Nancy Wynne Sees Smart Clothes Worn by Shoppers. She Hears of Parties in Narragansett Pier and at Southampton

WHY any one should come to town their son, Mr. Gibson Graham, of Pastorius at reet, Germantown, are occupying a cottage down at the senshore I cannot understand. But there are reasons, of course. ben I saw Lucy Grey on Chestnut reet, though at first I wondered why earth she was not in Cape May, I en earth she was not in Cape May, I realized that there was a perfectly good reason right here in town, even if she did not have to do any shopping, which was part of her reason for coming up. After which strange preliminary I am here to say that she looked perfectly sweet in a frock of dark blue voile dotted in white, held in at the waist with a plain blue sash, and finished at the neck and sleeves with blue tabs. Her hat was a small model in dark blue, turned up off the face. Lacy's hair is so pretty; it is bobbed to the face that the neck and sleeves with blue target shade of gold. and it is of that rare shade of gold just turning into red. She has the most alive expression and such a humorous twinkle in her eyes, I love to look at mikle in her eyes, I love to look at sinkle in her eyes, I love to look at I saw Mrs. Harry Waln Harrison Chestnut street, too, a few days of and she looked very cool, which will admit is a hard thing to doer dress was a one-piece affair of ht yellow linen, made on perfectly in lines and trimmed down both sides the tiny flat white bows. Her hat is of white straw and on either side the prim hung narrow ends of white.

Mrs. John R. Hunsberger, 19 East Tulpehocken street, has returned from a trip to New York and from Short Hills, N. J., where she was the guest of her niece, Mrs. E. D. Forker. She also visited Miss Claire Meperie in East Orange, N. J. On August 12, Mrs. Hunsberger's daughter, Miss Barbara Hunsberger's will go to New York to be the guest for some time of her aunt. Mrs. Hunsberger will later come to Germantown to visit Mrs. J. Mitchail Rose and her daughter. of the brim hung narrow ends of white ribbon. Her shoes and stockings also were white. Mrs. Harrison always wears stunning clothes. She has much the coloring of Lucy Grey, and is very that leading. good looking.

DOESN'T it make you fairly sizzie even to think of dancing? And yet y had a ball up at Narragansett r Thursday night. I suppose it is intensely hot there in the evening. Pier Thursday night. I suppose it is not intensely hot there in the evening. This hotness is all over the country, though. I had a letter from Maine just a day or so ago and was told that the thermometer had been ninety for several days. Anyway they had the bail, and it was a great success. Mrs. Aleck Brown gave a large dinner at her villa before the ball, and several other Philadelphians entertained. I should think it would be strange not to have Dorothy Norris up there some part of the summer. Just think, she will have been married a year in Sentember. Never will I forget that wedding and have been married a year in Sentember.
Never will I forget that wedding and

The Mirrors of Washington

Whoever wrote "The Mirrors of Washington" (G. P. Putnam's Sons), frankly an imitation of "The Mirrors of Downing Street," wields a facile and brillion of Downing Street," wields a facile and brilliant pen. The man was in Paris during the Peace Conference and he is familiar with New York and Washing-ton. He must have been in Marion last summer while Mr. Harding was hav-ing his conferences with politicians. He thus writes with first-hand knowledge what has happened in all these

The merit of the book lies in its please that gentleman, though he may be grateful for some of the things that it contains. For example, it is stated that the plan adopted by Mr. Hughes in the insurance investigation in New York was the same as a plan which Mr. Knox had formulated, a plan the execution of which made Mr. Hughes a national figure and started him on his political career. Mr. Knox will not like to have it said, however, that he has only the wings of the Sparrow. Mr. Penrose, on the other hand, can read the estimate of him without batting an eyelash unless he batted it to make a sly wink at some nearby observer. This is because Mr. Penrose has no illusions and is as frank about himself and his methods as the most constitution. New York: E. P. Dutton of the Sparrow.

Woozy Stories by Mrs.Rinehart In "Sight Unseen" and "The Confession" (George H. Doran Co.), Mary Roberts Rinehart has produced two "ghost" stories which will take their place with the best of the kind. 'Sight Unseen' tells how a spiritualist medium described a murder that had just happened in the neighborhood. which those present were unaware until several hours later. The medium knew no more about it than the others. In the absence of evidence to the contrary, out to discover whether there was anything back of what the medium describes on the night of the murder, and they found that there was. The story is told with Mrs. Rinehart's well-known skill in character drawing and in unfolding a plot. Spiritualists will not be satisfied with her explanation of what happened, but psychologists who accept the theory of thought transference will admit that she has made it all seem plausible. "The Confession" is also done five years before the events de fear and conscience that Hawthorne around an old mansion in the country rented for the summer by a mature, unmarried woman. Some sinister influence seems to permeate the place The telephone bell rings at night for no apparent reason.
