

IRISH PRISONERS DESTROY BARRACKS

Interned Sinn Feiners Allege Cruel Treatment by British Guards

RESUME PARLEY THURSDAY

By the Associated Press

Cork, Oct. 18.—The work of destruction begun Sunday by the occupants of the Spike Island camp for interned Sinn Feiners became enraged because they were not permitted to attend mass was continued today. The cheering of the prisoners as they carried on their operations was plainly heard in Queenstown.

The buildings on the island, known as Block D, were destroyed yesterday, while another group known as Block A was pretty well demolished today. Volumes of smoke were observed ascending from the island where the interned men, it was said, were burning their sleeping kits. Four of the prisoners have been badly injured.

The revolt of the interned prisoners is attributed to Sinn Fein quarters to alleged ill treatment of the men. Conditions at the Bera Island Camp in Hantary Bay are declared to be even worse than at Spike Island. The Daily Express representative indicates that expectation, however, that the work of the joint commission appointed to examine into conditions will remove the grounds for complaint.

London, Oct. 18.—(By A. P.)—The conference between Irish leaders and representatives of the British Government will, it is expected, resume Thursday. The interruption yesterday was said to be due solely to the engagements of Lloyd George, the Prime Minister, in connection with the reopening of Parliament. Meanwhile, the committee of the conference, composed of the other members, will hold sessions for the advancement of the conference's work.

Several Irish experts have been summoned to London to advise the Sinn Fein delegates and draw up reports for the consideration of the conference. Among the most notable of these is Lionel Smith-Gordon, a leading authority on rural reconstruction.

Mr. Smith-Gordon formerly was chief assistant to Sir Horace Plunkett in the agricultural co-operative movement. He left this movement to found, in conjunction with Erskine Childers and Robert Barton, the National Land Bank for the employment of Irish money in Ireland. He is heir to a British baronetcy and his wife is the daughter of United States Senator Fletcher, of Florida. The bank which he helped found was frequently raised by the crown forces in the days before the truce.

The concentration of republican troops in Dublin, alleged as the ground for remodeling the Ulster Volunteers, is denied by Sinn Fein headquarters here. It is declared there that the Sinn Fein contingents in Ulster are smaller than in any other part of the country, although substantial forces are located in the area of the six counties.

Belfast, Oct. 18.—(By A. P.)—Reports that the Ulster volunteer force was being reorganized were verified in official quarters here today. It was stated that Ulster ex-service men were enrolling.

"Why shouldn't they, when the Sinn Feiners are drilling, even in Belfast?" was the comment in official quarters. Colonel Spender, who formerly commanded the Ulster volunteers, resigned on assuming the secretaryship of the Ulster Cabinet, but the view was expressed that the officering of the force would present no trouble.

The belief is generally expressed here that no difficulty will be found in re-organizing the volunteers in the Belfast area. The Ulster Ex-Service Men's Association, nearly all of whose members were volunteers in the pre-war days, is constituted on strictly party lines, no Republicans or Nationalists being eligible. The members of this association are the strongest supporters of the anti boycott movement. At Lisburn last night 1000 of them assembled, and, under commandants who are ex-officers of the British army, marched in formation along a specified route. The march carried no arms during their march, although they were well equipped in this respect.

Dublin, Oct. 18.—(By A. P.)—The All-Ireland Industrial Conference adopted unanimously a resolution declaring that in the proposed treaty with Great Britain full fiscal freedom for Ireland was a fundamental and essential condition, and that full control of all Irish industrial, shipping and commercial affairs must be vested in Irish authority. The resolution was forwarded to the Daily Eireann delegates in London.

RADIO SIGNATURES ACROSS ATLANTIC

Greetings From Briand and Pershing Reproduced in Facsimile at New York

DR. BELIN'S INVENTION

New York, Oct. 18.—Wireless transmission between France and the United States of actual handwriting has been effected through the invention of Prof. Edouard Belin, the New York World announced today. Facsimile photographs of the writing are reproduced by the paper.

Messages from General Pershing and Premier Briand of France, sent from the Belin laboratories in Paris, were received yesterday and recorded in the handwriting of the senders at the United States Naval Radio Station, Outer Cliffs, near Bay Harbor, Me. Prof. Belin personally received the messages.

The instruments by which the recording of the writing was accomplished are similar. It was stated, to those by which photographs have been transmitted by telegraph in the United States. Following the photograph experiment Prof. Belin went to France and perfected the machine so that it could be used for the transmission of handwriting by wireless.

The Belinograph has become a feature of the Paris Matin, which almost every day prints photographs received telegraphically from all parts of Europe.

As the apparatus for receiving written messages or pictures drawn in line is simpler than that for receiving photographs by wireless, M. Belin has been devoting his time to perfecting this. He determined to give it the most thorough test possible, he sent two of his assistants, MM. Johannot and Toulou, to America to try to send drawings by wireless across the Atlantic.

The first experiments were made with the reception of spiral lines of varying sizes. Fair success was had with these, in spite of the fact that accumulators were lacking and only one, borrowed from an automobile, was available.

In Paris the World's correspondent was in constant touch with M. Belin's laboratory at Malmatou, and as soon as he learned that the conditions were good he asked Premier Briand and General Pershing to write messages which could be transmitted through the air, without wires, across the Atlantic.

Premier Briand sat in his office at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs on the Quai d'Orsay and wrote: "Je me réjouis à la pensée d'aller à Washington. Ari. Briand." Which means, "I am delighted at the thought of going to Washington." "Ari." is M. Briand's way of contracting his first name, "Aristide."

This message and the brief "Greetings, John J. Pershing," which the American General wrote at his hotel, was taken to Malmatou and the operator at the Belin laboratory at once put them on the brass cylinder of the sending apparatus, and, after the necessary adjustments to make synchronization certain, the waves of wireless or "radio" were sputtering forth from the French machine, and at the same moment were being caught on the semi-conductor film of the receiving apparatus on Mount Desert Island.

CONGRESS HEARING ON KLAN ADJOURNS

Report of Findings by Rules Committee Not Expected for Week

WIZARD FORGETS ON FUNDS

Washington, Oct. 18.—The Ku Klux hearing before the Rules Committee of the House of Representatives closed yesterday, with Imperial Wizard William Joseph Simmons as the final witness. A report of the findings and recommendations is not expected for at least a week.

"The committee has unanimously decided not to hear further witnesses at the present time. At a subsequent time it will meet to decide on future action."

What the nature of this promised future action will be it is impossible to forecast, but a remark to a reporter immediately after the adjournment by one of the most prominent members of the Rules Committee makes it appear that Colonel Simmons has by no means succeeded in wiping out the charges made against his organization by the manner in which he answered the questions showered on him during his long cross-examination.

"I have been in Congress a long time," said the member, "and I don't remember another witness who made so much parade and vouchsafed so little real information."

"Someone Else Did It"

The Imperial Wizard was questioned with special insistence about Ku Klux finances and Ku Klux responsibility for lawlessness, terrorism and fomentation of racial or religious hatreds. Time after time he disclaimed, on the ground of illness or absence from Atlanta, knowledge of acts or incidents.

"Someone else did it, if it was done," was a recurrent answer, and once, on the question of Klan finances, he repudiated a statement prepared in his own office by the Klan bookkeeper and put into the record last week as an exhibit by himself.

This exhibit showed that prior to June 1, 1920—the date when the Klan's business contract with the Clarke-Tyler partnership was made—the total income of this organization in five years had been $151,088.72, obtained principally from the donations of 15,000 members, who passed the invisible portals at the rate of $10 apiece. The question was raised what had become of this money, for the disbursement of which the Imperial Wizard admitted his inability to show vouchers, because, he declared,

"those memorandums were lost when the office was moved." Pressed with questions, he went on to say the exhibit was totally wrong and that a true statement would show a total income for the five-year pre-Clarke period of not more than $15,000, accruing from the admission of not more than 2500 members at an average of $7 a head. Asked how the Klan bookkeeper could possibly have multiplied $15,000 into $150,000 in preparing the exhibit, he contended himself with answering the employe must have been under a misapprehension of the facts.

Chairman Campbell asked questions about Edward Young Clarke, learning he had been a Klansman only a short time before he made the contract under which he got $8 and the organization $2 out of each membership fee of $10. He cited the statement submitted by Colonel Simmons showing that out of the $2 allotment $171,432.67 had been turned over to the Klan since June 1, 1920. The $171,432.67, he said, was not in the hands of the Klan since June 1, 1920. Colonel Simmons replied he could not answer definitely.

Montreal Hotel Guests Rescued

Montreal, Oct. 18.—Frie broke out in the refrigerating plant of the Windsor Hotel last night, filling the structure with smoke and ammonia fumes. Six guests, trapped in their rooms by the smoke, were brought down ladders. The fire did not extend beyond the basement.

The Weaver of Words

Back in the days when the world was born, and coal mines sought the sun as fragrant waving jungles; when bat-winged vipers many cubits high dwarfed the mighty mastodon, Man knew not Money but did understand Purchase.

Stone hatchets would receive their meade of Furs in the barter of the day—the glinting pebbles, the daubs of clay and all the glittering gayeties nature furnished were haggled over—and he of the quicker mind and convincing tongue would amass his cavefuls of needs before the rest.

ON TO the age in which chiseled hieroglyphics made stones eloquent —Words—Words, better molded, arranged, spoken and inscribed betokened exceeding power in the deeds of Purchase.

And so it was when wandering merchants of an era in which shekels passed from hand to palm in payment of edibles, and covering and shelter, the shrewdest of Sheiks would take with him a magic spell-binder—one who with Words could best paint the glories of his wares—all to his enrichment.

There in the market places would the Weaver of Words exercise his magic. So it was that the stylus came into use as a welder of Man's thoughts—and argosies spread eager sails bearing the burden of countries' commerce—all through the sound force of papyri emblazoned with clear expositions by men who molded Words.

AND from the stylus to the miracle of the press—what a span!—what a myriad of marvels flourished full-powered, through the stimulus of ideas developed, nurtured and given scope by Weavers of the inspiring Word.

This day has come overwhelmingly swift—it is here in all the panoply of revivifying merit—bearing with it printed market places that hold their millions upon millions in anxious thrall to sound logic of sales-compelling messages.

And to you merchants who would that multitudes throng your caravanserais to purchase, who would wish the tide of ware-seekers to bear along the fruits of your looms, to you is extended sincere counsel—

Get unto yourselves a Weaver of Words—such an one who can and for you will thread the shuttle of his fancies with the worth of your own merchandise. And that his paean of sales-praise be far from faint, glorify his thought with the melody of surpassing values, enrich his lyre with the wof of honest substances—and in that he preaches Truth, he can create for you a veritable temple of Goodwill, within whose confines forever shall flourish the Success of your own home.

And amongst the chosen Weavers, one name is offered you—
