

N. J. RUM SELLERS ESCAPE JAIL TERMS

Judge Imposes Fines Only Because Law's Validity Is Questioned

Atlantic City, Sept. 13.—Jail sentences will not be imposed upon Atlantic City liquor dealers who violate the Van Ness law. This was made abundantly clear by Judge Robert Ingersoll shortly after court was convened this morning for the purpose of sentencing the 130 defendants who pleaded non vult to the charge of violating the act. Judge Ingersoll said: "The Court had expected to impose the maximum penalty in liquor cases. However, so many of these cases have been taken to higher courts for the purpose of testing the constitutionality of the Van Ness law that I consider that it would be unfair to send any man to jail for a violation of an act under review to the extent that this one is. I will, therefore, only impose a fine in each case until the constitutionality of the act has been determined."

Joseph Moss, proprietor of the Beau Arts Cafe, pleaded not guilty and the same plea was entered by his bartender, James McKie. The cases will be tried later.

More than forty had been fined $175 when court adjourned at noon, a score or more $150 and a few, mostly bartenders, $75. One man, John J. Childs, proprietor of the Dreamland Cafe, a second offender, was fined $350. This was the heaviest penalty meted out during the morning.

Jerry Sullivan, proprietor of the Killarney Hotel, changed his plea from not guilty to non vult.

The comparative lightness of the fines and the announcement that no one would be sent to jail for a violation of the Van Ness law until the status of this law is clearly determined by a higher court, came as a cheerful surprise to the 130 or more accused men and women who had pleaded non vult.

Lawyers interpreted the ruling as the first definite blow dealt by the courts to the now famous State prohibition law, and they expect it to establish a precedent for other parts of the State.

New Autumn and Winter Fabrics Ready in the Men's Custom Tailoring Shop

We take pleasure in informing men of critical clothing tastes that we have completed the assembling of our Custom Fabrics for the coming Autumn and Winter seasons. The patterns are all new and smart, and of that exclusive character which at once marks Custom Clothing. While the quality of these new weaves— from leading American and European looms—is appreciably finer than heretofore, prices are at least 25 per cent. less than they were one year ago. We are now prepared to make Suits to measure for $50.00 to $80.00.

A Fortunate Purchase Enables Us to Make Some Very Fine Suits to Individual Measure for $55

We secured some excellent imported and American Suitings from a large New York woolen house at a welcome price-concession. About 60 different patterns to choose from. Of course, our regular Custom Tailoring staff will execute the work.

Paris Millinery

An Opening Exposition of Unusual Importance

When these charming Paris Hats were first lifted from their boxes they brought forth exclamations of admiration. Here was Paris again, with her old cunning, her heart in her art and her hand executing. Millinery. They were so inspiring, we set to work to copy them immediately and we are now showing—

Many faithfully executed copies

And in many instances we have taken a note from one and an idea from another and united them in different but most effective combinations. The whole Display is surprisingly new and different—the new colorings alone are a feast for the eye.
