Gave Her Note Concealed in Newspaper, Say Police—Held in $1000 Bail
A note hidden in a newspaper and passed to Wilhelmina Middleton, eighteen years old, of Cardington, Pa., led to the arrest this morning of William Ware, a Negro, who was accused of annoying the girl.
Miss Middleton is employed in a coal office at Sixty-third and Market streets. She sold police. Ware, of Warren street near Forty-second, has been standing at Sixty-third and Locust streets every morning recently as she passed.
Ware smiled at her, she said, and yesterday he thrust a newspaper under her arm. She said the paper contained a note asking her to meet him that evening.
District Detective Colflesh, of the Fifty-fifth and Pine streets station, by arrangement, walked in back of the young girl this morning. He arrested Ware as he was about to accost the girl, police say.
Ware was held in $1000 bail for
