

CAMDEN BUS FARES TO STAY AT 7 CENTS

Association Official Says Old Rate Will Remain Despite Boost on Trolleys

TRANSIT BOOST SOON

The present seven-cent fare on the trolley buses running from Camden will be continued even when the trolley fare is advanced from seven to eight cents, with an additional two-cent charge for transfers.

This was announced today by Horace L. Brewer, president of the Camden County Bus Association, who said the trolley operators expect to raise the fare into the trolley passenger traffic when the eight-cent fare becomes effective.

The increased trolley fare is to become effective as soon as the company files a stipulation agreeing to refund to passengers the excess over the present fare in case the Federal courts finally rule that the eight-cent fare is not warranted.

Favors Five-Cent Fare Later Mr. Brewer said he advocated a five-cent trolley fare in case the Public Service Corporation finally wins its fight for a ten-cent fare. He has, however, determined by the Public Utility Commission of New Jersey. The commission set the fare at seven cents, with two cents for transfers, but the commission's order will be set aside by the action of the Federal court.

At present there are about one hundred buses operating from Camden, five routes between Camden and Trenton, and five routes running from the Camden and Philadelphia ferries to Haddon avenue.

Mr. Brewer said the laws affecting trolley fares are designed to give the public the maximum advantage. He said, however, that the trolley fare is not to be raised to eight cents, but to remain at seven cents.

Would Speed Up Trips The bus association president said it would be possible to cut the running time of the trolley between Camden and Philadelphia, for instance, by 40 per cent, if it were not for restrictive city ordinances.

The saving in time could be done, he added, without exceeding the speed of eighteen miles an hour. The trolley fare to Philadelphia is seven cents and the present running time is twenty-two minutes.

Physician Sued Dr. W. S. McCalmont Defendant in Alienation Action

More or less mysterious disappearances were staged last evening by the three principals in the suit for $25,000 damages brought by Harold E. Pelton, of 4009 Green street, against Dr. William S. McCalmont, of 740 North Sixth street.

At the home of Dr. McCalmont last evening, the physician, substituting for him, said that Dr. McCalmont had gone to Atlantic City. At the Pelton residence, in an apartment house, it was said that he had been seen there, remarking that he would not be back for several days.

Miss Dorothy Leides Says She More Than Meets Zoslaw's Requirements in Everything but Willingness to Wed Him

Here are some answers to Edward Zoslaw's request for a young, moderately pretty and congenial wife with $10,000.

Edward admits he understands women—maybe—and knows a good deal about the produce business. He is anxious to get both the wife and the $10,000, for he wants to establish a home and expand his business.

Miss Dorothy Leides, 4155 Mantua avenue, who sends along her photograph to prove that she is "rather good looking," seems to have all the qualifications the hopeful young business man wants—except the willingness to marry him.

At least she is good-natured in her letter, for she signs it "Dottie." And that she is thoroughly in earnest about desiring that he reach Mr. Zoslaw is evinced in a postscript to the editor, that "his answer isn't intended to be laughed at," as the writer is "real serious."

Tells What She Wants Miss Leides has some ideas of her own about the kind of man she wants to marry. "I'd like a city chap with a country home," she said. "I want him dark and handsome, even if he is of the 'stage villain' type. Yes, the young man who writes a $10,000 bride does look a little like Richard Barthelmus (?)—but this young man's principal qualification seems to be that he has a lot of money. I'd say that if he gets a girl with $10,000 she ought to be able to dictate the terms—he ought to be glad to have her if she's old and ugly."

Would Throw Himself Away Young Mr. Zoslaw said today that although he had received three offers of marriage over the telephone last night, he will positively not throw himself away on the first $10,000 girl, but will remain heart whole until next Monday.

She Wasn't Very Serious "One of the girls didn't seem to be very serious," said the rising young Chester produce man, who is courting an unknown girl but a very definite bank account.

Has $10,000 and Then Some Miss Leides writes: "I am a young girl, rather good looking, as you can see by the enclosed photos. I am not quite five feet seven inches tall, and I suppose I shan't ever reach that high."

Norman Penrose, Who Killed Brother, Appears to Be Better Physically and Mentally

MAY ATTEND THE FUNERAL

Norman Penrose, sure of the support of his father, his brother Cyril and Miss Emma Hollowell, lifelong friend of the family, is in better physical and mental condition today than he has been since he was locked up in Oguntz for the killing of his brother Ralph.

It was stated last night Norman had made a request to be allowed to attend the funeral of his brother and it is said that Chief Fenimore, of the Oguntz police, will make an attempt to get the necessary permission.

Ralph Penrose will be buried tomorrow from the house where he was shot. Opinion in the neighborhood is crystallizing in favor of Norman, the general opinion being to fire the shot in the heat of fear and anger without actually intending to injure, let alone kill his brother.

The father of the boys, Samuel Penrose, a wealthy farmer, visited the jail yesterday accompanied by his other son Cyril. After they had talked with Norman, Cyril said: "Father and I will stick to Norman to the end. There is no question of forgiveness about it. We all have one common purpose in mind, that of doing everything we can for Norman."

Coroner Neville said that the inquest will be held Monday or Tuesday. Penrose will not be removed to Norristown until after that time.

Miss Emma Hollowell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Hollowell, socially prominent in Jenkintown, who it was rumored had been secretly engaged to the slain brother, as well as Norman, had denied that she was affianced to the former.

Norman has to fight for his life, said Miss Hollowell, "and I stand ready to do all that I can to help him. I had known Ralph ever since we were children and it is awful to think that such a thing should have happened to him."

BOSBYSELL LEFT $10,000

General Bequeathed Estate to Son and Grandchildren in Will

The will of Brigadier General Oliver C. Bosbyshell, 4029 Walnut street, who died recently, was admitted to probate here today, bequeathing an estate, not exceeding $10,000, to his son, Oliver C. Bosbyshell, and to the general's grandchildren.

Other wills admitted to probate included the following: George E. Talvert, 2880 Lancaster avenue, $86,000; Sarah Edwards, 6233 Catharine street, $4,000; Mary C. Kolp, 2442 North Franklin street, $7,000.

Inventories were filed in the estates of George T. Lippincott, $111,142; Katherine I. Boells, $18,200, and James T. Brady, $21,491.46.

Harry Makiver, one of the men back of the proposal, said the plan will be put through as soon as possible; there is no necessity for delay since the financial condition of the borough is strong.

WON'T THROW HIMSELF AWAY Young Mr. Zoslaw said today that although he had received three offers of marriage over the telephone last night, he will positively not throw himself away on the first $10,000 girl, but will remain heart whole until next Monday.

She Wasn't Very Serious "One of the girls didn't seem to be very serious," said the rising young Chester produce man, who is courting an unknown girl but a very definite bank account.

"I decided not to bother with her," he continued. "But two of the girls were just the kind I'm looking for. Such nice girls, and they both have automobiles. One of these two is twenty-one and told me she is good looking."

"Will you see them?" he was asked. "Yes, I made an appointment with one for this evening, and will try to spare a few minutes for the other one tomorrow evening."

Zoslaw expressed worry at the possibility of receiving so many offers of marriage that he will be unable to see all the prudent peaches who wear blushes on their cheeks, adoration in their eyes, and little brown leather boots in their dimpled fists.

WOULD-BE POSTMASTERS MUST PASS BUSINESS QUIZ

Executive Ability Chief Essential for Men Who Boss Handling of Uncle Sam's Mail

Intelligence tests, "trick" questions and the Edison questionnaire method of ascertaining ability have no part in the qualification requirements for the position of postmaster in the United States postal service.

In fact education and training are considered only 20 per cent of the "weight" required. If you would be considered an eligible "heavyweight," you must show 80 per cent of your "tonnage" (weight being the postal department way of designating aptitude) in business, experience and fitness.

So in order to be in line for the postmaster's office, a first class district, the candidate is not required to take a written examination, but must answer questions revealing his education and training.

He must show the number of persons under his supervision, the character of the business done by the person, firm or corporation with which he is associated, the volume of business done annually and the commercial rating of each person, firm or corporation.

Prerequisites for the office include demonstration of the fact that candidates have successfully filled responsible positions for at least seven years, which require ability to organize, to direct or to manage business affairs. A point is made of the fact that he must have shown ability to meet and deal with the public satisfactorily.

Candidates must be at least thirty years old and will not be acceptable after they have reached sixty-five.

Whisky Withdrawals Less Big Decrease Noted for First Half of Year

Washington, Aug. 10.—(By A. P.)—Withdrawals of whisky from bonded warehouses during the first six months of this year fell off by more than 3,800,000 gallons compared with the same period last year, according to records made public today by the Internal Revenue Bureau.

Decreases in withdrawal during the first three months of this year were explained by the rule closing warehouses and distilleries, which was modified in April to permit withdrawals by retail druggists and in May to allow wholesale druggists to withdraw whisky.

AGED COLLECTOR ROBBED OF $600

Held Up in Broad Daylight at Edgemont and Schiller Sts. While Pedestrians Look On Four highwaymen held up and robbed an elderly collector of $600 at Edgemont and Schiller streets in broad daylight late yesterday afternoon in sight of more than a dozen persons.

Pedestrians who saw an automobile drive up to the curb, two men step out and point guns at John Newell, sixty-eight years old, 3430 Edgemont street, were too astonished to move.

Several people, however, were observing enough to note the license number of the car. When the machine stopped in front of Newell, one of the men kept him covered with a pistol while the other searched his pockets and removed the cash of a day's collection.

Another of the men stood up right in the machine and kept watch for approaching automobilists or police.

The robbery completed, the two active members of the gang stepped back in the car, the gears slid in and the machine sped away before any of the onlookers who had had time to make a move.

Two hours later the car was found abandoned at Hancock and Dauphin streets. From the license number it was learned it is the property of Morris Wood, Greenhill Farms, Overbrook.
