

ENGLAND HONORS VICTIMS OF ZR-2

Representatives of U. S. Join British Notables at Memorial Services

SING AMERICAN ANTHEMS

By the Associated Press
London, Sept. 7.—Memorial services for the victims of the ZR-2 disaster were held in Westminster Abbey today. The edifice was crowded. Bishop Ryle, dean of Westminster, officiated. King George was represented by Sir Hugh Trevelyan, British air marshal; Queen Mary by Colonel Sir A. Davidson and the Duke of York by Wing Commander Louis Greig.

George Harvey, American Ambassador; Robert P. Skinner, United States Consul General in this city; Vice Admiral Albert P. Niblack, in command of American naval forces in European waters; Rear Admiral Nathan C. Twining, and United States military and naval attaches and members of the American Embassy staff were present. The United States Navy was further represented by detachments from the Howden airship base and the battleship Utah.

Members of the British Cabinet sent representatives to the service. The Lord Mayors of London and Hull, the Mayors of Westminster and Bedford and the High Commissioners for the British Dominions were also in attendance.

The Rev. H. D. L. Viener, chaplain-in-chief of the Royal Air Force, delivered a short address in which he referred to the association between the air forces of England and America "in developing a once formidable engine of destruction into a pioneer of closer relations between the two nations they represent."

He then described in a few terse sentences the sudden collapse of the ZR-2, which cost so many gallant lives.

"The price of progress and the toll of science," he added, "are bitter enough. Yet, thank God, there never is a lack of splendid men ready to do and to dare. It is best so. To be in the forefront of the fight to conquer what half a generation ago was an untried field will ever appeal to our splendid manhood."

A feature of the choral service was the magnificent rendering of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and the "Star-Spangled Banner."

STARVED RUSSIANS GRAY AND GLOOMY

Peasants in Volga District Believe Food Will Reach Them Too Late

NO SIGN OF WINTER WHEAT

By the Associated Press
Semayenkina, Russia, Sept. 7.—Desolation is written large on the rolling prairies which stretch away on every side of this little village in the heart of the famine region of the Volga. Cattle and horses have cropped the sparse herbage until the very grass roots have been eaten, and the hot winds that blow across the waste raise great clouds of dust from the parched fields. The winter wheat must be sown soon, but nowhere has there been any preparation for the fall seeding. It is the general practice for the farmers to sow their wheat by September 15, but that date will find the fields lying fallow, for there are no horses to plow the ground, and the people are unable to secure seed for the next harvest.

So the fields are not made ready to receive the seed, and the country lies stark and gray, withered by the drought. The leaves that still cling to the trees are gray, and even the peasants look gray, being clad mostly in khaki uniforms and grain sacks, and wearing sandals made of birch bark. Peasants here are pessimistic over the coming of relief. They say aid will reach them too late. Pure rye bread costs 5000 rubles a pound, while meat costs 3000 rubles per pound, and only a few of the wealthy people are able to buy.

FIFTH DIVISION DISCOVERS "LOST" HERO IN "DRY" JAIL

Governor of Tennessee Besought to Pardon Southerner Who "Toted" Half-Pint to Join Reunion Here

The "Lost Battalion" of peace-time has been located by officers of the Fifth Division in the course of preparations for the division reunion here Saturday, Sunday and Monday. His name is Poley Burns. He is a lad from Tennessee, whose dazzling courage while he was fighting with the Fifth on the Meuse, in France, gained for him even in that outfit a reputation for distinguished heroism. His "Argonne" is a Tennessee jail at Benton, where Poley is beleaguered while the members of his division here are preparing to move heaven and earth to achieve his deliverance in time for the round-up of his "buddies." The tragedy of the situation lies in the fact that Poley after passing through all the stresses of the Argonne, the Meuse and St. Mihiel with Company D, Sixty-first Infantry, was taken prisoner in Beaton, Tenn., for carrying a half pint of the sort of liquor of which his State once was proud. Governor Taylor, of Tennessee, has been formally requested to pardon the war hero, who is serving a sentence of thirty days. The appeal was sent from here in the name of the division by Captain John F. Bacon, late of General Pershing's staff, who, like the rest of the division survivors, feels that a reunion without Poley Burns would not be a reunion at all. It is considered probable that the Governor will grant the Fifth Division's appeal. Poley was among the first in peace at the veterans' reunion? Members of the Fifth recall how when the division swam the Meuse River under a hail of machine-gun bullets, Poley was there. He was in the thick of the Argonne fighting and had the reputation for dare-devil courage. His plight first became known when Lieutenant John S. Anderregg, secretary of the reunion, received in answer to his invitation a reply that shocked all Poley's former companions in arms. From the Benton jail came this letter, dated August 17: "My dear Mr. Anderregg—I received your card requesting me to attend the reunion which is to be held in Philadelphia on September 10, 11 and 12, and am sorry to say I cannot be there as I happen to strike a streak of tough luck. I am in Benton jail at the time and having a half pint of whiskey, and I will not get out in time to meet you all. But I hope I will be able to meet you the next reunion. I am awfully sorry that I can't meet at this one, for I would get to see my good friends whom I was in France, for I have often thought of them lots of times. Well, will close. Hoping you will have the best time of your lives. Yours, Poley Burns." "POLEY BURNS" members are prepared to revise an old song for his benefit at the old-fashioned reunion together in Moose Hall, 1314 North Broad street, Saturday night. It begins like this: "If a buddy Meet a buddy Comin' thro' the rye..."
