Nancy Wynne Attends the Tea Given by Mrs. John Wister for Miss Sarah Logan Starr—She Tells of Two Affairs Today—Races Tomorrow

WELL, the tea yesterday afternoon for Logan Starr was certainly a lovely affair. In the first place Bel- field, Mrs. John Wister's home in Ger- mantown, is a most beautiful old place, and the large rooms with their wealth of flowers and lights and the pretty girls in their delicate frocks made a picture not soon to be forgotten.

It was an extremely smart tea as was the Drayton affair on Tuesday. The Stars and Wisters, you know, are related to or connected with every one who is a member of a really old family in this city. For you know the Wisters, Stars, Emiens, Wurms, Logans and Meigs are old, old families about these parts. So, of course, every one turned out and the tea was very enlivened.

Logan is sweet. She is rather tall and slender and looks a good deal like her mother, who was Miss Sarah Wister. She wore a darling frock of white net made with panels of opal- white and slashed with white sequins and accented with pink roses. There were baskets and vases of roses, chrysanthemums, and great bunches of dahlias with autumn leaves arranged as a background, golden- orange and tied with blue satin ribbons. A little lace-paper-edged ribbon, and a diamond-studded pearl-shaped hatpin was thrust through the opposite side.

Mrs. Starr looked awfully well in a gown of white embroidered chiffon, and Mrs. Wister wore a handsome gown of black satin and lace. Mrs. Charles Keith, who was a Wister, you know, and Mrs. George Mason Chichester, and Mrs. Charles Stewart Wurts and Mrs. Edward Meigs, Logan's aunts; Mrs. Oliver Boyce Judson, Mrs. Elizabeth Price, Mrs. William Lytleton Barclay, another Wister; Miss Frances Wister and Miss Mary Gibson presided at the tea tables during the afternoon.

Some of the buds I noticed particularly were Alberta Reath, who is a perfect dear; she has such lovely duplets; Cintra Ellis, Ellen Lloyd, Dorothy Rodgers, Rosemary Howe, Eleanor Hart and Virginia Heckcher. There were lots of others, but I happened to see and speak with those I mentioned especially.

WELL, the races will start tomorrow afternoon out at Huntingdon Valley Hunt Club and a great many are going out to watch them. Then, too, there will be the Stotesburys' reception to go to, out at Whittemarsh. You know they are giving it to introduce Jimmie Cromwell and his wife, who was Delphine Dodge. They went on a trip around the world after their marriage, you remember, and when they returned last year Delphine's father had just died so she was in deep mourning for some time, and Mrs. Stotesbury was in mourning for her father, so there have been no large affairs given in the family for some time and practically none as yet at the new place in Whittemarsh. But tomorrow the house will be thrown open to the guests and I have heard so much about the beauty of the interior that I for one shall be very interested in seeing it, as well as glad to meet Del-
