

Actor Notified He Will Find His Personal Effects in Warehouse

SOME GARMENTS MISSING

New York, Aug. 9.-Lou Tollegen's immediate problem was solved today. His personal effects, notably his wardrobe, which he has been trying to recover, were sent by his wife. Geraldine Farrar, not to him at the Ritz or Long Beach, but to neutral ground-a storage warehouse. There he is at liberty to call for them. His secretary went to the warehouse vesterday with a written inventory of all the possessions the actor remembers to have left at his wife's home, 20 West Seventy-fourth street. The secretary reported a few odds and ends were missing. "But, of course," said Harry M. Steinfeld, Mr. Tellegen's attorney. "this came about through oversight, and we expect to recover the rest of my -lient's belongings as soon as we have told Mrs.

Tellegen's attorney what they are." A good deal of typewriting was in-dulged in before the clothes and other chattels of Mr. Tellegen reached the warehouse. Last week, before Mr. Tellegen began the separation suit in which no papers bars as yet been filed.

which no papers have as yet been filed, he went, according to his lawyer, many an afternoon to his wife's house and found the door locked against him. So when the papers in the law suit were prepared, and, as the lawyer says, served on Miss Farrar, Mr. Steinfeld wrote to Alvin Untermyer, the attor-ney representing Miss Farrar, asking ney representing diss partial entry that Mr. Tellegen be permitted entry in order to get the things he had left as noted by

Mr. Untermyer's reply, as noted by Mr. Steinfeld, was that the things were to be sent to Mr. Tellegen, but that an essential fact was lacking, that being his address. So, as Mr. Tellegen wished personally to collect his effects. Mr. Steinfeld wrote to Mr. Untermyer again, suggesting that the latter name a day and hour when Mr. Tellegen could call at the home of Mrs. Tellegen and gather up his impedimenta.

Mr. Untermyer's answer was received that showed the million-dollar Gothic resterday. It was a notification that the said articles her been placed in a Manhattan storage warehouse.

Camels are made for Men who Think for Themselves

Such folks know real quality-and DEMAND it.

They prefer Camels because Camels give them the smoothest, mellowest smoke they can buy-because they love the mild, rich flavor of choicest tobaccos, perfectly blended—and because Camels leave NO CIGARETTY AFTERTASTE.

Like every man who does his own thinking, you want fine tobacco in your cigarettes. You'll find it in Camels.

And, mind you, no flashy package just for show. No extra wrappers! No costly frills. These things don't improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons.

But QUALITY! Listen! That's CAMELS!
