The Grandoldope Verifies That Muggsy Has Slight Shade on Connie in Pennant Bout Since 1902

M'GRAW NOW AHEAD OF MACK IN MATTER OF WINNING TITLES

Championship in the National League This Year Gives Giants' Leader Seven Pennants to Six Won by Local American League Manager

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL

Sports Editor Evening Public Ledger THE great managerial battle of the major leagues, the battle which has L been waged for nineteen long bitter years, is over and there now is a winner and a loser. Two big league pilots, one in the National and the other in the American at last have discovered which is which, to say nothing of who The stuff is off, the act is all washed up and the cards shuffled for Jawn Jay McGraw, idol of New York, has outpointed Cornelius Mack. of this city, in a pennant bout. The score is 7 to 6, which can be verified by the grandoldope, which is a way of saying figgers. Johnny and Connie have been at it since 1902, which is long enough. Jawn has copped the gonfalon this year and we are saying this before the season is over. We figure that the Giants can't lose because they finish the season with a doubleheader with the Phils. In the meantime the A's are winning backward, which doesn't count.

The history of the struggle—and one must drag in historical data when writing of Athletic triumphs—dates back to 1902 when Connie piloted his band of youthful gladiators to an American League peunant. This gave him the jump on his rival ninety miles away, but McGraw evened the score in 1904. Then both won in 1905, still racing neck and neck.

Connie came back with new flags in 1910 and 1911 and made it six straight by copping in 1913 and 1914. After that we will ring down the curtain. The Athletics played in the American League, but when the season closed, they couldn't be found unless the seven other clubs were brushed away. Counte went from the sublime to the ridiculous, cost his anchor in the cellar and remained there. Seven straight years of reverse English was his dish. And he hasn't put in a new order yet.

McGraw had his team up there battling away, year after year. He won in 1911, 1912 and 1913, three in a row. He came back again in 1917, evening the count and this year the deadlock is busted wide open. Johnny has won and Connie missed it by seven places. Too many stymies ruined our A's chances for the flag.

The Glants this year have upset the done in more ways than one. They roved to be consistent winners and also came through in a pinch. Heretofore, New York always won the pennant if the club was so far in front on September 1 that nobody could catch them. When the race became close, the club

THIS is true even in the World Scries. New York hasn't won the fall classic since 1905 and they had four cracks at it. Perhaps it will be different this year, but you never can tell

Connie and Johnny Have Different Systems

MCGRAW and Mack have different systems in building a ball club. Connie believes in taking green talent, epending a lot of time on it and hoping a championship club will result. He will wait two or three years for players to develop and keep plugging along regardless of the standing of the club. This might be a good system and then again it might not. Seven years in the Jawn Jay, on the other hand, is an impatient person. He can't wait to see a youngster blossom into a star. If he has the goods and shows it on the first day as was the case with Frisch, the kid is allowed to keep his uniform and call for his salary check twice a month. If he just shows promise, he is farmed out and allowed to bloom unseen in the bushes. He did this with George Kelly and new look at him

But McGraw's long suit is stepping into the open market with a bundle of kale in each hand and outbidding all others for star players. No price is too high when he wants a certain athlete. He went as high as $250,000 for Hornsby, almost as much for Heinie Groh and almost landed them. Too much publicity, however, ruined the deal.

He purchased I very Bancroft from the Phillies because he needed a young shortstop. Then he threw some money into Boston and left with Arthur Nehf. He also purchased Joss Barnes, Fred Toney, Phil Douglas and Snyder, the catcher came from St. Louis on a trade. When the going became rough this summer, McGraw expressed a desire for Rawlings and Meusel and later expressed some dough and a flock of players to Philadelphia. He got the second baseman and outfielder, strengthened his club and then started out to win

The big test came in the Pittsburgh series last month when the Pirates lost five in a row and their lead was cut down from seven and one-half to two and one-half. This series broke the spirit of Pittsburgh and the players were good second placers from that time on. The Giants actually came through ina pinch, battled their heads off, showed fight and couldn't help winning.

It often has been said that money talks and this proves it. versational powers of the coin of the realm made a ball club for McGraw and although it can be claimed that he bought it, more power to him. Any manager who is willing to risk the bankroll and take a chance, deserves success. McGraw played for high stakes and has been rewarded.

THE McGraic system has triumphed over the Mackian idea. Otherwise Jawa wouldn't have won his seventh pennant. New York gets the applause. Philadelphia gets the laugh.

Now Is the Time to Look at Figgers

FROM the standpoint of mathematics, the championships have not been clinically by other the Clarks or the Vankees. Pursburgh and Cleveland clinched by either the Giants or the Yankees. Pittsburgh and Cleveland have still a chance to win the flag, but it is such a remote one in the case of the Pirates and almost the same for the Indians that even the most optimistic rooter is inclined to throw up the sponge. In the National League the Pirates haven't even an outside chance, the odds being about eleven to one. However, on the barest mathematical possibility they might win the pennant. As the standings show this morning, the Pirates have wan eighty-eight games and lost sixty, while the record of the Glants show ninety-three wins and That means a four-game lead for the men of McGraw. New York has four games to play and the Pirates have six. One victory for the McGraw clan and one defeat for the Pirates and the pennant will go to New York. In order to win the pennant, the Pirates must win all their remaining games. while the Giants are losing two. One victory for the Giants and three defeats while the Pirates are winning all six will send the race into a tie, The Pirates, if they lose two games, cannot finish the season in a tie, while the Giants by winning two of their remaining games will clinch the pennant. As two of the four remaining games are with the Phillies, there is every chance in the world that they will nail the flag to the must.

The two other games the Giants must play are with the Dodgers. Yes-.terday the Giants defeated the Cardinals, Nehf doing the hurling.

THE Grants have nothing to do until Saturday, when they meet the Phillies. All they have to do is not back and hope that the Pirates lose two of their remotalny games,

On the Other Hand—the Indians

OVER in the American League the Indian-' chances are a trifle herter than the Pirates. Cleveland has four games to play and the Yunkees six. Two games separate the two clubs this merning. A clean sweep of the fourgame series with the White Sox that starts on Thursday, which is not improbable, while the Yankees are losing three out of six will send the teams into a Four defeats for the Yanks and the same number of victories for the Indians and the well-known flag will find its way to the flagpole in Cleveland. Four victories out of the six games played, while the Indians are winning thsame number, will give the Yanks the pennant by a game. With three of the remaining six games on the schedule to be placed with the Athletics, who have been easy all season for Huggins and his team, and one from either the Red Sox or the Browns and the race is clinched. It is hardly thought likely that the Yanks will meet Washington in a postponed game, now that the pennant is so nearly won.

I IS even mid that the Yunkees have abundanced the thought of It is even must that the Tanker the game, no matter what the
