he surveys. The Wilson-Downer episode in Cleveland recently shows how careful one must be A referee must be feurless, active and have a thorough knowledge of the

He also must have the respect and confidence of the contestants. Such a man is Lew Grimson, former referee at the Olympia and one of the leading arbiters in this section of the commers. Grimson is a possibility for referee and should not be overlooked by Leonard or Tendler. He is capable, curs all of his fights properly, is sincere, conscientious and honest. He has had wide experience and both Leonard and Tendler know of his work. He has referred ten times for Leonard and eight times for Tendler. His work was satisfactory in each battle. Lew also has referred for Dempsey, Britton, Herman, Killiane and most of the champions.

GIANTS CROWDING PIRATES FOR LEAD

Four Points Less Than Half a Game Separate the Teams. Indians Gain on Yanks

MORTON HURLS GREAT GAME

The Giants crept a half game closer to the Pirates yesterday in that sixreel thriller entitled "The Race for First Place." The lead was narrowed down through the generosity of the weather, which prevented the Buccaneers from playing their scheduled contest with the Braves, while the Giants were favored with good enough weather and hefty hitting to defeat the Reds. their trouble-makers two weeks ago.

Pat Moran started Donohue, his Texas Brother College hurler, on the mound and he went along well for two innings after the first. In the fourth he stumbled and permitted the Giants to knot the figures after his teammates had handed him a quartet of counters in the first and one in the second. The Cincy boys went into the lead at the end of the seventh only to be outscored in the eighth. ures were knotted again in the ninth by the Moranmen, but in the tenth along came the Giants' wrecking crew ith three lusty runs and the verdict While the Giants were gaining a hal In the Giants were gaining a nair game on the league-leading Pirates, the Indians in the junior circuit were widening the breach between themselves and the Yanks my a half game.
