

JAILED FOR GIVING DOPE TO INMATES

House of Correction Employee Gets Year—Paid $1 to Deliver Box, He Says

HEROIN IS FOUND IN LETTER

Convicted of having given a package containing drugs to an inmate of the House of Correction, Charles H. Hepperlein, sixty-four years old, was given a year in the county prison by Judge Monaghan today, in Quarter Sessions Court.

It was testified by Edward R. Shellenburg, an official of the House of Correction, that Hepperlein had been sent to the institution off and on for a number of years. Showing an inclination to better himself, he was placed on the payroll at $12 a month, his board and clothes. He was employed as a wagon driver on House of Correction farm.

Inmates of the institution were receiving drugs, it was said, and an investigation was made. It was discovered, according to testimony, that Hepperlein had called at a house on South street above Green, the home of a sister of Albert Barger. Barger was confined to the House of Correction as a drug addict.

DIAMONDS AND BANKBOOK FOUND ON WOMAN BEGGAR

With $103 Cash, She is Held for Stealing $6 From Child

A seventy-year-old beggar woman, who had on her person $103 in cash, a diamond bracelet, a diamond lavalliere and a bank book showing $3048 to her credit, was arraigned before Magistrate Dugan today, charged with stealing $6. She was wearing a fur coat.

Yesterday afternoon Charles Heberowitz, three years old, 8023 Eastwick avenue, was playing in the kitchen with six one-dollar bills.

The woman walked in and took them. The child's father chased the woman and caught her a block away.

She denied taking the money and said she was begging to raise money for the poor. Heberowitz searched her and found his $6 besides the $103, the bank book and the jewels.

This morning when she was arraigned before Magistrate Dugan she said she was Sara Lipschutz, of 910 Daly street. She was held in $500 bail for court.

WILL DRAG RIVER FOR CHILD'S BODY

Tiny Express Wagon on Bank Probably Tells Tale of Tragedy

BOY MAY BE KIDNAPPED

Police will drag the Delaware River near Cramer Hill, Camden, in an effort to find three-year-old Paul Carlin, 2731 Concord avenue, missing from his home since he left early yesterday dragging a small express wagon.

The express wagon, mute testimony of a possible tragedy, was found fifteen feet from the river bank yesterday afternoon. Questioning of Paul's playmates has so far led to nothing.

When the child did not return home for dinner yesterday his parents began questioning the neighbors. No one remembered having seen him. His parents telephoned the police.

One report authorities got was that a boy answering Paul's description was seen getting on a trolley bound for the ferries in company with a man.

Both police and Paul's parents discount this, principally because of the express wagon found by the river bank. The spot where it was found is only a few squares from his home. The place where he was reported to have been seen with the boy is possibly a half mile away. The police point out that lots of small boys may be seen getting on trolleys with men early Sunday morning.

Paul, like all normal children, felt attraction for water. Like all children he was warned to keep away from the river, and, again like all children, ordinarily did just what he was told not to do. Time and time again he was brought from the river bank where he had been cautioned not to go.

PERRY & CO. 16TH & CHESTNUT SUPER-VALUES in Clothes for Men

The "Reed" Habit

- Some of our newer salesmen—men who formerly sold for other clothing houses—tell us that they are receiving what appears to them to be a surprising number of repeat customers.
- A "repeat" customer is one who keeps on coming to the same place to buy—in other words, his first purchase is the primary cause of making another, and soon.
- After these salesmen have been here a little longer they will find that the habit of customers buying at Reed's is hard to break after it is once acquired.
- Only Good Merchandise and Good Service will permanently bind customers to any business.
- Fall Suits and Top Coats are priced $50 and upward with especially strong "Red" values at $40, $45 and $50.

Family Secrets

By DR. BERTHOLD A. BAER

In the short space of an hour—after the heavy hand of death has fallen upon you—the Funeral Director learns more about your innermost feelings, about your family secrets, than the Doctor, the Lawyer or even the Minister.

This truth being undeniable, why should one not select his Funeral Director with the same care and foresight that he does other professional men, and at a time of sound judgment, in the sunshine of life, in the prime of health.

Mr. Asher, of the Broad Street Chapel, 1309 North Broad Street, in full understanding of the importance of family secrets and in appreciation of the close relationship between him and the family, made wise provisions for the safe-guarding of the family matters.

You are invited to call and learn more about this.
