Nancy Wynne Talks of the Gayeties Over the Week-End. She Tells of the Heckschers' Tea on Saturday. Philadelphians Go to Welsh-Dunlap Wedding

WELL, we did not even have a Stotesbury's daughter, Mrs. Cromwell Brooke, with all the doings on Saturday and the party the Reilive gave yesterday afterneon at Radner to introduce their daughter Walburga, there was not the daughter Walburga, there was not the the years to the Soh. usual rest for the weary on the Sab-

Perhaps I sound to you as if I were talking in circles, and like the brook running on and on forever as it were, but there really is a thought back of all I have said, and if you think it over believe you will agree with me that we are entering on better times.

She were a French freck of white satin embroidered in American Beauty ends. Mrs. Heckscher wore a pearl gray brocaded chiffon gown. A number of the debutantes received at the tea and there was a dinner and dancing in he evening.

THE Reillys' party marked an innovation. It was the first time a debutante has ever been introduced on a Sunday afternoon in this city, but a great many people like the idea. It is it were a dance or theatre party, but it was a musicale, and the music was fine incidentally, and a great many could go who might not be able Walburga looked pretty in a simple white French muslin freek, combined with lace and finished at the waist with girdle formed of several rows of fine ite cord. She carried a beautiful bunch of lavender orchids and was very charming indeed. Mrs. Reilly, too, looked well in a black georgette gown, rimmed with black velvet. I certainly have seldom seen as many men at a tea as were there, though there were a number at Heckschers'. too, but then Saturday afternoon is a good time, too, for a party as is put aside at noon on Saturdays till the next week.

Well, anyway, it was a beautiful true it was till yesterday. And the buds who received with her looked so sweet. There were Rosenary Howe, Evelyn Drayton, Betty Wayne, Betty Battles, Helen Michell, Gertie Dough-erty, Sarah Bailey, Haunah Elliott and Alice Benedict and several others, too. And the tea was followed by an informal supper for the receiving party and extra men guests.

You know she fell and broke a bone in her elbow while she was staying at a house party the Boyd girls gave at Cape May early in September. It must have been an awfully painful thing if I heard of the accident aright. I understand it was the "crazy" bone, as it is called, the structure of the bound of the accident aright. ### SUMMER SESSION OF SCHOOLS URGED

Broome Says Plan Would Aid Backward Children and Save Money

Special summer sessions of the public schools for children who are retarded in their work is the aim of Dr. E. C. Broome, Superintendent of Schools, in the report made to the Board of Education suggesting improvements for the coming year.

In expanding on his plan Dr. Broome pointed out that summer schools were successful in other cities and would in time be a means of saving money for the Board of Education, now wasted every time a child has to repeat a class.

"I would like to begin with a sum-mer elementary school in each of the eight school districts," said Dr. Broome, "and also in two of the high schools, In such way the accommodations in summer would take care of about the same corresponding proportion of his school and elementary pupils as exist in the winter terms.
"The sessions would last about aix weeks and school would occupy about three hours each day. In that manner children could make up subjects in which they are deficient and advance with their classes, thus saving the enormous loss entailed by repetition, which is about $25 a term for each child. They would really be salvage schools, All attendance would, of course, be voluntary on the part of the children. "Another plan which would fit in very well at the same time would be to open the summer schools in the buildings adjacent to the playgrounds. There could then be special classes in the foundations of English, such as reading, the three colors that blend into each other writing, spelling and pronunciation, for the children of foreign parents who use the playgrounds.'
