An Afterclap in Furniture—Thousands of Pieces and Hundreds of Suits in an Inevitable Disposal

"Dear Bought and Far Felt" Is the Lingering

Look behind and regret of letting the savings of hard work and long years be swept away by a hasty purchase or investment or in a moment of overpersuasion to make a loan of money carefully saved and intended for another purpose that has no shadow of a chance of ever coming back to you.

It is almost like the misappropriation of trust funds that your wife and children may have to suffer for.

Do right, dear man of a family, even "if the skies fall."

(Signed) John Wanamaker

September 26, 1921.

Mr. Punch's History of Modern England $10 for Volumes I and II

Punch has undertaken the monumental task of compiling the history of modern England as it has been written by him since 1841.

The first two volumes are ready and cover the history of England from 1841 to 1874. Volumes III and IV, covering the history of England to the present day, will be published in the Spring.

The history is enriched with about 500 of Punch's famous cartoons and illustrations. Ready now in the Book Store.

Real Laces Have Never Been So Low Before

So many women are taking advantage of the fact and stocking up against the time when these beautiful laces will cost more.

They are hand-made filet and Irish laces from China in all the widths needed for trimming lingerie, blouses, children's clothes and neckwear. In most cases there are matching sets.

Irish laces from 25c a yard for picot width up to a five-inch edge at $4.50 a yard. There are insertions at prices in between.

Filet laces from 15c for picot edges up to 19 1/4-inch flounces at $12.75 a yard. Also insertions.

Five thousand pieces of Wanamaker furniture at one-third to one-half less than the market values are enough to make a sale of real helpfulness and opportunity at any time.

The sale built on such a foundation is bound to offer real advantages.

You can come to this sale expecting real advantages, and you will not be disappointed.

It is an afterclap of the August Furniture Sale, the inevitable outcome of the greatest August Sale ever held.

Only those who know what a sale that was can understand how, with the enormous selling from day to day, odd pieces accumulated, until they ran into hundreds, and the hundreds into thousands.

Now then, we are offering these thousands of odd pieces and some hundreds of complete suits at one-third to one-half less than the regular prices.

Along with them, we are also offering some very good new lots, including ten new carloads of bedroom suits, these latter at something like 1914 prices.

In addition to all these, we have some shipments that came in too late for the August Sale, but which are now no less welcome at the specially low prices that we have marked on them.

In the collection there are bedroom suits, dining room suits and individual pieces in every desirable style, wood and finish.

There is a large and attractive variety of upholstered suits and pieces for living rooms and libraries.

Also something that many furnishers will welcome—a lot of BRASS AND ENAMEL BEDSTEADS, all to be sold at remarkably low prices.

Talcott Williams' New Book "Turkey"

In this work the famous Philadelphia journalist, who was himself born and brought up in Turkey, gives a great body of curious and valuable information regarding one of the world's greatest problems of today.

Price, $3.

The Flowing Veil That Many Hats Need

It is a "made" veil, of course, and the only kind that really looks well worn loose.

Some very pretty new ones are bordered in scroll effect or in a soft Shetland finish. They are either long or square and in black, brown, navy or taupe. A number are two-toned.

Prices from $1.50 to $5.

Mourning Millinery From Paris

Tomorrow will be presented, in the Mourning Millinery Salon, a collection of mourning hats and bonnets from Lucien Levy, Maurice and Hermance, of Paris, together with admirable copies from our own workrooms.

The most approved materials, the smartest lines, and the newest ideas in decoration distinguish these hats. Parisian milliners seem especially inspired in the creation of mourning millinery, and the novel and inimitable results they have achieved this year in crepe, grenadine, faille silk, duvetyne, uncut velvet and ribbon must be seen to be truly appreciated.

We invite you to see them.

Many Beautiful Winter Coats Have Chosen Beaver Fur

The reason is not hard to seek, for the fashion for brown, russet, Byzantine red and Sorrento blue is very strong, and with every one of these colors beaver is lovely.

They are all coats of the handsomest bolivia cloths or silk duvetyne. The fur appears on huge collars and deep cuffs, on wide facings all the way to the hem, on flying panels and as a trimming for square-back capes.

One of the newest and prettiest coats has several straps of the material at each side, with wide pieces of beaver at the bottom.

On such coats the prices start at $150 and mount to $375.

A Coat of Soft, Silvery Gray Moleskin comes as near to being a woman's ideal wrap as any garment could be.

There is something about the shimmering velvety texture and the silvery color of this fur that especially fits it for the graceful feminine wraps women most love for dress wear. Every woman—no matter what fur she buys—casts affectionate eyes on moleskin.

It is a pleasure to say that this is one of the furs that have dropped heavily in price. The beautiful moleskin coats, capes and wraps we have here now can in many instances be bought for several hundred dollars less than their equals cost last year.

Each is of the finest silver-gray Scotch moleskin—thicker and grayer than the inferior brownish Dutch moleskin.

In price they range from a jaunty short cape-wrap of beautiful fur at $225, up to a full-length coat with collar of chinchilla squirrel at $725. A 36-inch coat is $375. A coat with squirrel collar and cuffs is $325.

Velour Door Draperies $18 and $24.75 a Pair—Special

Two-color effects, in practically every combination of shades.

We don't think they can be equaled anywhere for the money.

Ever so many people are of the same opinion, and so the curtains are selling wonderfully.

For Women—More of Those Excellent Man-Tailored Suits at $35

These suits are tailored in our own workrooms, of cheviot, tweed and homespun. Many of the materials are imported. They are in oxford gray, brown and heather mixtures.

There are several models, including long, slim, straight-cut coats, semi-fitting coats and loose, double-breasted sacque coats—a type for each figure.

The coats are interlined, and lined with good peau de cygne. The tailoring is beautifully done, from collar to hem. And the material and workmanship throughout are far better than is ordinarily possible to find for $35.

Pink Underthings for Autumn Trousseau

Brides who wish simple but dainty pink crepe de chine lingerie at small prices will like these new garments that have just come in. The crepe de chine is of unusual quality and the styles are uncommonly good.

Chemises at $2.25 and $3.50.
Drawers at $3.50.
Nightgowns at $3.85, $5, $6.50 and $8.85.

We have never had any finer or more attractive at these prices. On the $6.50 gowns, for instance, the top is of filet.

Young Women's Jumper Dresses With Coat to Match, $20

For Miss Fourteen-to-Twenty we present tomorrow a one-piece sleeveless dress of all-wool jersey, with a knee-length coat to match, at $20 the outfit.

The dress has V neck, two large patch pockets, narrow string belt. A smart high-buttoned collar, worn open or closed, tops the straight-line coat, which has four pockets and slot-seam back.

Navy blue, black or bamboo brown.

For young women who wish a well-cut jersey suit without the dress we have an excellent model of heavy all-wool jersey at $17.50 in navy blue or heather brown mixture. The two-piece skirt is gathered in back, and the long straight coat has four large patch pockets and narrow cross-over belt.

It is a remarkably good suit for its price. Other tailored suits in 14 to 20 year sizes up to $175.

(Second Floor)

200 Women's Silk Umbrellas Special at $5

You may choose from black, blue, green, purple, brown or garnet silk and quite a variety of pretty bakelite ring handles and some with leather straps. A number have bakelite tips to match the handles.

They are close rolling and altogether an unusually good umbrella for $5.
