MISSING GIRL SEEN FIGHTING CAPTORS

Witness Declares Men in Car Were Trying to Subdue Goldie Brodheim

FATHER IS PROSTRATED

Convinced that his sixteen-year-old daughter Goldie had been kidnapped, Max Brodheim, a furrier, at 152 North Fifty-second street, is in a state of nervous prostration from worry and confined to bed under care of a physician.

"My poor little Goldie—God knows what they will do to her," he said this morning, his voice broken.

Earl D. Olmstead, of 26 North Farson street, furnished a clue which the police regard as valuable in their search for the girl, who disappeared at 11 o'clock last Saturday morning.

Olmstead went to the store of the furrier last night and told him he had seen three men in an automobile trying to quiet a struggling girl as they drove by on Race street at Fifty-seventh, a few minutes after the girl disappeared.

"It all happened so quickly there was no time for me to do anything," said Olmstead. "I was standing at Fifty-seventh and attracted by an automobile proceeding west at high speed. The driver was alone on the front seat. Two men in the rear seat were holding a pretty young girl between them. She appeared to be struggling. I could have sworn then that I knew her face. But I couldn't think where I had seen her before."

"I saw newspaper stories of Goldie's disappearance and photographs. I am certain the girl in the automobile was Goldie."

While Olmstead's story encouraged detectives in their search for the missing girl, it only served to intensify the father's grief.

"They took her from me for revenge," he declared, "because she testified against two shoplifters who stole fables from my store. She was warned if she identified the two girls at the Fourth street and Snyder avenue station she would disappear."

FAMILY OUT; HOUSE AFIRE

Blaze Starts While Parents and Children See Films

While the family of Louis Magid, of 2329 South Ninth street, were at the "movies" last night their dining room caught fire. As Magid, his wife and three children were returning they heard the fire engines, and Mrs. Magid remarked, "Wouldn't it be a strange coincidence if that happened to be our house on fire?"

By the time they reached home the fire had already broken in the front door and were extinguishing the flames. The loss will be several hundred dollars.
