NATION'S BUSINESS FAILS TO VOICE ITS LEGISLATIVE NEEDS

Silence of Industrial Leaders on Vital Issues Hinders Economic Recovery

VALUE OF ORGANIZATION POINTED OUT BY HOOVER

By CLINTON W. GILBERT Staff Correspondent Evening Public Ledger Copyright, 1821, by Public Ledger Company

Washington, Sept. 1. - Secretary Hoover put his finger upon one of the sources of weakness when he told the Detroit manufacturers that the business interests of the country were not sufficiently organized and did not exert sufficient influence upon policies here. It is an old charge that this country. especially under a Republican Admin-istration, is governed by big business. But where is big business today? A group of farmer representatives in Conress has done more to shape the course of legislation than have either the genbusiness interests of the country the organization of the Republican Party or the Executive who is the effec-strange modesty pervades Amer ican business which is not shared the American farmer. You ask Detroit automobile manufacturer he does not object to the duty on his product and in general to any dutie which will lessen the prospects of sales abroad for his product and he replies: "Well, high tariffs are the Republican policy and perhaps the duty will do no harm."

Wisdom must reside somewhere, and the opinion among the Detroit manufacturers seems to be that perhaps after all it resides in Washington. It may not look as if it did, but perhaps after all. Business itself a crossing of the roads. It has hith-It is now looking toward the foreign market. It hesitates. It is not sure. Perhaps after all wisdom resides Washington.

Whatever may be thought Fordney tariff, there is a lon things in which the business of the country, if they were scious of their aims as are the

It was the Republican Party's business. was the Republican Party knew

The Republican Party is supposed to speak generally for the business interests of the country. But it does so wery imperfectly.
