A Room where Restful Quiet is Essential

TERE in the Women's Ward of the Abington Memorial Hospital, Philadelphia, the sound of footsteps is hushed by the floor of Armstrong's Linoleum.

The quietness of linoleum floors is one reason why architects are specifying such floors for hospitals, schools, libraries, churches. Another reason is comfort-a linoleum floor is elastic and springy under foot, easy to walk on and stand on.

Floors of Armstrong's Linoleum are much easier to clean than any other kind of floor, and ordinary care keeps them in good condition. They give long wear.

If you are planning a public building or an office building, if you are going to replace old floors with new ones, talk with your architect, contractor or any good linoleum merchant about Armstrong's Linoleum. We shall be glad to send him data and specifications for laying.

A good way to install Armstrong's Linoleum as a permanent floor is to cement it down firmly over a layer of builders' felt paper. A floor laid this modern way remains as smooth and tight as the day it was put down.

All Armstrong's Linoleum is guaranteed to give entire satisfaction. You can identify Armstrong's by the Circle "A" trademark on the burlap back.
