

DREAMLAND ADVENTURES

Judge Sense
By DADDY

Bobby Bouncer, the rubber ball, has been given a black eye by Bobby Bully, a boy who delights in smashing toys. Bobby Bouncer goes to the Mysterious Garden to tell Judge Sense about it. Jack and Janet go with him. Judge Sense lures Bobby Bully into the garden with ripe, red apples.

CHAPTER IV
Trapping Trouble

CRASH!
Ker-thump!
"Ow-ow!"

Three sounds broke the silence of the Mysterious Garden, where Jack and Janet and the toys were hiding to watch Judge Sense trap Bobby Bully, the bad boy who had given Bobby Bouncer a black eye.

The first sound—"Crash!"—was made when Bobby Bully smashed through the bushes and hit the ground. The third sound—"Ow-ow!"—was Bobby Bully's howl of surprise and alarm when he found himself sprawling on the lawn within the Mysterious Garden. But Bobby Bully cut that howl off short. He didn't want to be caught inside that garden.

Bobby Bully knew if he were caught he might be spanked for climbing the garden wall to pick the ripe red apples.

So Bobby Bully kept quiet and began to seek a way out of the garden. Then he found he was in a fix—he couldn't climb the smooth wall.

Now a fourth sound was heard. It was Judge Sense's chuckle. Judge Sense sat on the branch of a tree and grinned at Bobby Bully's plight.

"If I trapped you with my wits," boasted Judge Sense, "if you had used your wits you would have known that ripe red apples do not grow on maple trees, nor do they jerk away when you try to pick them."

Bobby Bully glared around for something to throw at Judge Sense. Then Bobby Bully got another surprise. He saw about his feet a band of living toys. They were holding hands and gleefully dancing around him in a circle. All were toys he had banged or battered or broken.

"Now we have you, Bobby Bully," said the toys. "Now we have you a prisoner and we are going to punish you."

Bobby Bully was scared at seeing the toys alive, but he did not lose his boldness.

"Why, you are only toys!" he cried. "You can't hurt me, but I can hurt you."

With that Bobby Bully grabbed at the toys and hurled them right and left. He was like a mad giant among them and the toys were as helpless as though they were not alive.

"Use your wits!" screamed Judge Sense from his safe perch in the tree. "We have trapped trouble! Use your wits to get out of it!"

The toys didn't seem to have any wits to use. They just hid as fast as they could so they would not be thrown about by Bobby Bully.

"I'll use my wits," whispered Jack to Janet. "I'll use my wits and stop Bobby Bully, or else he will smash every toy in the Mysterious Garden!"

(How Jack uses his wits will be told tomorrow.)

The Woman's Exchange

Must Have Permit
To the Editor of Woman's Page:

Dear Madam—I wish to manufacture a salve for cuts, bruises, etc., and put it on the market. Could it be manufactured and sold without a license or special permit? I am not a physician or druggist.

Before you can place this in the market you will have to have all the ingredients tested by a druggist. You must also have a license to be able to sell it. The person who tests the salve for you can help you to obtain this permission.

About a Wedding
To the Editor of Woman's Page:

Dear Madam—I would like to know whether it is proper for the bride and bridegroom to go in their own separate limousines after the ceremony or whether the best man, maid of honor and bridesmaid should go with them.

A READER.
When the ceremony is over it is correct for the bride and the bridegroom to leave the church in a separate car from the rest of the wedding party.

Making Money
To the Editor of Woman's Page:

Dear Madam—Do you know of any kind of work which two girls of sixteen and seventeen years of age could do at home?

My sister and I attend a private school, but my father has been worried over business troubles lately, and we would like to earn money by some way at home to help him.

MARION G.
If either of you is at all clever with the needle, you will find a ready sale for the lovely hand-made handkerchiefs that are carried so much nowadays. Can you not take orders for sweaters, too? Home-made candy, cakes or preserves could be placed on sale at some store near where you live. Or any of these things could be disposed of through the Woman's Exchange, at 114 South Seventeenth street. After a sample of what you have to sell has been approved of there, they will sell your articles on the basis of a small commission.

Dark Circles
To the Editor of Woman's Page:

Dear Madam—I continually have very dark rings under my eyes. Can you suggest something which would overcome this? Do you think the wearing of glasses would help?

The skin on my face is very dry and scaly. It looks much worse when I use powder. I always use a vanishing cream. Do you think this causes my skin to dry up?

ALTHEA.
Are you getting plenty of sleep? A lack of this will cause the circles you speak of. Eat the right sort of plain food, drink enough water, and breathe deeply when you are out in the fresh air. The glasses would not help you, unless you have trouble with your eyes. You are using the wrong kind of powder, which is the cause of the dry skin. Change this, and use a little cold cream, instead of vanishing cream.

Sale of New and Beautiful Silk Dresses—All Special at $15

A dressmaker would charge at least that much to make any one of these dresses. Add to that the cost of the materials and trimmings and the savings are startlingly apparent.

We got these dresses at such a low price, because the maker had but three of this, four of that or half a dozen of another dress, so we took the entire lot at much less than the regular prices. Some of the dresses are half price, some a third, some a fourth less than usual.

In the collection there are all sizes from 16 to 40, though not all sizes in any one style.

All Are New and Correct in Fashion
A frock of black Russian crepe is trimmed with row upon row of narrow moire ribbon. Another, of black or navy blue Russian crepe, is embroidered with crystal beads. Crepe de chine dresses in black, navy or brown are made with accordion-pleated panels in the sides of the skirts. The black and navy dresses are trimmed with bright red pipings and collars; the brown ones with beige. Rows of shiny black crepe braid on bands of American Beauty Georgette crepe trim a frock of black crepe de chine which has a most unusual cuff arrangement. Navy blue crepe de chine dresses are trimmed with sapphire blue beads or with loops of inch-and-a-half moire ribbon. All of these dresses are distinctive, fashionable and in good taste, and every woman who gets one is getting a dress that will give her a great deal of satisfaction and enjoyment.
