Colleen Moore, the Gish girls, Bessie Love and a host of others were not much more than extra girls, Diana Cheyne tells how she and her chum, Isabel Heath, sat lonesomely around the studio until Phil Craney, the famous director, chose Isabel to be the first of the screen's "baby vamps." They are seen together a great deal, and a scandal is created by the director's wife. Derry Winchester, a friend of Diana's, is called on to help, and Isabel tries to "vamp" him. Then Isabel announces she is to be starred in the East by a Paul Markham. Derry goes to France with the aviation corps and Diana meets Keith Gorham, who strangely attracts her.

The Talmadges Are Going to California

NORMA AND CONSTANCE TALMADGE will close their New York studio about November 1 and will go to California. Nobody seems to be able to find out how long they will stay. In fact, department heads whom I saw at the studio did not know definitely that this move had really been decided upon until I told them the source of my information, and then they were satisfied that it must be true.

There have been all sorts of rumors about New York regarding the Talmadges ever since it was announced in this column that Norma had given up her proposed trip to Algeria. She is now at work on the concluding scenes of "Smilin' Through" and will finish the shooting and cutting about the end of

Under the old arrangement it was necessary to keep two complete production units going on East Forty-eighth street all of the time because each of the sisters was required under contract to produce eight pictures a year, and that meant overlapping of productions. I'nder their new contracts, however, they will do six apiece per year and can thus use the same cameramen, electricians. props and all the others of the studio force.

The present arrangement, as I understand it, is that they will take over the forces of Mary Pickford while Mary is in Europe Constance will start work on a picture as soon as they arrive in the West, and it is more than

Broadway is full of rumors that this means the permanent location of the Talmadges on the coast, but I doubt this. Those who know Norma best declare that she does not like California as a home. And those who know Constance best say that she is old-fashioned enough to be still very much in love with her own husband—so much so that she would not consider a long separation nor would she ask him to give up his New York business to be with her

THE Talmadaes are telling their closest triends that the main abject of their Western trip is to visit Natalie, whom they have not seen since her marriage to Buster Keaton. I couldn't get anybody else to stand sponsor for any other explanation, so I'll have to assume responsibility for schal I believ to be the true story, though it's really nothing but my personal opinion, after all. BELIEVE that, while the visit to Natalie is one of the main motives guiding

Norma and Constance, the incentive at this particular time was the necessity. for a drastic reduction in the cost of making their pictures. Salaries of actors and actresses have fallen considerably during the last six months. But the pay of the people around the studios has kept to its war-time height. Out in California the studio managers got together and ordered a general reduction of 25 per cent in all wages. The result was a strike. It caused a bit of embarrassment for a while until things were readjusted. In the East it would be virtually impossible to get all studios to not in concert. So each has to get independently. To make a drastic reduction in pay in one might result in a strike against that one that would cripple it and make it impossible to fulfill contracts. In the cases of the Talmadges it is a simple matter to close the studio discharge every one who is not needed in the fifty two-weeks-s-year departments and go out West to take over the Pickford organization and so not interfere with the schedule of production at all. Then when a cleaning-out process in other studios has brought about a general lowering of wages they can come back. engage a new force or the old one at a reduced price, and open up on East

As I say, I have no real authority for that explanation. But I do know Well, the date was duly kept and Ton that another big studio in New York has just done a little house leaning along started home. But on the way either this line and is now resuming with some of the old expensive deadwood gone, and he or the other fellow was driving of I also know that some of the salaries paid by the Talmadges were considerably the wrong side of the road—it isn I also know that some of the salaries paid by the Talmadges were considerably higher than people were getting for exactly the same kind of work in the field of

The Talmadges have always been generous and especially anxious to retain assistants who worked harmoniously with the organization. It has thus grown head into more of a big family affair than any studio force I know of. This has made it pleasant, of course, but to accomplish it it has been necessary to keep before they had gone a block a motorraising the salaries of the regular employes year after year until the pay enveloped exception and escented them the movie market today than any least here in the contain a good deal more than the same people could command to the staffon. Before Tom's case was other item listed in the Beauty Board of

IMAGINE the Talmadges must have felt lately a lot like a man with h sore tooth. You know how he hates to lose the tooth, but if pulling in the only remedy, he has to get his nerve together and have it pulled.
