

SKULL FRACTURED WHEN HIT BY AUTO

John Maguire, South Wilton Street, Narberth, Is Near Death

DRIVER SPEEDS A WAY

John Maguire, 1345 South Wilton street, was struck and probably fatally injured at 1:30 this morning by a speeding automobile on Montgomery pike near Haverford avenue, Narberth. After striking Maguire the car continued toward the City line. Maguire is in the Bryn Mawr Hospital with a fractured skull, a broken left arm, three broken ribs and a broken nose. He was found, covered with blood and dirt, lying crumpled in a ditch beside the road some time later when a touring car of the Lower Merion police came along. At the point where Maguire was struck by the machine there are no sidewalks. Pedestrians are compelled to walk along the side of the road, between a ditch and the path of machines. Some hours after the accident, when the injured man recovered consciousness, he told police he was walking toward City Line and heard the sound of an approaching automobile. He said he was walking as far in toward the ditch as was possible. He believed the car had plenty of room to pass. Maguire said he jumped just as the headlights threw their brilliance on him. Then the machine struck him.

CRY ROUTS THIEVES

Woman's Screams Send Housebreakers Fleeing Up the Street

Residents of the neighborhood of Sixtieth street and Chester avenue were roused from bed early this morning by cries of "Murder" in a high feminine voice. Numbers of them in night-dress rushed into the streets in time to see four men scampering away from the drug store of Maurice Lewis on the northeast corner of those streets. Pursuit was made, but none was caught.

The effective but slightly misleading alarm had come from Mrs. Lillian Katz, who lives in a flat above the drug store. Mrs. Katz said that after she had been awakened by unfamiliar noises she peered from her window and saw the men trying to break through the doors below.

DAUGHTER'S HEROISM VAIN

Man Fatally Burned Before She Beats Out Flames

Heroism of his daughter failed to save the life of Rudolph Vols, sixty-five years old, of 5029 Melrose street, Frankford, when he knocked a lighted candle into a quantity of gasoline in his garage yesterday. The burning gasoline covered Vols from head to foot. His daughter Lena heard his shouts, pulled him from the garage and beat out the flames, but Vols died a few hours later in Frankford Hospital.

You have no special love for a thermometer, but you respect its usefulness. You may be full of civic pride yet hold no real love for any store in the city. You appreciate the doings of a store that serves you safely and comfortably.

When we print the fact that a month has brought Gibbels a newly-large volume of business you grasp the fact pleasantly, not because of any care for that Store's prosperity but because the growing volume of our sales proves that more and more people O. K. your judgment in choosing Gibbels as a shopping place. Your personal prosperity and well-being are your uppermost thoughts.
