The Business of Keeping House
 There is more truth than poetry in the remark that "woman's work is never done," especially when applied to the home woman. The business of keeping house is a hard, energy-sapping job. But with the aid of modern science it slowly but surely becomes more pleasant. Thus the woman who wears Dr. Reed Cushion Shoes finds her step as springy at night as in the morning. And she doesn't have to change for the unexpected caller—good-looking shoes, they wear wonderfully well and are the last word in comfort.
