"Where Is My Girl Tonight?"

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger: girs them any attention when they so much trying to improve upon nature difference of the parents as to their daugh-ers is so marked as at the present. Coast-nut and Market strests are crowded every sight with young siris whose conduct is anything but in comparison to their years. Where are their parents? Of what is the thought of their mother? These she ask here wif. Where is my sandering girl tonight? Apparently not, for the mother is rearing her in such a way inday that the young siril is very much in the position of the Philadelphia Sentence.

She goes shead and does all the the time and immediately she has had her supper she departs for the "white way." and the mother cither goes to the moties or retires, tired from slaving all day for her. To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger: But there is never a thought as to Where is my wandering girl tonight?

Philadelphia, October 7, 1921, Parents Are to Blame

o the Editor of the Evening Public Ladger: They cannot be expected to er. They are following their selings rather than their intellects. Nor do I blame the "eachers, but, rather, be parents, who, in the final analysis, have he controlling power. There are many sachers who start out practicing and preach-The Pierian sprins was located at Pieria. The students don't like them, of course. That wouldn't be human nature. Nor do parents and school officers want hem. They are considered too mosabacked and too slow. The consequence is that they must "reform" or be dropped by the way, and to her professions—engineering, medicine and iaw, for example—experience is a valuable asset, highly esteemed. In education it is all too often a handicap. The experienced person, who has learned to recognize shams and who shuns fads, must give way to the tyro who, full of enthusiasm over a newly found fad, bloasoms forth to impose it on the unsuspecting and he the old integrities, but they do not last thusiasm over a newly found fad, blossems forth to impose it on the unsuspecting and innocent youth who come to him for inspiration and for guidance. And why? Hecause that is what peple want.

The remedy? That is easier to suggest than to apply. The one the writer of the inter referred to is good. In my opinion what we need is a clearer insight into the purpose of an education and a fuller realisation on the part of the parents of their responsibilities. GEORGE T. ELLIOTT.
