

END CONSCRIPTION, POPE URGES WORLD

Says Disarmament Is Farce if
"Napoleonic Invention"
Remains

INTERESTED IN U. S. PARLEY

Rome, Aug. 29.—Probably no statesmen in Europe take a keener interest in the forthcoming Washington conference than Pope Benedict's ministers at the Vatican. In fact, the Pope regards himself as the spiritual father of the disarmament movement, which he considers he initiated by his peace message of August 1, 1917.

It is his earnest desire that the Washington conference may not limit its labors to naval disarmament—although he fully recognizes its supreme importance for America, England and Japan—and that it will find means of extending the program to limitation of land armies also, which is primarily the program confronting the nations of the European continent.

The Papal Secretariat of State yesterday gave your correspondent an exclusive authorized statement which defines the Pope's attitude toward the conference and disarmament as follows:

"His Holiness views with intense sympathy America's endeavor to bring lasting peace to the peoples of the world. He sees in President Harding's undertaking renewed proof of the high idealism which distinguished the American people during the World War and a remarkable instance of the moral affinity existing between the greatest spiritual power and the greatest political power of the world.

Aware of Obstacles

"The Pope is fully aware of the enormous difficulties to be overcome before disarmament can be realized. Disarmament was most carefully studied by the Pope and his advisers before publication of the papal peace message four years ago. His present opinion, His Holiness bases on information collected during this investigation which convinced him that the public opinion of all countries regards disarmament as the sole effective and sincere means of realizing a durable peace and preventing universal financial ruin.

"As he sees it, the fundamental issue is the substitution of the moral force of right for the material force of might and the ideal aim to be achieved is a just agreement between all nations and an ensuing simultaneous and reciprocal limitation of armaments in such degree that only the military forces sufficient to maintain law and order within their own territory will remain under arms.

Must Abolish Conscription

"His Holiness believes the easiest and most popular measure that can be taken in this direction in Europe is complete abolition of conscription. The example of America and England, who abolished obligatory military service after the war, proves this can be done.

"The Napoleonic invention of conscription has been the cause of immeasurable suffering and misery throughout the world. The abolition of conscription would render war impossible in Europe, or at least impossible on such a vast scale as the recent terrible conflict. Without the obligation of conscription, disarmament must ever remain an illusion.

"But when obligatory service has been definitely abolished in Europe, the day will no longer be distant when arbitration will replace war as a means of settling disputes between nations, no matter how serious the differences may be."

CRAWL OVER PANTHEON

American Art Students Brave Dizzy Heights at Rome

Rome, Aug. 28.—(By A. P.)—Students at the American Academy in Rome are required to make close studies of the masterpieces of architecture, painting and sculpture in Rome. The other day some of them were seen crawling over the Pantheon, scaling the dizzy heights of the rotunda in an effort to study the forms and structure of the old Roman landmark, which has stood for 2000 years. They take their tapes and other measuring instruments and get the dimensions of these buildings and their decorations right off the work itself.

Women's $55 Canton Crepe Dresses at $35

Two models.

One with the new dip-side drapery that Chanel created (the "apron" dips at both sides below the hem of the skirt—indescribably graceful!).

The other beaded—in Chanel's way of "shading" big beads with little beads.

Both come in the all-fashionable black; in the better-than-ever navy blue, and in that wonderfully good-looking new brown.

And Wonderful Double-Thread Tricolettes in a Wonderful Special at $25

And there never was a silk more "obedient to line" than tricolette—never one "so cool on warm days, and warm on cool days"—never one to kind of fit in for anywhere!

Even the shortest dress somehow lengthens her lines! Black, of course.

But brown, too, and navy blue.
