

PHILA. ILL WITH 'CONTRACTORITIS'

Mayor Moore Tells State Medical Society City Will Soon Be in Better Condition

OPPOSES RACE SUICIDE

Program of First Sitting of State Medical Society

Cardinal Dougherty will pronounce the invocation at today's opening of the general meeting of the Medical Society of Pennsylvania.

Dr. S. Lewis Ziegler, of this city, will read a paper on "The Port of War, Alcohol Poisoning and Its Remedies."

"Contractoritis" as a disease that affects Philadelphia is called to the attention of the members of the Pennsylvania Medical Society.

The Mayor told the doctors that while Philadelphia was a little sick politically he believed it was fundamentally sound and would recover.

Mayor Moore also asked the doctors to devote their brains and skill to the cure of the city's ills.

He asked the physicians to devote their interest as much as possible to the drug and liquor traffic.

GLENNA COLLETT BEATEN BY BRITON

Miss Edith Leitch Eliminates Boston Champion From Women's National Golf

EASY FOR CECIL LEITCH

By SANDY McNICLICK

Hollywood Golf Club, Deal, N. J., Oct. 4.—Four British cousins were not any too cozily in their first matches today on American soil in the first round of the women's golf championship of the United States.

Miss Edith Leitch set down one of the prime American favorites and captured all over the Boston contingent when she ousted the fair little Glenna Collett, 3 and 2.

Miss Collett, eighteen years old, the long-hitting Boston and Providence champion, made a game try for it, but to no avail.

Red Murphy Shot by Night Watchman

He ran out Montrose street, Me after him. "Men like him are better off dead," he turned and fired. The bullet went through my shirt, across my stomach, I cried and missed. He fired, hit my shoe. He fired again through my hat. I fired twice more.

Shifts Pistol to Other Hand "Then he shot me through the right finger of my right hand, and nicked the finger next to it. I shifted my gun to the other hand and fired again. Well, I guess he was mad, got him a bullet through his head over the right eye. Guvs like that are better off dead."

While this was going on, according to Patrolman McLaughlin, the fight continued in front of the chop suey restaurant, this time between the two patrolmen and the men who had come in the small touring car and who now sought to escape.

McLaughlin declares he and Stomato riddled the back of the car with bullets, and probably hit one of the occupants, although the car was not damaged. Today are looking for a small touring car, with bullet holes in the back.

Ruth was standing over the body of Murphy when the patrolmen, returning from their little chase after the small touring car, went over the field of battle.

The watchman called them up to his side and pointed to the pistol still in the wounded man's hand, then handed over his own gun. "I just want you to notice that I shot in self-defense," the watchman said.

The patrolmen found plenty of marks of the fight about the place. "Knocked over" place showed signs of it in chipped brickwork, where bullets had flattened against the wall. At 931 South Fifth street, an unoccupied store, a bullet had crashed through a plate glass. Other houses nearby bore scars from flying leaden slugs or the bullet which had struck the steel-jacketed bullets of automobiles.

"Red" Murphy had a number of addresses. At 518 North Eleventh street, the address of his home, he had lived for some months, but had left early in the summer to go to Atlantic City. His wife at that time went somewhere on Mount Vernon street to live, she said.

Murphy had a long and bad police record. Two weeks ago was his latest scrape, when he was held under $1000 bail for having attacked Police Sergeant Loesch, of the Eighth and Jefferson streets station, with brass knuckles during raids being conducted along Columbia avenue between Tenth street and Broad.

Figured in Hold-Up Murder The affair early this morning is believed, however, to have resulted from "Red" Murphy's most serious scrape with the police in 1919. At that time he was tried for the murder of William F. Carpenter, after Harry Peterson, chain store collector, had been held up on May 22, 1919, at Fifty-first and Arch streets.

Carpenter was believed to have been accompanied by Murphy and three other men during the hold-up. The bandits were seated in a touring car, waiting for Peterson to come along with the money. One of the men leapt from the car and grappled with Peterson. Carpenter took a hand, it was alleged, and a man, standing up in the car, took aim at Peterson, to kill him and stop the fight. Just as the trigger was pulled Carpenter got in the way, and was shot and killed instantly.

Peterson ran and took refuge behind a hedge. The bandits hauled the body of his pal into the automobile, which stalled at Thirtieth and Spring Garden streets, and was deserted, with the body inside. The police found the deserted car and the dead man the next morning.

Murphy was tried for the shooting and acquitted.

PASTOR HOLDS KEY TO GRISWOLD WILL

Clergyman Who Signed Document as Witness Called for Defense

GIVES TESTATOR'S WORDS

Special Dispatch to Evening Public Ledger

Atlantic City, Oct. 4.—On the words of a gray-haired Methodist minister, the Rev. Abner H. Lucas, now of Princeton, formerly of Atlantic City, may rest final disposition of the fortune left by Mrs. Alice Gerry Griswold, once social belle and descendant of Bonaparte. This fortune is at present virtually in the possession of Mrs. Mary H. Drischman, wife of a former butcher, and is being fought for by Countess Anna St. Clair de Contulbia, of Milan, Italy, daughter of the dead woman. The aged minister, called in to witness what he believed was the will of Mrs. Griswold, signed that instrument after Mrs. Griswold had uttered her name.

Garbed in deep mourning the Countess appeared with her array of legal talent of this city and Baltimore before Judge Robert Ingersoll in the Orphan's Court here this morning, prepared to start the attack on the will of her mother, which cut her off with $500 and left the remainder of the fortune, appraised for court purposes at $85,000, but reported to be close to $200,000, to the woman who had been her business manager for Mrs. Griswold for several years before her death. Mrs. Drischman did not appear at opening of court.

McCormick and Walska in costume. Paris, Oct. 4.—Mme. Ganna Walska yesterday gave her first interview since the announcement was made of the Cochran divorce proceedings, that she is undecided regarding a return to her husband. This adds another notch to the puzzle propounded by Dudley Field Malone, her counsel, when he stated that Mrs. Walska would not permit Cochran to divorce her nor would she divorce him. The key of the mystery is held by Mr. Malone only. He has given him carte blanche in the matter, and Paris has been the scene of his conduct has clearly amazed her. At her beautiful home in the Rue de Lubez, last evening, the prima donna explained her position.

LABOR FIGHTS PICKET BAN New Jersey Federation Will Appeal to U. S. Supreme Court Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 4.—(By A. P.)—Delegates to the New Jersey State Federation of Labor Unions yesterday voted to carry the fight against writs of injunction to prevent peaceful picketing and other strike activities to the United States Supreme Court. This action was taken unanimously when 300 delegates, representing 120,000 workers passed a declaration calling upon the unions within the State to contribute to the financing of a legal battle in the International Association of Machinists against a company which recently secured from Vice Governor Buchanan an order forbidding peaceful picketing.
